Apollo 'Ready To Go'

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 12's moon orbiting space pilots reported everything "ready to go" yesterday for America's second lunar landing, but kept a wary eye out for radiation from a solar flare "bigger than the earth's surface."

Several discordant notes were sounded in the final crucial hours of the landing mission, but none was considered serious. The lunar landing was scheduled for 1:53 a.m. EST today.

Trade Relief Asked

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress yesterday to give more relief to U.S. industries hurt by imports and to broaden his retaliatory powers against unfair foreign competition.

Nixon pledged his administration to continuing a policy of freer world trade, but observed that this country no longer dominates world markets and that other countries are now fully competitive.

Showdown Vote Is Set

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans relented yesterday in their demand for delay and agreed to a showdown vote Friday on the controversial nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

If Democratic membership follows Senate leader Mike Mansfield's willingness to go along with the GOP proposal, the crucial roll call following three months of debate probably will come at about noon Friday.

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,981 in his home township to 6,658 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 139 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,484.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

WOODS, THE FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, has been active in numerous government activities. He served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. A Republican, Woods also has served on the Wheeling Township GOP executive board and has been active in several Republican campaigns.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Woods also is a native of a southern state, born in Shreveport, La. He is an attorney, a graduate of the Georgetown Law Center, and is employed as vice president and general counsel of Universal Oil Products of Des Plaines. He and his wife have four children. Woods is 48.

HOPSCOTCHING ACROSS the third Senatorial District last night, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights greeted campaign workers who helped her win the second place on the ballot and a trip to the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

'Ginny' Tops Here

by TOM WELLMAN

The biggest winner, in a relatively quiet Con-Con night in Elk Grove Twp., was Mrs. Virginia Macdonald.

Mrs. Macdonald, who became "Ginny" as the tallies went up on the blackboard in the GOP office in Mount Prospect, easily outdistanced her primary competitor in the township, Mrs. Madeline Schroeder.

To top it off, she outdistanced former Arlington Heights president John Woods — by 11 votes.

The final tally, with all 56 precincts reporting, was Mrs. Macdonald, 3395; Woods, 3384; Mrs. Schroeder, 2492; and William Engelhardt of Inverness, 2147.

The Elk Grove GOP had endorsed Mrs. Macdonald and Engelhardt. They were overjoyed to see Mrs. Macdonald win, but they muttered about Engelhardt's lack of campaigning throughout the area. And they did not expect him to finish well.

COMMITTEEMAN Carl Hansen, as the precinct captains headed to parties thrown by Woods and Mrs. Macdonald, said the vote ran just about the way he had expected it to run.

"John Woods ran strong, as expected, in the Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights areas of Elk Grove township," he said. "Ginny Macdonald did well throughout the township."

The defeat of Mrs. Schroeder became evident much earlier in the evening, when state representative David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, gleefully posted figures showing Mrs. Schroeder doing poorly in Wheeling Twp. And she needed a strong turnout there to win a seat at the convention.

Hansen said, "I'm extremely pleased with the result, namely our district sending two highly qualified delegates to the Constitutional Convention, both of whom have a record of clear identification with Republican principles."

HE PRAISED the turnout, which hit 19.1 per cent of the registered voters in the township, which includes parts of Mount Prospect, Elk Grove, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. He said the total was six per cent higher than the turnout during the Con-Con primary.

Hansen said he felt the rainy and cold weather sliced the turnout. At the same time, although he was impressed with the 19.1 per cent, he said it wasn't enough of a turnout to decide on who should represent this area at the Constitutional Convention.

She Wins, Says 'Thanks'

by MARTHA KOPER

High on the list of priorities last night for Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, victorious in the Con-Con election, was saying thank-you.

While showing signs of a little surprise, she expressed her gratitude to campaign workers and those gathered at Republican Headquarters in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

"I really can't quite believe it yet," she said.

"It's been a good campaign."

And then, "All four of us have run a good campaign."

CALLING IT A CAMPAIGN to gain the confidence of voters in the Third Senatorial District, she explained, "We haven't campaigned politically. All our remarks related to issues."

Remembering back to when she first announced her candidacy in the Con-Con election, Mrs. Macdonald admitted a few things have changed.

"As I've campaigned, some of the issues have come into a different perspective," she said.

"One issue which has become crystal clear is the need for judicial reform," she said.

When someone reminded her the evening was a time to relax and celebrate, she laughed, "I guess it truly is."

But quickly added, "Tomorrow starts a busy time. I'm going to get going on that communication system right away."

AS PART OF HER campaign pledges, Mrs. Macdonald told voters she wanted to hear from anyone with ideas for the Constitutional Convention.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESELY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on south Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard toteboard, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

While smiling, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate; it duplicates the trails of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trail awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political field of the district came to shake hands with the top vote-getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

"It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

"I THINK A STIFF campaign is good for a candidate . . . it is a duplicate of the trials of office," John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and now delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a big smile last night after tallying nearly 20,000 votes.

Joins Tax Collection Fight

Dist. 59 will join Elk Grove Township in its fight to continue the present method of suburban tax collection.

Board members voted Monday night to participate as intervenors in behalf of the defendants, all 30 township tax collectors in Cook County and Cook County Treasurer Edmund Kucharski.

"Basically, this will mean that when the suit comes to court a letter will be in the judge's hands indicating that we are in sympathy with the defendants," Al Waltman, acting school superintendent, said.

THE SUIT WAS filed last August by two

Chicago residents in behalf of all Chicago taxpayers challenging the constitutionality of "excess fees" as a commission to township governments.

If the suit is successful the school district will lose over $100,000 in revenue which it receives from these funds yearly.

Although the district has received more than that amount this year, the distribution of funds for Wheeling Township has been held up.

Townships are allowed to keep for operations 2 per cent of all taxes collected through their tax collector. Money not used for operations is termed "excess" and is distributed at annual town meetings. Much of this money goes to the elementary schools.

The suit, due to come to court Dec. 2, contends that the practice grants special privileges to suburban residents over Chicago residents and alleges the state constitution is violated because it imposes upon taxpayers of the city the obligation of paying the corporate debt of other municipalities.

IN ANOTHER AREA, the board heard Mrs. Gloria Kinney, executive director of Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) outline the purpose and structure of the organization.

Mrs. Kinney explained that NEC was a program combining efforts of 10 area elementary districts and two high school districts for better efficiency in areas of similar concerns.

Each board and administration is asked to list priorities which they feel the cooperative should handle.

NEC is presently involved in four cooperative ventures, she reported. They are the Northwest Special Education Organization, of which the diagnostic learning center is a part, a Title II library cooperative and an in-service training program for teachers.

To Open New Fire Station

The Elk Grove Village Fire Department will open a west side fire station at 400 Biesterfeld Road at noon Saturday.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said the station will improve fire protection and rescue service for that side of the village.

The village presently has one fire station at 668 Landmeier Road.

THE NEW STATION will house one pumper engine in a bay of the Elk Grove Park District garage. A trailer located nearby will house three men who will remain on a 24-hour shift. Nine men have been assigned to the station.

The west side station will answer all minor fire calls in the area west of Salt Creek. The engine will also aid in answering ambulance calls.

The park district garage and the trailer will be used on a temporary basis until construction of a firehouse at Biesterfeld Road and Wellington Avenue is completed next fall.

Also scheduled for completion at the same site is the village hall and police station.

Construction of two more fire stations has been approved by voters in a past referendum. They will be located at the southeast corner of Busse Road and Greenleaf Avenue in Centex Industrial Park and west of Illinois Route 53, possibly at Nerge Road and Route 53.

WHEN CONSTRUCTION is finally completed the village will have four fire stations, including the Landmeier Road station which will remain open.

Chief Hulett said that although the west side station is being added, there will be no change in the telephone number of the fire department. The fire truck at the station will be dispatched from the Landmeier Road station.

Provision for the new station was made through an agreement with the park district and Elk Grove Mobile Homes, Inc., 941 E. Higgins Road, Elk Grove Township.

The park board agreed to provide the space for the fire engine in return for storage space at the Landmeier Road station. The mobile park agreed to provide the use of the trailer in exchange for fire protection.

A graduate of Northbrook High School, he attended Florida Southern University.

Hike Mgr. Duties

Wheeling's village manager has a new set of duties and additional authority concerning village employees following passage of a new village manager ordinance Monday by the village board.

The board approved the ordinance unanimously without discussion. The ordinance had been revised at committee meetings of the board as a whole in recent weeks from a proposed ordinance submitted to the board by Matthew Golden, village manager.

Under provisions of the new ordinance the manager has the duties of implementing, managing, and coordinating board policy, and is responsible for overall management of village affairs, with all departments of the village reporting to him.

The new description of the job gives more weight to the village board's "commitment" to letting Golden "run the village" than did the earlier codified ordinance.

Important in the new ordinance is a statement of intent by the village board about the April referendum on the state statute form of village manager government.

The manager ordinance says that if village voters turn down a referendum to change Wheeling government to a village manager system as set up by state law, the local ordinance form of village manager government will be continued.

Wheeling voters turned down a similar referendum in 1965, but the village board adopted the local ordinance manager government and hired a manager in 1968.

Other provisions of the new manager ordinance include ones which give the manager protection against being fired within 60 days after an election, and give him a right to a public hearing within 10 days of his dismissal.

Requirements for the manager position have been changed to include a bachelor's degree and experience in public administration either as a manager or an analyst of local government functions.

The new law also gives the manager the power to "appoint, dismiss or suspend any full or part-time employee of the village" including the following department heads: superintendent of public works, chief of police, fire chief, finance director, village collector, health officer, and fire inspector.

The manager may not remove any department head within 90 days of his becoming manager except with the approval of the board.

The village board retains the power to appoint or dismiss the village planner, village engineer, civil defense director and village attorney.

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instructions in 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

At the bottom of the letter was a post card, which the letter writers asked recipients to mail to Ken GH, Dist. 21 superintendent.

The message on the post card called for an immediate end to the family living and sex education program in Dist. 21.

Stroll Nets Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally.

The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Rawls in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as one gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

Has Good View Of Wet Apollo

Gary Reinitz, of 33 Smethwick Lane, Elk Grove Village, had a soggy but good view of the moon shot last week.

While many residents were watching the launching of Apollo 12 on their television sets, Reinitz was at Cape Kennedy to see the blast-off.

Reinitz is acting general foreman for Cinch Manufacturing Co., an Elk Grove Village firm which produces electronic components for Saturn space vehicles. He was invited to see the launch as a special guest of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

"Except for the rain, I was there for four lovely days," said Reinitz.

Rain spoiled the view of the launch for thousands of spectators, including President Nixon.

"It was wet," said Reinitz about the blast-off. "It (the Saturn rocket) got lost in the clouds after four or five seconds."

Err in Speech Date

Robert Sabonjian, Waukegan mayor, was scheduled to speak in Elk Grove Village yesterday and not Wednesday as reported in yesterday's Herald. He was to address the Northwest Suburban Shrine Club.

NROTC Exam Nears

The deadline date for making application for the Regular Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps (NROTC) qualifying examination is fast approaching. Applications must be received by the Science Research Associates on or before Nov. 14, 1969.

Applicants will participate in the nationwide competitive examination Dec. 13, 1969, the only date on which the examination will be given, as the first step toward a college education and a regular commission in the naval service.

All tuition, fees, and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives a subsistence allowance of $50.00 per month for not more than four years. During each summer between his college years, a midshipman participates in interesting at-sea training periods.

High school seniors and graduates who will be entering college in September 1970 and who will be at least 17 but not 21 years of age by July 1, 1970, may apply for the Navy College Aptitude Test. Those who make a qualifying score on the test will be given a medical examination and will complete their applications in January and February 1970.

Applications for the test are available at local high schools, the nearest Navy recruiting station which is listed in your telephone directory, or from the Chief of Naval Personnel (Pers-B0411), Department of the Navy, Washington, D. C. 20370.

Thinks of Ham, Not Politics

Mrs. Madeline Schroeder accepted defeat last night in the same sincere way in which she waged her campaign for election to the Constitutional Convention.

The candidate from Arlington Heights laid all her cards on the table, admitting that the odds were stacked against her as the independent candidate, and accepted defeat by a powerful suburban Republican organization.

When the polls closed at 6 p.m., Mrs. Schroeder was in the bedroom of her North Chestnut Street home, slipping into a dress and running a comb quickly through her hair. A minute later she was in the kitchen, sleeves rolled above the elbows, arranging slices of boiled ham, swiss cheese and rye bread on a platter.

"IT'S TOUGH TO beat the party. Organizing a campaign against the party machinery is hard work because the political organization works for its candidate. But, feeling as strongly as I do about Con-Con, I had to take the outside independent chance and gamble against the odds," she said.

At 6:45 p.m. the early voting returns thundered into township headquarters across the district, but Mrs. Schroeder continued to prepare a sandwich buffet as calmly as though she were baking cookies for a PTA meeting.

As Mrs. Schroeder handled the kitchen detail, her husband, George, answered the endless stream of telephone calls from campaign workers in each township. He would jot down some figures, hang up the phone and continue his conversation that had been interrupted, never mentioning the latest tallies, although his wife might have gained a couple hundred votes.

"WE'RE RUNNING A solid third, Madeline. Picked up one place since the Con-Con primary. That's a good showing," he said, repeating the good news to the next well-wisher who called.

Actually Mrs. Schroeder's calm, cool and collected appearance masked her anxiety to throw a monkey wrench into the powerful party organization and beat the machinery. Minute by minute she waited out the election results, knowing that she had mounted one of the best campaign efforts of an independent candidate in recent history.

"The Constitution is very important to the party and its survival. The party's going to make every effort possible to elect its own people who will protect the organization. Our only hope in redrafting the Constitution is to have enough independents who will serve as a moderating influence at the convention," she said.

"If everyone defers to the party because the party says so, then we're not going to have our democratic system of government much longer."

AS THOUGH THIS WOULD be the last time someone would listen earnestly to what she had to say about the Constitution and party politics, Mrs. Schroeder rummaged through her handbag looking for her copy of the speeches that had been delivered at the 1968 Legislative Commission Conference on Intergovernmental Cooperation.

She thumbed through the reprint, whose pages revealed that they had been well read, and sought support for her platform from a speech Gov. Richard Ogilvie delivered at the conference.

"Ogilvie didn't have to play politics with this speech and he summed up the future of the State of Illinois accurately: 'Politics and patronage must end as a way of life if our governmental institutions are to be reformed and rebuilt.'"

"If anyone asks, this is the reason why I run for election to the Constitutional Convention," she said.

AT 7:30 P.M. AND TRAILING by more than 1,000 votes behind her closest opponent, Mrs. Schroeder admitted that it was almost impossible to catch the two front-runners. "But, we placed a solid third," her husband reminded her.

The only thing that seemed to upset Madeline Schroeder last night was that her guests weren't eating as much ham and cheese and rye bread as she had planned.

VICTORIOUS CANDIDATE in yesterday's Con Con election, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, brought her campaign to Palatine last week as she greeted commuters at the railroad depot with a bagpiper flanked by campaign workers dressed in kilted kilts showing Macdonald is a good Scotch name.

Engelhardt: 'Did My Best'

"I did the best I could, and the voters have made their choice."

That was the response of William R. Engelhardt of Inverness last night after he finished fourth in the four-way race for delegate seats to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con).

He said he had no future plans for seeking office, adding, "I'm not a politician, I made myself available and thought I could do a better job than the others."

THE FORMER MAYOR of Inverness had run third in the Sept. 23 primary, but had not run an active campaign between the two elections.

"I had no fund-raisers, no campaign managers, and just went along in my own way," he said.

Engelhardt's advice to the victors, John Woods and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, was to remember that they represent the entire district and not just Arlington Heights.

He said he would "reserve the right to offer suggestions to the delegates" and indicated he would maintain an active interest in the convention's proceedings.

Engelhardt had been endorsed by the County Republican organization and by seven of the eight GOP township organizations.

Raps 'Cruel Tax'

Because inflation is primarily caused by government, it must be viewed as a tax, the cruellest tax of all.

This is the opinion of Republican Philip Crane, candidate for 13th District congressional seat, expressed in an opinion paper on inflation.

Crane blamed today's inflationary economy on deficit spending of the federal government from 1961 through 1969, the eight years of Democratic control.

Preceding his opinion on inflation controls, Crane reviewed reasons why there is an increase in the supply of money, creating inflation. The increase in the quantity of money, when in excess of the increase in the production of goods, mean more dollars competing for less goods, he explained.

"THE INCREASED supply of dollars competing for goods and services pushes up the prices of goods and services," Crane continued. "The result, commonly called inflation, means higher and higher prices for consumers."

Crane linked the increase in money supply to politicians who steadily raised government spending without raising taxes to finance all the new programs. He said most federal budget deficits have been financed by the government selling bonds to the Federal Reserve System, which, in turn, sells bonds to member banks.

"These banks then owe the Federal Reserve for the bonds purchased. Instead of paying the Federal Reserve with existing currency, these member banks create a new account or add to an existing account in the name of the Federal Reserve or Federal Government."

"Thus, money is created to pay for the bonds used to finance the deficit."

CRANE SAID CITIZENS try to keep pace with inflation but many are unable to meet the rising costs of living. Especially hurt by inflation are older citizens living on fixed incomes, Crane pointed out.

Crane particularly attacked federal farm subsidy as contributing to inflation, calling farm subsidy "federal intervention in the field of agriculture."

"What have the taxpayers received in turn?" Crane asked. "Not only has the farm problem become more serious, but federal price support programs have caused increased prices for food purchased in supermarkets."

LOOKING FOR solutions to inflation, Crane outlined a broad three-point program he would support as congressman:

—Work to cut the federal budget by streamlining government agencies which perform legitimate functions, seek to abolish bureaus and agencies that are not performing legitimate functions, seek to abolish any programs, such as the farm program, which cause more harm than good, and vote against any new, unnecessary federal programs.

—Work against any further federal deficit financing by supporting spending cuts, applying a budget surplus to tax cuts, tax distribution to the states or paying off portions of the national debt.

—Attempt to curb inflationary policies pursued by the Federal Reserve.

Asks Inflation Fight Sharing

Integrity of government must be restored before the public will be willing to share the fight against inflation, Edward Warman, the Democratic candidate for Congress said last week.

The state representative from Skokie suggested government set the example in fighting inflation in speech on the ills of the American economy.

Warman spoke before some 400 representatives of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education at the Old Orchard Country Club, Mount Prospect.

CITIZEN WAYS THAT government can keep its house clean by sweeping out wasteful spending, the 13th District congressional hopeful suggested cutting waste in government spending at all levels.

He opposed the income tax surcharge and called it "completely ineffective" in fighting inflation.

"The surtax just gives the government more money to spend and less incentive for spending money wisely," he declared.

He swiped at Pres. Richard Nixon, saying the President campaigned on a pledge of ending the surtax and now supports it.

WARMAN SAID inflation would be more effectively checked by reducing high interest rates, ending the farm subsidy program, eliminating waste in the military budget and cutting duplication in the welfare program.

He said a first place to start in restoring faith in government is to close glaring loopholes that enable special interests and the wealthy to avoid paying a fair share of the taxes.

"In 1967, taxes paid by millionaires averaged only 25 per cent of their total income," Warman said. "Twenty-one millionaires and 134 other persons with incomes over $200,000 paid no federal taxes at all."

"Yet in the same year, 2.2 million taxpayers with incomes below the government-designated poverty level paid $100 million in income taxes," he pointed out.

Warman said the American taxpayer sees the favoritism given to special interests and reasons that if special interests can get by, why should he sacrifice.

"LET'S NOT PUNISH people, let's find ways to make their lives better, instead of bitter," Warman said.

The candidate pledged, as a congressman, that he would fight against high interest rates which he accused of contributing to inflation.

"The cost of money enters into the cost of everything. And by raising the cost of money, the Federal Reserve Bank has been contributing to inflation rather than dampening it," Warman said.

"One of the ways the government can fight inflation is by maintaining a full employment economy. This must be the prime domestic goal of our government."

"HIGHER UNEMPLOYMENT adds to the country's welfare rolls but, more important, it adds to the human suffering. And a goal of government is to eliminate human suffering whenever possible."

Looking at the country's economic health through statistics, Warman noted interest rates rose at an annual rate of 14.4 per cent for the first six months of 1969. He said the consumer price index rose at an annual rate of nearly 5.5 per cent in September. The cost of medical care has risen 8.8 per cent since January and prices on meat, fish and poultry are up 13.2 per cent since January, he said.

"In June, when interest rates rose to their highest level since the Civil War, Nixon administration officials welcomed the increase as an indication that their restrictive monetary policy would begin to slow down inflation," Warman declared.

"But in July the consumer price index showed more than a seven per cent annual rate of increase. Part of this rise can be attributed to the extra cost of doing business that higher rates produced."

Welfare Hit By Warman

Thirteenth District Congressional Candidate Edward A. Warman called today for an "end to the degradation and tyranny and waste of the current welfare system."

In a speech at St. Paul's Church, Glencoe, Warman pledged that, if elected Tuesday, he will fight for a guaranteed annual income, for more jobs and better schools.

Warman told his audience his opponent in the congressional race is an "arch-conservative." Warman said Winnetka Republican Philip Crane opposes federal aid to education, opposes the Office of Economic Opportunity and favors giving the states veto power over the use of legal services for the poor.

Saying that if Crane is elected, Warman predicted it will not be just the black man who is hurt.

"IT'S ALL PEOPLE, black and white, who will suffer from his regressive philosophy," Warman declared.

The Skokie Democrat, a three-term member of the Illinois House of Representatives, pledged as a congressman, he will fight for tax reform for the poor and for significant cuts in the Pentagon budget. He accused a swollen Pentagon budget of being a prime cause of inflation.

Warman and Crane, winner of the Oct. 7 GOP primary, face each other on the general election ballot Tuesday in the special congressional election. A 13th District congressman is to be elected to succeed Donald Rumsfeld who resigned.

EDWARD WARMAN

Sees School Destruction

PHILIP CRANE

Philip Crane, 13th District Republican congressional candidate, has predicted many American universities will be destroyed by 1975 "if leftist revolutionaries continue to practice confrontation politics successfully."

In a speech before the Northfield Township Regular Republican organization, Crane cited his own experiences as a former university professor and visiting lecturer.

"Hard-core, violence-prone campus revolutionaries are determined to destroy higher education in the United States," Crane said.

"They believe radicals want to improve the university, when, in fact, the radicals have clearly stated their intention is to destroy, first American higher education, then American society."

Crane said the country probably does not need new laws. "But we do need genuine enforcement of present laws and prosecution of lawbreakers."

HE SAID WHILE persons should respect the right of peaceful dissent, those students who abridge the rights of other students must be prosecuted to the fullest extent.

Crane faces Democrat Edward Warman in Tuesday's special congressional election to choose a new 13th District congressman. Former Congressman Donald Rumsfeld resigned to head up the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

Crane Slates 2 Appearances

Philip Crane, Republican candidate for 13th District congressman, will make two appearances in Arlington Heights before Tuesday's special election.

Crane, of Winnetka, will speak at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in a joint meeting of six Wheeling Township Republican organizations. Sunday, he will speak at 4:30 p.m. at a program sponsored by the Arlington Heights Citizens for Crane Committee.

Both sessions are open to the public. Thursday's event will be in the Arlington Heights VFW Hall, corner of Yale and Northwest Highway. It is sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Club, Women's Republican Club, Young Republicans, Republican Workshop, Republican Organization and Teen Age Republicans.

Sunday's program will be in the Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, 311 S. Arlington Heights Road.

Following the candidate's speech, both events will throw the program open for questions.

Crane, winner of the eight-man Oct. 7 GOP primary, faces Democrat Edward Warman Tuesday in the congressional runoff. Winner of the general election will succeed former Congressman Donald Rumsfeld, who resigned.

Con-Con Group Asks Staff of 60

An office staff of about 60 persons will be suggested for the Constitutional Convention when it convenes Dec. 8.

The recommendation came from the staff and personnel committee of the Constitutional Study Commission which is currently arranging to provide informational facilities and secretarial assistance and meeting places for the delegates.

State Rep. Gene L. Hoffman, R-37th District, appointed vice chairman of the staff and personnel committee, said that assuming the convention will adopt staff requirements, the committee is encouraging and will accept immediately applications from interested individuals for the proposed staff positions.

APPLICATION FORMS, he said may be obtained in person or by writing to the Constitution Commission Information Center at Room 1315, 160 N. La Salle, Chicago, 60601, or Room M-1, State House Springfield, 62706.

Once submitted, applications will be screened and prepared for presentation when the convention meets and "actual hiring of the staff will be decided by the convention," Hoffman pointed out.

The staff and personnel report proposes an executive staff, research and legal section and secretarial and service staff.

The Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 19, the 323 day of 1969 with 42 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1863, President Lincoln delivered the Gettysburg Address at the Civil War battlefield.

In 1876, William Marcy Tweed, political "boss" of Tammany Hall in New York, was convicted of defrauding the city of about $6 million and was given a 12-year prison term.

Also in 1874, the National Women's Christian Temperance Union was organized in Cleveland.

In 1919, the U.S. Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles drawn up by the Paris peace conference at the end of World War II.

A thought for the day: President Woodrow Wilson said, "There must be, not a balance of power, but a community of power; not organized rivalries, but an organized common peace."

If your child can say "emergency" teach him to say it to the Operator.

Dialing Zero for help in an emergency is so simple a child can do it. And so important, every child should learn how.

Here are three hints to help you teach your child how to get help if he ever needs it:

First, don't hand him the receiver. Let him pick it up himself, the way he would in a real emergency.

Second, while you hold down the receiver button, teach him how to dial the Operator.

Third, tell him to speak directly into the mouthpiece, clearly and slowly, giving his name, address, and phone number. This part is most important so it might be a good idea to phone a friend so they can listen to your child's repeat his message.

We feel it's important for your child to know how to get help from the Operator when he needs it.

And we hope he never needs it.

We're a lot more than just talk.

GOP Congressional Delegation Gives Crane Backing

The entire Illinois Republican congressional delegation has endorsed Phillip Crane for 13th District congressman, according to Crane supporters.

A letter from 11 Illinois Republican congressmen congratulating Crane after his primary victory Oct. 7, stated that they believe it is essential that the Republican Party retain the 13th District seat.

"Your election is important, since we need every possible vote to move the President's proposals in the face of the deliberate slowdown by Democrats who control both houses of Congress," the letter said.

THE CONGRESSMEN said Crane's victory Nov. 25 would demonstrate the support of the American public for achievements of the Nixon administration.

Crane, of Winnetka, an author and lecturer, has been a researcher for the Republican Party.

The congressional delegation signing the letter to Crane were John B. Anderson, Leslie C. Arends, Harold R. Collier, Edward J. Derwinski, John N. Erlenborn, Paul Findley, Robert McClory, Robert H. Michel, Thomas F. Rallsback, Charlotte T. Reid and William L. Springer.

Crane is opposed in the Nov. 25 special congressional election by Democrat Edward Warman, Fourth District state representative from Skokie. The congressional

They also come along with a good story occasionally, and this one reminded me of you folks who never have had any business dealings with us.

It seems that on a questionnaire that airline stewardesses fill out for employment, there is a question, "Which do you desire in a husband . . . brains, wealth or appearance?"

The applicant wrote in, "Appearance, and the sooner the better."

The Way We See It

Kids Who Do Care

Suburban youth are lazy.
Suburban youth are irresponsible.
Suburban youth don't know the meaning of the word "dedication."

These are common criticisms, and — in some cases — they are no doubt true.

But nothing refutes such criticisms better than the general behavior of suburban youths themselves.

Last spring's "Hike for the Hungry" was a paramount example of suburban young people caring deeply about something, and transforming their care into action.

Two more current examples underline the same point. Both involve cases of youths wanting something for themselves, but refusing to be complacent enough to wait for someone else to deliver it for them.

Both cases also show just how much can be accomplished when kids — or for that matter adults — get together.

In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, the cause is lights for the Conant High School football field.

To date, there's been nothing in the Dist. 211 budget for such a luxury. But that hasn't deterred the Conant students.

Some 700 of them struck the pavement on a recent Saturday and paced off 5,000 miles to raise pledges for the lights project.

They totaled some $10,000 for their effort, almost a third of the money needed to get lights installed. They — through their Booster Club — have more projects planned, and have inspired both the Palatine and Fremd Booster Clubs to begin fundraising efforts of their own.

In Bensenville, the goal is a teen center, and the teens are intent on earning it.

With the help of the Bensenville Kiwanis Club, they're devoting both their time and physical labor to the project.

The teens are pitching in to build a house, and when it's finished in spring, it'll be put up for sale. The proceeds — which may total as high as $45,000 before expenses — will go toward a teen center.

The teens are proving something. Even more encouraging, so are the adults, whose cooperation is helping make both projects work.

The Conant kids were joined by coaches and the school's athletic director in their march, five policemen donated their time to help the walk move smoothly, and the Pure Oil Co. is offering $2,000 as an extra incentive to each of the three 211 schools.

The Kiwanis Club is coordinating the Bensenville project, the Bensenville State Bank has arranged financing, and the land for the house was "practically donated" by resident Walter Breiter.

There are lessons for everyone.

County Beat

Drug Fight Involves Young

by GEOFFREY MEHL

A group of so-called community leaders from throughout DuPage County were gathered together last week by representatives of the county law enforcement, prosecution and judicial systems, ostensibly to be shocked into organizing the DuPage County Drug Abuse Education Council.

While PTA, religious, municipal, police and press officials heard about numbers of arrests, procedure of prosecution and legal ramifications of conviction, it was interesting to note that no one in the room looked like they were under 35 years of age.

WHEN IT CAME TIME for some observations about what should be done to curb drug abuse in the county, the initial response from program leaders was to talk up how nasty drugs were in such places as schools, churches and YMCAs.

That's all well and good, but it's not exactly the market area for convincing teenagers that drugs aren't nice things to play with.

And by screaming that you can get two to 10 years in prison for pushing pot, you won't reach today's sophisticated teenaged audience.

Clearly, things aren't getting off to a good start, and it could be feared that this will be another ho-hum routine. Representatives of areas where "active" drug programs are in effect say their attendance is nice, and drug use is declining a little.

Geoffrey Mehl

They also admitted that one year hasn't really cut drug use very much.

ON THE OPPOSITE side of the fence, today's youth is in many cases naive, spoiled rotten, bored and just plain lazy. We're talking about the potheads, shooters and protesters and campus bums.

Their parents were careful enough to encourage them to grow up fast, too fast, while their society pushed them hard to get involved before they had the practical and academic knowledge to understand ramifications of politics, economics and sociology. They've received everything on a silver platter and are indignant when someone says "no."

I've heard too many times from teens a good idea started and then dropped because it was simply too much work. And I've heard people think that protest marches are more effective than political campaigning.

To an extent, that's true. Today's young generation has seen three of its idols gunned down in brutal assassinations, and two others politically assassinated by a city boss and a Texas political clique. Why shouldn't they be disillusioned about traditional political processes?

OUR VAST WEALTH has corrupted our thinking to the plastic, temporary, and cheap from the ideals of self-pride, honest endeavor, and personal strength. Courtesy of the Dr. Spocks, we've wrecked a generation.

Is it any wonder that the kids have returned to Spock's tender loving care, permissiveness and weakness?

The Mothers of Invention once wrote a song with the line, "... watch the Nazis burn your town then go home and look at yourself/you think we're singing 'bout someone else..."

Not Nazis, maybe. Just boozing, fat, rich and "happy" Americans. Man is for the most part a product of his environment. The environment we've created features not only polluted air and water, but polluted minds as well.

building fund increases, would cost the average taxpayer $33.50 a year, less than a carton of cigarettes a month, for those with $10,000 assessed valuation.

Something parents should realize is what will happen to their children's education if the tax increase and referendum fail. Board members stress the fact that they do not want to run a campaign on fear tactics, so they do not threaten taxpayers with what exactly will be cut if the proposals do not pass Saturday.

IF THE PROPOSALS are not passed a deficit of $1,604,135 will have to be made up somewhere in the budget. This means that if everything outside basic education courses and all special services were cut, class size would still have to be increased.

The board claims they won't or can't completely cut out all extracurricular activities and special services, which would mean an even larger increase in class size. And although they haven't announced what exactly will be cut and what won't, you get the idea.

All it will take to solve the problem is for voters to get out Saturday and pass the proposals. I'm not suggesting you vote blind. Read the newsletter that has been sent to you by the district. Listen to their presentations and ask questions, find out the facts for yourself.

But don't be apathetic about the referendum. After Saturday it will be too late.

Laseke: Arlington Garbage Rate a Bargain

In response to recently published letters regarding alleged "high garbage rate" in Arlington Heights, it is unfortunate that so much misunderstanding exists.

For example, a lady quotes rates per month of $2.00, $2.25 and $3.00 in nearby communities, implying that the current Laseke rate of $3.15 is an over-charge and that the "about $5.00 rate" discussed is an outrage.

HER INDIGNATION, based on surface knowledge, is understandable. However, it is completely unfounded when the facts are known.

Scavenger service can be provided at various different levels of service — from "maximum service" to minimum. Each community decides what level of service it desires, and sets up the specifications in its contract with the scavenger service.

In each case mentioned, the "low" rates cited are based on only once-a-week service (compared to twice-a-week in Arlington Heights) and are based on curb service, which means that the householder drags his own garbage to the curb, instead of having it picked up at his back door, as is done locally, which is much more time-consuming and costly.

We have no objections to changing to curb-type service — in fact, it would simplify many of our problems. This is simply a matter of community preference. We do not specify the "rules," and we are prepared to serve the community on whatever basis it desires.

SPECIFICALLY, regarding the "bargain rates" mentioned:

In Elk Grove, the rate was stated correctly at $2.25 monthly, which is based on once-a-week service and curb pickup.

In Des Plaines, the rate, as stated, is $2.00, on the same basis — once a week, at the curb. The 25 cents difference here results from the town itself (instead of the contractor) doing all billing and collecting, the cost of which does indeed amount to about 25 cents per family per month. (This is not necessarily a 25 cent saving to the householder, since undoubtedly he pays the equivalent of that 25 cents as part of his tax bill.)

Regarding Prospect Heights, the rate was incorrectly stated as $3.00 per month. Actually, there are 2 rates, based on a choice of type of service — that is, $2.50 for curb service and $3.50 for back-door pickup (compared to our present $3.15) and again both rates are based on only one pickup per week compared to our two.

Further, this rate includes a limitation of three cans maximum per week, whereas we make an "unlimited" pickup. This means that from many homes we pick up six cans or more each week (three cans twice a week) — plus, currently dozens of bags of leaves, and during the Christmas holidays Christmas trees without charge, plus a "Spring Cleanup" of mountains of heavy discards, again without charge.

Surely it is obvious from the above that it is Arlington Heights, rather than other communities, which has been enjoying the "bargain rate."

WE DON'T MIND BEING criticized for errors which occur from time to time in our service, as in any other service. But it cuts rather deeply to be classified as "robbers" when the fact is that based on the service specified to us and performed by us (that is, unlimited pickup, twice a week, at back door) our $3.15 current rate is ridiculously under-priced.

For example, the new rate in Palatine for back-door collection in cans is $4.00 monthly, for one pickup per week, within a limit of three cans per week. Note that our current rate of $3.15 is actually 85 cents less, far twice the amount of service. We pick up twice a week to Palatine's once. We provide "unlimited pickup" (which means about six cans per week compared to Palatine's maximum of three cans). We provide double the service for 85 cents less!

This fantastic difference in price is not because Palatine's $4.00 rate is too high, but because our $3.15 rate for twice their service is impossibly low.

If Arlington Heights wants, as in other communities, to reduce to once a week service, with a limitation on the amount picked up, placed at the curb in disposable containers paid for by the householder (as in neighboring villages) we will be delighted to serve the village at equal the "bargain rates" cited for other communities.

Should Teach Alternative to Evolution

The article by Lester Kinsolving of Nov. 3 entitled "Morality Guidelines: Adam, Eve" demands a response. This article is a direct attack against "Fundamentalist Christianity" in which the author attacks the stand of Bible-believing Christians on different issues.

Primarily, the article derides the Biblical stand against the teaching of evolution in the public schools. Your readers would do well to be enlightened on our stand. Evolution is simply a theory which has for years been taught to our young people as if it were an established fact. We do object to this form of brainwashing as an affront to the truly scientific method of inquiry. Our children are not given the alternative of creation. In case after case young people have been laughed at and derided in the classroom when they have had the courage to stand up for their beliefs. If your paper wishes to be truly informative on both sides of the issue, please give those of us who believe in the Genesis account of creation equal space in which to defend our stand. There is a great mass of scientific evidence contrary to evolution.

IN REV. KINSOLVING'S exposition on Genesis 2 and 3, he shows a monumental ignorance of Biblical interpretation. He asks several rhetorical questions which he wrongly assumes cannot be answered. I believe that your readers deserve an answer.

In Genesis 2:17 Adam and Eve did know the consequences of eating of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. They did know God as their Creator and could logically have been expected to know enough to obey His voice instead of that of the Serpent. Mr. Kinsolving implies that the Serpent was right in asserting that Adam and Eve would not die that day. May I point out that they did die that very day — they died spiritually and this finally eventuated in their physical death.

In Genesis 3:7 Adam and Eve were neither blind nor half-witted. They were in a state of innocence.

In Genesis 3:8 when God asked Adam and Eve, "Where art Thou?" He already knew where they were. He wanted a confession. When a mother sees the broken vase lying in the living room and calls, "Johnnie, what have you been doing?" she already knows. But she is confronting him with the evidence.

In Genesis 3:14 the snake was in all like-hood an upright creature.

IN GENESIS 3:22 the reference to "Us" is an early reference to the Trinity in Scripture — Father, Son, and Holy Spirit — in divine counsel. In banishing man from the Garden, God was not proving that He feared man. Rather, when we consider the depths of depravity to which man can sink in a mere 70 year life span, to what depths would he sink if permitted to live forever in an unregenerate condition. It was God's mercy that banished man from the Garden. Man's physical body must die in order that one day God might raise a new body unmarred from sin for those who believe in Christ.

In closing, the Constitution not only forbids an establishment of religion, but forbids prohibiting the free exercise of religion. When certain theories which are contrary to Scriptures are taught as fact in our public schools, we believe that this is a clear violation of this Article of the Constitution. It is not good science to teach unproven theory as fact. It is certainly not good separation of Church and State.

'Selling' Quality Education

by JUDY COVELLI

School Dist. 59 has a problem — it's called selling a quality education.

The problem arises because in order for the parents to provide their children with a quality education next school year it's not only going to cost them money, but it asks them to exert a little effort and get out and vote Saturday.

THE BOARD AND administration have worked many hours to cut the budget for the 1970-71 school year and still have it adequate to maintain present services and educational quality. Once the decision was made that a tax increase and referendum would be necessary even more time was spent by board members and administrators to inform the public about the referendum.

For example, Allen Sparks, board president, and Al Walkman, acting superintendent, spent three evenings each last week, attending meetings of parents and other Dist. 59 taxpayers to explain why the referendum was needed.

These board members aren't paid for the work they do, and the administrator's work on the referendum is above and beyond what their salary covers. All of these men are taxpayers and I'm sure don't want to raise their own taxes either without good cause.

If these men are so dedicated to School

Judy Covelli

Dist. 59 students then parents too should be concerned. It's their children's education at stake. Two of the issues they are asked to vote on won't even cost them any money — just a few minutes time to vote.

THESE PROPOSALS ARE a request to allow the district to sell $1,210,000 in bonds for construction and building improvements and permission to sell the rest of the 1967 referendum bonds at 7 per cent instead of the 6 per cent interest rate voted on.

The other two proposals will cost taxpayers a little money, but are essential to each student's education. Voting yes on these two proposals, educational fund and

Time 'To Dust off Those Electric Chairs'

It seems a grim irony that while one half million persons traveled to our nation's capital to protest the so-called senseless slaughter in Vietnam, these same individuals appear to be apathetic to this problem as it relates to our own streets, and this apathy subsequently provides an atmosphere of permissiveness for crime.

With the dawning of each new day, we are confronted with new strife and unrest throughout the country. Thursday, Nov. 13, was no exception. I refer to an incident in which two policemen were killed and nine others wounded in a raging gun battle with members of a South Side youth gang. Police had responded to a complaint that a man was walking the streets armed with a shotgun. The first police car to arrive on the scene was riddled by bullets from an unknown number of assailants. One patrolman, F. G. Rappaport of the Grand Crossing District, lying wounded and helpless, was approached by a gang member.

(Writer's note: a gang member is a person referred to by some sociologists as a frustrated and misunderstood element of society.) This misguided youth proceeded to blast Patrolman Rappaport with a shotgun from point blank range, instantly killing the officer. In spite of the magnitude of this crime, public indignation was not forthcoming. In fact, the following day, over 1,000 students held a memorial parade to honor Sergeant Winters Jr. one of the alleged "cop killers."

POSSIBLY I DWELL in my own ignorance, but I don't see the logic illustrated, when people protest the so-called inhumane actions of the United States armed forces against the poor misunderstood Viet Cong, and then completely overlook the asinine actions of half-wild savages roaming the streets shooting those men who have dedicated themselves to enforcing the laws of this country.

Dr. Spock, the famous what-ever-he-is, advises parents to remain cool and hope for the best. In essence, the best discipline is no discipline at all. However, the ever rising tide of crime seems to be proving Spock's philosophy wrong. Perhaps the time has come to dust off some of those electric chairs that have remained dormant these many months. Experts tell us that capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime. Possibly true, but since the time of the last execution, the crime rate has reached a new high. Most of this can be attributed to the fact that criminals and would-be criminals know that if caught they will be dealt a severe slap on the wrist.

Members of the clergy and noted "dogooders" tell us that capital punishment is immoral. However, God, in his popular best seller, The Bible, writes, "And if any mischief follow, then thou shalt give life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth..." Is God therefore immoral?

IMAGINE IF YOU WILL the dim silhouette of that young man, shotgun in hand, standing over the mutilated remains of Officer Rappaport. How humane was he?

Open 3 Volunteer Offices

Three new branch offices to recruit residents for the Northwest Cook County Volunteer Bureau have been established.

The bureau recruits, interviews and places volunteers in schools and health, welfare and social service agencies. The main recruiting office is at John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

One of the branch offices is headed by Mrs. Harvey Sanner at MacArthur Junior High School, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights. Her office phone is 259-4550 and her home phone is 537-4217.

The Dist. 21 branch office serving Wheeling and Buffalo Grove is located in the districts administration building, 900 W. Dundee Road, Wheeling. Miss Donna Obrecht mans the branch office operation and her phone number is 537-8270.

MOUNT PROSPECT and the Dist. 57 area is served by Mrs. Helen Becker at the Lions Park fieldhouse, 411 S. Maple, Mount Prospect. Her phone number is 394-4357.

The bureau has already filled many requests for volunteers through its main office operated by executive director Lois Moore and volunteer office personnel. Filled requests include teacher aides; clerical help; assistants in workshops, sewing projects and dental services; and lecturers.

Other volunteers are transcribing tapes for deaf high school students, serving as resource persons, helping with ceramic projects, assisting in school libraries and learning centers and serving as receptionists. High school girls are using their lunch hours to assist with a special education class in Arlington Heights.

DURING ITS organizational stages within the last year, the volunteer bureau established relationships with various agencies in the area.

Agency relationships arranged by Mrs. Joseph Braun and her committee include Northwest Community Hospital, Countryside School for Handicapped, Child Development Center (Headstart), Maryville Academy and Lutheran Home for the Aged.

More include Little City, Clearbrook School for the Retarded, Northwest Opportunity Center, Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization, Illinois Youth Commission, Northwest Suburban Cook County Health Services, American Cancer Society, the Arlington Heights Department of Health and the Arlington Heights Park District.

THE BUREAU has asked that any one with a skill, a special interest, a hobby, or merely the desire to help, should call one of its branch offices or the main office, 392-6051, to register.

The opportunity for service can range in duration from spot jobs to regular weekly or daily assignments.

From The Fashion Floor

He Sang, Marched In Seeking Peace

by MURRAY DUBIN

"Mr. Nixon, do you hear us? All we are asking is that you give peace a chance."

Folksinger Pete Seeger led the serenade to the President. And Dick Mateja, 629 Bob-O-Link Road, Mount Prospect, was there. To sing and to march for peace.

Mateja, who teaches at Foreman High School in Chicago, went to Washington last week because "I wanted to physically add my body to the whole thing."

"It's not that easy for someone to go to Washington and express yourself."

Mateja left on a bus at 5 p.m. Friday. Most of his companions were students from the Chicago Circle Campus. "The bus ride was slow and we hit bad weather in Pennsylvania," Mateja said.

"THERE WERE FOUR bus stops along the way but we couldn't stop at any of them because there were too many buses. We didn't get a chance to eat until we arrived at 9:30 a.m. in Washington."

Arriving in Washington, Mateja and a companion walked four miles to a restaurant. "There were so many people walking to where the march was supposed to begin, it was like a march to a march."

After eating for the first time in 16 hours, Mateja, walked with the masses towards the rally site. "We got to the rally site and the march had already begun. We had missed the march."

"THERE WAS NOTHING but people there with the Washington Monument in the middle. It belonged because it was there for freedom. That's what the rally was all about."

Then Pete Seeger led the serenade. After the singing, Mateja told the Herald that "the violent left marched to the Justice Department."

"It looked like more of them than there were. Most of the people weren't violent." The Chicago history teacher said it was cold and many of the people danced and linked arms. Then he described the Moratorium march finale.

"THE CAST OF HAIR sung 'Let the Sunshine In' and the crowd began to sing and dance. Then someone released about a dozen doves and they flew above the crowd."

There was some trouble getting a return bus to Chicago and Mateja's bus didn't leave until 3 a.m. Sunday.

Red-Hot Race in Men's Classic League

Four Teams — Four! — Tied for Top

THE BEST IN Sports

Sportsman's Notebook

by KEN KNOX

Illinois is not exactly Nebraska or South Dakota as a pheasant state, but it still does boast some of the nation's finest ring-neck shooting, and not very far from these suburbs.

The Illinois Department of Conservation — which seems to be keeping tab of pheasants better than ever this year — has come up with a Top Ten of pheasant counties in the state.

They're all in a cluster in East Central Illinois, including the farm land around Pontiac, Watseka, Champaign-Urbana, Lincoln and Bloomington-Normal.

The best of them is the closest — Livingston — and the rest, in order, are Logan, Ford, Woodford, Moultrie, Piatt, McLean, Champaign, Iroquois and DeWitt.

The conservation people have even pinpointed what are supposed to be the two most concentrated pheasant areas in Illinois — the region in Logan County between Emile and San Jose, and the spot where Douglas, Edgar, Champaign and Vermillion counties join.

Getting into this prime pheasant country is no problem, because it's accessible by two expressways. Interstate 55 (old U.S. 66) cuts diagonally through the western half of the area, from Dwight at the Livingston County line all the way to near Springfield. And the new Interstate 57, now complete from the city south to Onarga, runs directly into the eastern half.

The only problem is finding a place to hunt once you get there, because Illinois — unlike some states — never has come to grips with that problem. It's still a matter of getting permission from private landowners, a tricky piece of diplomacy at best.

There is one state hunting area in the cluster, the Iroquois County Area in extreme Iroquois County. But to hunt there, you need a special permit from the conservation department.

Anyway, it's great to know all that fine pheasant country is there, and just to drive through it is a thrill.

But it's not really necessary to go even that far. If you can get permission closer to home. Some good pheasant shooting was again reported in this part of Northeast Illinois after opening day Saturday, with hunters still bagging roosters in the little farm and marsh pockets outside of Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling.

The birds are still there, whatever we've done to drive them away.

And it's even better up in Lake and McHenry counties, not just because they're more rural, but also because the high concentration of hunting preserves in those counties has been a real reservoir for the pheasant population.

All things considered — the numbers up, weather holding, most of the corn picked — it could be one of the best Illinois pheasant seasons in years.

If a parlor game were invented that involved thinking up the most worn-out sports phrases of all time, some of the leading ones would be "up for grabs" and "anyone can win it."

As trite as these phrases are, nothing can better describe the current first-half race in the Paddock Classic Traveling League. And the saying "several teams still have a shot at it" — applied to the present Classic scramble — could rank as one of the biggest understatements of the season.

Yes, the accompanying standings ARE correct. No less than four teams are crammed into first place, and that may make this race closer this late in the half-season than any race has been ever before in the 12 years of the league.

For a time, the men's teams were playing "hot potato" with the lead. Now, they're all trying to hold on to it at once.

Can you imagine being two points out of first place with 11 of the first half's 16 weeks gone and still being in fifth place? That's the plight of Snack Time Restaurant at the moment.

It's all part of the mad, mad, mad world of Paddock Classic bowling, in as wild a scuffle for the top as you'll ever want to see.

Going into last weekend, the league was in one of those situations where just the right combination of circumstances, out of countless possibilities, had to occur for the results to come out as they did.

That bizarre combination somehow came to pass. It involved such happenings as the previous first-place team being shut out, the second place unit also losing, and two teams previously tied for fourth both winning shutouts to jet into a share of first.

A tense individual battle for first place also continues to accompany the team jostling. Bob Glaser posted a 645 series, second high of the night, to push his average just above 200 and sneak back into first place after a two-week absence. Ray Olson, who was bumped out of the top spot, is just an eyelash behind Glaser.

The other big news individually was Al Brown's blaring 662 series for Snack Time. That's the second best series of the season in the league and just three pins from the best.

Al Brown

Morton Pontiac and Uncle Andy's Cow Palace were the two teams coming out of nowhere with 7-0 shutouts to tie for the lead after previously being in a tie for fourth.

Morton racked up the top team series of the night, 2965, including a middle game total of 1024, in subduing Thunderbird Pro Shop. Glaser's 645 paved the way with other big contributions coming from Mike Wagner (623) and Bob Bennett (591).

There were also a pair of 600 marks from the Thunderbird group. Dave Wilk had 632 and Dick Schlapinski 604.

Uncle Andy's Cow Palace ran up a surprisingly easy win over the previous Buick in Evanston leaders, also getting a 2900 team series for the evening's second highest. Their second game of 1042 was high for the night.

Don Eherl was tops for the winners with a 614 series, while George Schmidt and Ron Reehoff each had 590's. It was a fine Paddock debut for Reehoff, rolling for Uncle Andy's for the first time. An Elk Grove resident, Reehoff had a 188 average last year.

Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant at the Flying Carpet Motor Inn had a golden opportunity to jump back into undisputed first place but had to settle for a share of the lead after a 5-2 loss to Langlo's Refinishing. The win moved Langlo's from seventh to sixth place.

Don Christensen's 639 was the match's best, as he racked up three 200 games, but Aladdin's was able to win only the first game. Ted Geiersbach paced Langlo's win with a 593 series.

Snack Time stayed close to the jam-up at the top by edging Gaare Oil, 4-3. Gaare won the third game and the team series, but Snack Time fashioned slim margins in the first two games.

Al Brown's 662 series was the key to victory, while Paul Borvig led Gaare with 624.

Kemmerly Realty Enjoys 7-0 Evening

Enjoy Running? Take Pick From Three Turkey Trots

A trio of turkey trots is scheduled for the area during the Thanksgiving season. Crystal Lake will host a turkey trot Saturday, Nov. 22, at Veteran Acres Park at Route 176 and North Walkup Avenue.

A race for high school boys will be held at noon (one race each for frosh-soph, juniors and seniors). A race will be held for men between 20-30 and for men over 30. Five turkeys will be awarded for the first five places in each event. Frosh-soph winners will get ribbons.

The Mount Prospect Jaycees will hold a turkey trot on Thanksgiving Day starting at 9:30 a.m. at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

There will be a race for 12-14 girls at one-half mile, a mile junior high race for boys, a two-mile frosh-soph race, a two-mile junior-senior race, a college four-mile race, a two-mile 28-39 male race and a two-mile over-40 race. Trophies will be awarded for the top five places and ribbons for the second five.

Palatine's turkey trot will be held Saturday, Nov. 29, at the Palatine Hills Golf Here comes Kemmerly!

That was the charge issued Saturday evening in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

Kemmerly Realty obviously has some very serious designs on catching pace-setting Sims Bowl in the stretch run of the first half competition.

Sims marched onward Saturday with a neat pickup of five points, but Kemmerly charged to seven in a sweep over Morton Pontiac and now stands only four shy of the coveted top position.

This is the picture in the Paddock Women's first-half race, a red-hot affair that has now moved into its critical latter stages.

Sims and Kemmerly hold the 1-2 positions, but there's still time for several other outfits to turn on the power and ignite a determined charge into contention.

Des Plaines Lanes, losing ground over the weekend, still finds itself only seven points out of first and with seven points at stake in every match, one big night could drastically alter the standings.

Lattot Chevrolet stayed eight behind Sims with a 5-2 conquest of Girard-Bruns, and Doyle's Striking, although 10 points down, still has the firepower needed to make a rapid climb.

Duchess Beauty Salon, Girard-Bruns, and Morton Pontiac round out the eight teams, but anything can happen in a league where seven points go up for grabs per match every Saturday.

But the big news last Saturday was

Winnie Lohse

Overall, Kemmerly showed a margin of 74 pins at the finish of the three games with Mary Lou Kolb's 558 and Harriet Fuchs' 553 (213 middle game) paving the way in a very balanced attack.

Lu Lass didn't falter after her booming opener, following that 200 with a 201-211 and 612 series, her top showing of the season.

Sims Bowl, while obviously noticing Kemmerly's charge, kept some breathing room between first and second by collecting five important points against Duchess Beauty Salon.

Team balance dictated again with Lee Winski throwing a 560, opening at 213, to pace the triumph. Jean Ladd was high for Duchess with a 592, a fine effort keyed by a 231 middle game.

A 911 third game, where four of the five bowlers hit 180 or better, enabled Sims to pull out the total series by 13 pins.

Lattot Chevrolet had some nervous moments but finally emerged with a 5-2 win over Girard-Bruns. Only 18 pins separated these teams at the finish as the Paddock division experienced one of its most closely-contested evenings of the season.

Donna Reinhardt and Lois Giesmoe shared the series lead for Lattot with identical 366s, and the two gals had identical games for the night, but in different order. Lois went at 170-179-217. Donna finished at 179-217-170.

Peggy Harris hit 562 and Shirley Schultz 561 for Girard-Bruns, and Jean Christensen had the high game — a 211.

The top series of the season wasn't enough for Des Plaines in their 4-3 loss to Doyle's Striking.

Winnie Lohse, a 182-average kegler this year, achieved a whopping 647 for Des Plaines on games of 190-224-223.

But that still wasn't enough as Doyle's Striking picked up four points thanks to a balanced attack, paced by Lu Schoenberger's 561.

This was another of those tight battles Saturday and only one pin was the difference in the second game as Doyle's Striking claimed a 895-694 win.

It was one of those heart-pounding nights in the Paddock Women's Classic! And the charge was sounded. Here comes Kemmerly!

Blacks in Congress: A Lot of Disapproval

by LARRY BRYANT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Black members of the House of Representatives are unhappy with the Nixon administration.

They disapproved of the continuing war in Vietnam, the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court, and the relatively low priority which they feel the administration has given to programs of domestic social reform.

Their critical reaction to the Republican administration may be influenced by the fact that all nine of the Negroes now serving in the House are Democrats.

But seven of them indicated, in separate interviews with UPI, that they would be dissatisfied with the way things were going in Washington even if they belonged to the same party as President Nixon. The other two were not available.

Negroes comprise an even smaller minority in Congress than in the country. Although about 10 per cent of the nation's population is black, only 2 per cent of the House and 1 per cent of the Senate is black.

Even so, the present Negro strength in the house represents a gain of 50 per cent over the last Congress. And the impact of this small but significant voting bloc has been increased by the formation of a Black caucus.

"We have twice as much influence as we've ever had before," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., America's first black congresswoman, said she and her Negro colleagues in the House are primarily concerned about domestic problems and feel that Nixon is giving inadequate attention to them.

"A definite commitment should be made to take care of the most important product of this country... human resources," said Mrs. Chisholm, who grew up in the Bedford-Stuyvesant ghetto of Brooklyn which she now represents in Congress.

Freshman Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, also attacked the administration's priorities. "Something is drastically wrong when a nation can set foot on the moon and cannot put shoes on all its citizens," he said.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., said it's hard to be sure just where the Nixon administration really stands on some urgent domestic problems.

For example, he said, while Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was giving Southern governors one version of the administration's policy on school integration, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Robert Finch, was telling Northern liberals just the opposite.

"The President should try to coordinate cabinet members who daily contradict each other," said Hawkins.

Harlem's veteran Rep. Adam Clayton Powell said the Nixon administration has not made one inch of progress since it has been in office.

"As a matter of fact, I didn't think it could move backwards as fast as it has," he added.

Powell said the President sent him a letter promising to do a lot of things to help black people and poor people generally.

"I'm still waiting," Powell said.

domestic programs are suffering because a disproportionate amount of money is being spent on defense and the Vietnam War.

He disagreed with administration officials who have said America couldn't transfer war funds to domestic programs immediately, even if the war should end.

"I think we can do it tomorrow if we want to. We could very easily cancel the contractual commitments with the big defense industries and pump the money back into the social programs that we so desperately need," said Clay, a 38-year-old native of St. Louis.

"I am vigorously and vehemently opposed to our involvement in the war in Vietnam. I think the commitment should be made immediately to withdraw our troops as soon as we can put them on ships and bring them home."

Rep. Robert N.C. Nix, D-Pa., called the Vietnam war "the most dangerous thing America has ever faced," because of the divisions it has caused at home.

Mrs. Chisholm said many black veterans returning from Vietnam have told her they are not coming home to sit quietly among the problems of blacks in America after fighting for other people's rights in Vietnam.

"I hope our government is aware of the fact that we're dealing with a new breed of veterans with new attitudes," she said.

Conyers said that ending the Vietnam war wouldn't allow the country to turn its attention completely to solving domestic problems. He said the United States must change its basic foreign policy, which led to American involvement in Vietnam. This same foreign policy of playing global policeman, he said, has almost placed us in another Vietnam-type war in Laos.

The black congressional caucus is headed by Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich.

The caucus serves as a coordinating body on issues of special concern to the black community. It is not a highly organized body, and meets only on central issues, Conyers said.

"Through the caucus, we are able to come together on major questions and exert our presence in a more meaningful way."

Mrs. Chisholm said black representatives are "not as close as I would like for us to be."

"What we need to do is to utilize the specific talents of each of us and consolidate so that we can be a force to be reckoned with," she said.

The eight members who make up the caucus recently issued a joint blast against Nixon's nomination of Judge Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

The group called the nomination a mockery, and said that Haynsworth had played a prominent role in the "15 years of frustration and delay" since the Supreme Court outlawed school segregation in 1954.

The only black House member who refused to associate himself with the caucus is Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill. He doesn't see himself as a part of what he calls the black movement.

Dawson is the senior Negro member of the House, and has been a member since 1942. He is chairman of the House Government Operations Committee.

The black lawmakers are confident that the next few years will bring a sharp increase in their number.

Clay predicted there will be two or three additional black faces in the House following the 1970 elections. Within the next eight years, he said, there will be at least 10 more Negro representatives.

Conyers said he hopes to see more black congressmen from the South, especially from Atlanta, Houston, Birmingham and other southern cities with large concentrations of black people.

Mrs. Chisholm said she hoped the new black congressmen will be courageous young men and women not affiliated with any political machines.

"Black people have been disillusioned and apathetic toward politicians, black or white, because they have always felt the politicians didn't respond to their aspirations, hopes and beliefs," she said.

Several black representatives said it is imperative that the American Negro become part of the system.

Nix said he feels the Negro is already part of the system, but not an equal part.

"As the black man develops politically, he will quickly achieve this equality, and one of the best ways to do this is through increased political participation," said Nix. "But this is not the only route," he added. "Blacks still need education."

"We may be heading toward equal opportunity, but this means that we must be prepared to compete on an equal basis. Education will give us this equal basis."

Conyers said most black congressmen agree on the need for four basic changes in American society:

—Elimination of racism.

—A change in foreign policy.

—An end to the dominance of the military industrial complex.

—A complete change in the economic structure so that there will be full employment, and a realistic assessment of federal revenues so that cities and minorities can begin to live decently.

Clay surmised up the black hopes when he said:

"We will see our greatest day when we no longer expect a man to be born in a segregated hospital, reared in a segregated school, married in a segregated church, die and be buried by a segregated undertaker in a segregated cemetery and wake up in an integrated heaven."

What makes the electric self-cleaning oven so cool?

It's a six-sided story.

Insulation is the secret. Only the electric self-cleaning oven is insulated on all six sides. So the heat stays inside.

Your kitchen stays cooler, whether the oven is baking a cake, or cleaning itself. And because heat and moisture stay in, meats come out juicier; cakes more moist.

Baking or broiling is faster, too, because less pre-heating is needed.

But the electric self-cleaning oven story doesn't stop at six-sided insulation. The electric kind is also more thorough. Why, it even cleans its own broiler!

Cool kitchens have an electric self-cleaning oven. How about yours?

A Castle of Hope

BY FRANZ HITTENBERGER

SCHLOSSHOF, Austria (UPI) — A sleeping beauty of a castle is waking up to a new future as a meeting ground for the youth of East and West.

The man behind the idea is Nikita S. Khrushchev.

The castle is Schlosshof, an 18th Century estate near this village of the same name. In the old days, Hapsburg emperors entertained their summer guests there and miniature sea battles were fought on its ponds to celebrate the victories of Prince Eugene.

Schlosshof is important today because it stands near the River March, about 100 yards from the spot where the borders of Communist Czechoslovakia and Hungary and non-Communist Austria meet.

Because of this, Austria hopes Schlosshof will become the place where young people from East and West will meet to discuss the possibility of a better future and better relations—and what they can do about it.

Khrushchev, the former leader of the Soviet Union, suggested the idea of an international youth academy in neutral Austria when he came here in 1961 for his famous meeting with the late U.S. president, John F. Kennedy.

The plan has been a dream of Austrian Chancellor Josef Klaus ever since.

This October, Klaus finally felt it was time to propose the academy to the European Council in Strasbourg, France, so legal steps could be taken.

A source close to Klaus said "response was overwhelming beyond hope" to his Strasbourg appeal.

The exact curriculum for the academy-to-be has not been set, but Klaus is pressing. General elections are coming up in Austria next March, and nobody knows whether Klaus will be chancellor afterwards. So he wants to get the academy in swing before then.

Authorities plan a research institute with teachers from East and West—at first from Europe only, later from all over the world—to deal with the "problems of youth, the generation gap and the outlook for the future."

Free Diabetes Test Kits Offered This Week

One American in twenty is a diabetic or will develop the disease during his lifetime, according to the American Diabetes Association.

Today through Saturday is National Diabetes Detection Drive week and diabetes test kits will be given to the public free of charge at hospitals, pharmacies and shopping centers throughout the Northwest suburban area.

Members of the Diabetes Association of Greater Chicago will staff a diabetes detection booth today through Nov. 22 at Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect from 10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

VOLUNTEERS will hand out diabetes test kits to be used by the individual at home as directed and then mailed to the American Diabetes Association for processing. All persons having positive tests will be notified and urged to see their own physician as soon as possible.

The American Diabetes Association is encouraging as many people as possible to be tested for diabetes during the annual detection drive. "The number of diabetes has increased in the United States by 95 per cent since 1960. This rising prevalence is due to the longer life span of the average person and the problem of obesity in aggravating latent diabetes," the American Diabetes Association says.

According to statistics compiled by the association, diabetes ranks seventh in the list of fatal diseases and it is the third leading cause of blindness. Undetected and uncontrolled diabetes can be serious.

The symptoms of diabetes include increase in thirst, constant hunger, frequent urination, loss of weight, fatigue, changes in vision and cuts and scratches which do not heal quickly. If these symptoms appear, the association recommends that a physician should be seen as soon as possible.

Jones School Rooms Ready

Dist. 54 pupils are expected to occupy the 14-classroom addition at Churchill School on Jones Road this week.

Churchill has been on split sessions since September. The school has an enrollment of 874 pupils. Although Churchill is in Schaumburg, the majority of the school's students are from Highpoint in Hoffman Estates.

Three classes at Churchill were meeting in the school's multipurpose room while the addition was completed.

THE TWO-STORY Churchill addition contains 14 classrooms and a learning center and is designed for the sloping terrain at the school site. The addition was designed by S. Guy Fishman and Associates, Dist. 54 architect.

The room formerly used for a library in the original building at Churchill is now used for a developmental first grade class and three small classrooms have been converted into two large kindergarten rooms.

To Speak at Viator

Robert Mooney, program manager at WIND Radio, will address the junior and senior classes of St. Viator High School Wednesday, Nov. 26, from 8:45 to 9:40 a.m.

He will discuss the art of radio broadcasting, the scope or variety of radio broadcasting, and career opportunities in broadcasting. This will be followed by a question and answer period.

Remember Snow Laws

Wheeling residents are reminded of the village's snow removal ordinance.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on a public street in Wheeling after a snowfall of three or more inches. The parking ban remains in effect for 12 hours after the snowfall has occurred.

The village public work's department has asked residents to cooperate with the ordinance so that snow removal can be quick and efficient.

The Lighter Side

Beat the Drums

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Every now and then I come across a newspaper or magazine feature about one of America's "dying arts"—old skills that are being driven into oblivion by our rushing technology.

Buttonhooking, for example, is a dying art. I doubt you could find one person in ten thousand who could operate a buttonhook with any appreciable degree of dexterity. And I could name a dozen others in a trice.

(Naming things in a trice, incidentally, is itself a dying art. There aren't more than a score of really first rate tricenarians left. And most of them are past their prime.)

Ordinarily, a reference to a dying art causes me no more than a twinge of nostalgia. But the other day I read about one that gave me genuine concern.

Before I branch it, let us examine the conditions underlying this onset of anxiety. Consider, if you will, that:

—Telephone service, particularly in big cities, is becoming increasingly inefficient, with circuits tied up when you need them and that sort of thing.

—Mail service, as even post office partisans will admit, leaves much to be desired and in the opinion of some observers is on the brink of chaos.

—Telegraph service seems to be shrinking and relies mainly on telephone and mail service for delivery.

When you consider these things you will perhaps share the feeling of disquiet that I experienced when I learned from the National Geographic Society that sending messages by tom-tom is now a dying art.

"Once the mainstay of primitive communication, village drums around the world have grown old and worn," the Geographic reports. "Young tribesmen from Africa to Alaska show little interest in pursuing the complex art."

Man, that is bad news for sure!

I mean, the way things are going with our other modes of communication, we need to have those tom-toms available as a back-up system.

"In old India," the Geographic says, "relays of drummers could send a message 300 miles in just 17 minutes." Which would be a big improvement over telephone, telegraph and postal service.

I tried to make a 300-mile telephone call a few evenings ago and it took me 57 minutes just to get past the busy signals on the area code.

As a precautionary measure, we should use federal subsidies to underwrite tom-tom training, and just to be on the safe side, we had better make certain the Indian smoke signalling doesn't become a dead art either.

FLUTIST JAN Prather of Fenton High School prepares for a Sunday concert to be held at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of Blackhawk School.

Fenton Concert Set Sunday

Fenton High School's Concert and Cadet bands will present their first concert of the year at 3 p.m. Sunday in the auditorium at Blackhawk Junior High School on Church Road in Bensenville.

This fall concert will be the first public appearance of the Concert Band since its concert tour of Europe last June. The Concert Band is under the direction of Fred A. Lewis.

The program for Sunday's concert includes both serious and popular selections. Featured will be soloist Terry Wagner, a senior at Fenton who has played the flute for seven years. Miss Wagner was a soloist with the band during its European tour.

CONCERT SELECTIONS will include Brahms' "Academic Festival Overture," Malcolm Arnold's "Four Scottish Dances," Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady" and Henry Mancini's "Days of Wine and Roses."

The Cadet Band will perform Verdi's operatic "Nabucco Overture" and Chabrier's "Espana Rhapsody," under the direction of Miles F. Vokurka.

There are 60 members in the Cadet Band, the secondary instrumental group at Fenton. Members of the Concert Band are chosen from the Cadet Band.

TWO OTHER BANDS were cut from the Fenton curriculum this year as a result of curtailments throughout all departments of the school amounting to $140,000. The Marching and Pep bands had to be discontinued because stipends for the advisors of these groups had been cut.

Also affecting the membership of the bands is the elimination of one period in the school day. Many students, in making the choice, had to eliminate their music courses. Two vocal music courses taught last year also had to be eliminated.

A BEAUTIFULLY APPOINTED Christmas table was a feature of "Holiday for Homes," a Christmas walk and bazaar sponsored Saturday by the women of Northwest Covenant Church, Mount Prospect. Hostess Mrs. Burton Dahlstrom used a pale green table cloth to accent her Lennox china and sparkling crystal. An assortment of gift items and baked goods were offered for sale in each of three homes on the walk.

WHAT TO THEIR wondering eyes should appear but a pine cone tree to show Christmas is near. Kathy and Natalie Kent are looking forward to the bazaar and bake sale set for Friday and Saturday at 12 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights. It is sponsored by the women of the Mount Prospect Mission of the Reorganized Latter Day Saint Church, Mount Prospect.

Advice on Getting Repairs or Service

Consumers: Protect Yourselves

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is no sure way to avoid being victimized by a dishonest or incompetent service or repair man. But there are precautions everyone can take.

Working to educate the consumer in self-protection are many consumer affairs experts from the federal government level down to national and local business groups and local and city authorities including the police and courts.

Here is a compilation of their advice: —Beware of "incredible" bargains — they often result in expensive repairs on shoddy merchandise. Bargains in service, for instance, offers of free "house calls" to look at out-of-order television sets, may end in astronomical repair bills.

—Be wary of unknown door-to-door salesmen, particularly in the home improvement field. A local man's reputation is among his most valuable assets. The fly-by-night is not worried about repeat trade.

—CHECK ON THE man you are dealing with. The local Better Business Bureau or a local trade association may know of complaints lodged against him. Others who have done business with him should be consulted, but this is not a totally reliable check.

—Beware of sound-alike trade names. If you want to buy the product of a well-known national manufacturer, be sure the product bears his name and not a close facsimile which can fool the unsuspecting.

—Get it in writing. Do not be satisfied with verbal promises. Anything important enough to influence your purchase or service requirement is important enough to be written into contract.

—Read what you sign — carefully. If you don't understand something, demand explanations until you do.

—CHECK CARBONS. If you are signing several copies, check each one to be sure it says the same thing as the master copy. Altering carbons is a favorite fraud among crooked operators.

—Pay attention to the warranty. Know its duration, what it does and does not cover, whether it pays for parts or labor or both, who performs any needed repairs (the dealer, a service company or a service center operated by the manufacturer), who pays shipping costs. Beware vague wording such as "lifetime guarantee" (whose lifetime?). Be wary of a list of exemptions from warranty that ends with "et cetera." "Et cetera" seem to break down first.

—Follow any instructions that come with your purchase so that breakdowns are not your fault. Don't attempt home repairs unless you are qualified.

—If your warranty still is in effect, call the firm responsible under it for repairs. If the repairman finds repairs necessary that are not covered in the warranty, ask for an itemized list. If repairs are not covered in the warranty, you may prefer to use a different repair service.

—Once the warranty expires, choose your repair dealer carefully. You may continue to use the same one, or you may prefer a dealer in whom you have more confidence.

—Always demand itemized bills. —Where practical, ask for return of defective parts that have been replaced. Reputable television repairmen, for instance, leave tubes they replace. In California, they have a legal obligation to do so.

—Always get an estimate in writing. If it is too high, you can call in another repairman. This may pay you, even though it may incur a second "house call" fee.

—DON'T BE EMBARRASSED to ask questions, demand explanations. If all else fails, make a complaint. In-

Peter Lutheran Church, the walk includes four area homes, plus the "teacherage" of the church school.

While each home is festively decorated throughout, each has one room that is being featured. In the Albrecht home at 1510 Monterey, Sunset Hills, Schaumburg, it is the kitchen; in the Oman home at 207 Aster Lane in Hoffman Estates, it is the bedroom; in the Schult home in Weathersfield, at 1624 Norwell, it is the living room; and in the Kropke home at 713 Norwood, Weathersfield, it is the family room.

form the local Better Business Bureau, or there may be a state agency which can help you. If you can't figure out which one, write to your state governor and his office will forward your complaint to the right place. Or complain to the manufacturer — some are very responsive to customer dissatisfaction. Find out who in the company handles consumer complaints. If you can't, or if you receive a form letter, write directly to the company president by name.

Others to write to include Mrs. Virginia Knauer, White House consumer affairs adviser; local consumer groups; the Federal Trade Commission where applicable; Industry Associations, trade groups or your local newspaper.

THE COURTS, because of costs and long delays, are a last resort. In some areas, however, there are small claims courts where cases under a certain sum ($300, for instance, in New York State) can be brought by individuals, rather quickly and without lawyers.

The basic advice remains what is was when the Romans were haggling with used chariot dealers — "caveat emptor" — let the buyer beware.

Built-In Board

Aids Ironing Task

Half the headache of ironing is the setting up. A built-in ironing board is still the neatest, simplest solution and takes up little space.

One can be installed almost anywhere—in the utility room, kitchen, or sewing room if you are lucky enough to have one. Just be sure there's an electrical outlet handy.

The board itself requires very little depth but you will want the iron at hand, and possibly other accessories. These may be set on shelves either recessed behind the board, or placed alongside, which requires more width but less overall depth. Either way it's only a matter of a few inches.

Piano hinges serve to let board and leg brace down in a jiffy. Concealed or decorative door hinges and hardware may be used.

Highway Suicide

Although poor automobile design is frequently at fault in traffic deaths, experts estimate that from five to 10 per cent of all automobile deaths are caused by suicide. Drivers steer their cars off bridges and cliffs, turn into oncoming freeway traffic, crash into trees or lamp posts, and their deaths are almost invariably written off as ordinary accidents, says Dr. John Edlund, a Kansas City pathologist.

Other drivers go for reckless drives in order to let off steam. Dr. Melvin Selzer, a psychiatrist at the University of Michigan, concludes that nearly one out of five drivers responsible for fatal accidents is suffering from paranoia (irrational suspiciousness with delusions of grandeur).

BUT THE MOST important medical problem related to automobile accidents involves alcoholism, held responsible by the National Highway Safety Bureau for fully half of last year's traffic deaths.

Natural death at the wheel also takes an unexpectedly high toll. Dr. Irma West of California's Department of Public Health estimates that natural causes, particularly heart attacks, account for nearly two per cent of all the state's single-vehicle traffic deaths.

Zesty Tomato Soup

Blue cheese adds zest to easy homemade tomato soup. In a saucepan, combine 3 cups of canned tomatoes with their juice, 1 bay leaf, ½ teaspoon of celery seed and 1 tablespoon of chopped raw onion. Cook 25 minutes over medium heat; sieve. Melt 3 tablespoons of butter over low heat in saucepan; add 3 tablespoons of flour and blend. Gradually add 3 cups of milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add ½ cup of blue cheese, crumbled (about 3 ounces) and stir until cheese is melted. Gradually stir in tomato mixture. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Heat to serving temperature. Makes about 1½ quarts, or 6 (1-cup) servings.

SOFT AND SUPPLE cotton suede with pony-markings gives a luxurious leather look to stylish separates. In Wamsutta's new fabric, the fashionable four were designed by Young Victorian for Arpeja.

Returns from Vietnam To Wed

Arriving home from Vietnam just five days before his wedding, Thomas Dale Hallberg of Mundelein, took a local girl, Terri Lynn Kindt of Palatine, as his wife. He had been stationed since March on a ship just off the coast of Vietnam.

The double ring candlelight ceremony was performed Oct. 18 at 1 p.m. at the Christ Lutheran Church in Palatine.

Parents of the bride are the Alvin E. Kindts, 239 S. Forest Ave., Palatine, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hallberg of Mundelein.

The bride, who was given away in marriage by her parents, chose a gown of white nylon sheer and ribbon flowers on lace. The bodice was fashioned with a stand-up neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The skirt was a modified A-line with a cathedral length train. She wore a headpiece of fabric rosettes with imported illusion bouffant veil, and carried miniature carnations and white roses.

MAID OF HONOR was Jean Nolting, the bride's cousin of Arlington Heights. Bridesmaids were Patricia and Peggy Hallberg, sisters of the groom.

The flower girl, Sharon Jensen, 7, of Mundelein, was the sister of the groom's best friend who was killed in February while serving in Vietnam. Her presence held a special meaning for the bride and groom.

The attendants wore floor-length yellow chiffon gowns accented with lace. The bodice featured an oval neckline and short puff sleeves, and the A-line skirts were styled with a full back. They wore matching yellow headpieces with butterfly veils, women wore corsages of white feathered carnations.

Best man was the groom's brother, John Hallberg Jr. of McHenry. Another brother, Frank Hallberg of Diamond Lake, and Pete Stenborg of Mundelein, were ushers. THE BRIDE'S MOTHER received the 150 guests at the reception held in the fellowship church hall in an emerald green chiffon over matching green sheath dress. Mrs. Hallberg also wore green, and both women wore corsages of white feathered carnations.

After a 2-day honeymoon in the area, the couple are now living in Long Beach, Calif., where the groom is stationed with the cruiser, U.S.S. St. Paul as a third-class radarman. He is a '67 graduate of Mundelein High School and attended Harper Junior College before entering the army in June of '68.

The bride is a '67 graduate of Palatine High School and also attended Harper Junior college.

More Than Merely Swallowing A Pill

San Francisco (WMNS) — A specialist in family planning has cautioned her fellow doctors that family planning is "not in the private domain of a few specialists," but is vital to the practice of all good medicine.

As examples, Dr. Mary E. Lane, clinical director of the contraception service of the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau in New York, cited a man with a heart attack whose wife should certainly not have a fifth baby, an "already overburdened mother" who should not have to cope with a grandchild and a teenage daughter, a young impoverished couple who should not yet begin their family, and an already neglected child who should not have another brother or sister.

Good medicine, Dr. Lane believes, deals with human relationships as well as illness or potential illness. Because of this, "more is involved in contraception than the mere swallowing of a pill" and doctors can help patients improve the patterns of their lives.

Miss Hancock Is Fall Bride

The colors of autumn filled Trinity Methodist Church for the Oct. 18 wedding of Corinne Marie Hancock, daughter of the Howard M. Hancocks, South Emerson Street, Mount Prospect, and Robert Adams Crumrine, son of the Roy A. Crumrines of Barrington. Bouquets of bronze and gold mums, white glads, and dried flowers and leaves decorated the altar for the five o'clock candlelight ceremony.

The bridal attendants were attired in autumn ensembles, their gowns of persimmon in contrast to the Victorian bouquets they carried of bronze daisies, orange carnations, fall mums and gold dried flowers.

THE BRIDE, GIVEN in marriage by her father, wore a gown made by her mother Enid-pro-styled with a high neckline, long sleeves and an A-line skirt with a chapel train. The gown was of deluxed satin trimmed with Venise lace embroidered in seed pearls. The lace edged the neckline, sleeves and panel down the front of the skirt. A Camelot crown trimmed with Venise lace and seed pearls held the bride's butterfly veil of silk illusion. Her bouquet was a cascade of white gladiolus and ivy.

Her attendants were all gowned alike in the persimmon colored dresses featuring a Venise lace bodice with long sleeves and satin trim and a gathered skirt of karate silk. They wore matching Camelot headpieces with blusher veils in persimmon and carried the autumn floral bouquets.

Another cousin of the bride, Daniel Hassell, 5½, of Villa Park, carried the double rings. Dr. Robert E. Matthews performed the rites, and Mrs. David Busse was soloist.

Lt. J.G. James Crumrine was home from naval duty in Sasebo, Japan, to serve his brother as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Christopher Peters, Champaign, and Robert White, Kansas City, Kan., brothers-in-law of the groom; John Benson, Barrington, and Frank White, Evanston.

AS THEY GREETED 155 guests at a dinner reception at Mount Prospect Country Club, the bride's mother wore a street-length dress of peach silk worsted with matching accessories and the groom's mother chose pale green brocade with green accessories. Mrs. Hancock's corsage was a pink cymbidium and Mrs. Crumrine's a yellow cymbidium.

The newlyweds spent a two-week honeymoon in the Smokies and New Orleans and are living at the Georgetown Apartments in Rolling Meadows.

The bride is a Prospect High School graduate, attended Harper Junior College for two years and works for the First National Bank in Mount Prospect. The groom attended Barrington High School, served in the U. S. Army and then studied at the University of Illinois. He is employed by Western Electric.

In Russia: A Camp for Sick Kids

by GAY PAULEY

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (UPI) —The Russians call it Solnyshko, which means "Little Sun" and the Western visitor cannot help being impressed at this example of how the Soviets care for their young in a child-oriented land.

Solnyshko is a special camp for special children, operated the year round for those with respiratory ailments like the aftermath of pneumonia, bronchitis, chronic colds. Not for tuberculosis victims, officials assured a group of women visitors from the United States. Those children go to another special camp.

Two thousand children from two years of age on through kindergarten roam the rolling, partially wooded 284 acres of Solnyshko, located about one hour's bus drive from Leningrad and partially paralleling the Bay of Finland so that there is a beach for summer fun.

LITTLE SUN, in its sixth year, draws children from all over Leningrad, the U.S.S.R.'s second largest city (3.6 million) and is the largest of several such camps in the Soviet Union. Leningrad's damp climate is one reason so many city children develop respiratory diseases, said Ladna Porfirievna, the camp's director.

In all, 54 buildings including regular classrooms, toy-filled playrooms, dormitories, kitchens and special rooms for dressing for winter or summer sports make up the facilities. Little Sun is free to parents, but costs the state 2.5 million rubles ($1,775,000) a year to operate, said Mrs. Porfirievna. Children are admitted on recommendation of a special medical commission and remain anywhere from six months to a year.

THE TOTS ARE divided into groups according to age and are cared for by a staff of 50-some per group. In all, there are 20 doctors, 142 nurses, 138 teachers, a dentist and a polyclinic on the grounds. Children under three years get special nurses, said the director, as she led our group through classrooms where little ones were staging folk games especially for their guests and on out to the spacious grounds which are a veritable fairland for exploration and the healing outdoors.

The camp takes the children from the parent for the duration of treatment. Parents officially are permitted a monthly visit, but unofficially, the director said, most of them come each weekend and many help in maintenance of the grounds and buildings. On a birthday, there is a party for the child and parents may spend the whole day. In turn, a parents' representative checks the children daily.

There's never any spanking. It is ruled out in the Soviet system.

Thrift Shop Open

A Thrift Shop is open every Thursday at the Community Church of Rolling Meadows, Kirchoff and Meadow Drive. Hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Children's clothes, fur-trimmed coats and other almost-new bargains are offered.

For further information, 255-5513 may be called any Thursday.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in November To:

1. Make a batch of homemade doughnuts. Let the children watch.
2. Prepare for icy steps and pavements, buy a bag of salt.
3. Ask your child to write a prayer of thanks to recite during Thanksgiving dinner.
4. Store ahead some butter in your freezer.
5. Resolve to have fewer clothes, but with each in immaculate condition.
6. Browse through a book on etiquette — just to brush up.
7. Consider whether one of your children deserves a musical instrument for Christmas.
8. Note this by Kahlil Gibran: "Even the most winged spirit cannot escape physical necessity."

Christmas Comes to Bensenville

The Garden Club of Bensenville will present a festive flower show, "Holidays Here and There," featuring Christmas on the moon this Saturday, from 1 to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Bensenville park building, Main Street and Church Road.

Tickets are available from Mrs. Harry Moormjian, ticket chairman, 766-2114, or from any club member.

Plans are under way for the club's annual decorating project at Bensenville State Bank. The theme will be "Ojo de Dios" (the eyes of God) which originated as a prayer offering by the Huichal Indians of Mexico and was brought to New Mexico by traders. "The handmade decorations have simple charm and are distinctly different from traditional holiday ornaments," said Mrs. Andrew Miedema, president of the garden club.

Sorority Activities

BETA SIGMA PHI

Next regular meeting of Xi Eta Rho chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Frank Rhoads of Woodstock.

A ritual of jewels ceremony was administered to Mrs. Herbert Peters of Mount Prospect at the November meeting held in the home of Mrs. Shirley Redmond of Mount Prospect.

The sorority will make toys for County Hospital, and will start a state-wide sorority project to collect coupons in support of a kidney disease detection program.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

A cookie exchange is planned for the Monday, Dec. 8, meeting of Chicago Suburban Northwest Alumnae chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. James Bowden of Mount Prospect. Co-hostess for the evening is Mrs. Richard Koopman.

The November Christmas auction was held in the home of Mrs. James Register of Park Ridge. Proceeds will be sent to the Robbie Page Memorial Fund.

Nine area alumnae were awarded the alumnae circle degree at the October meeting: Mrs. Tom Cooper, Mrs. B. Himley, Mrs. Don Janzen, Mrs. Karl Kubon, Mrs. Lane Lam, Mrs. John Mattoon, Mrs. George McCabe, Mrs. Glenn Pace and Mrs. Art Ruffino.

Officiating at the ceremony was Mrs. Thomas L. Jones, national collegiate secretary, who spent several days in the Chicago area to encourage efficient chapter operation and re-emphasize interfraternity cooperation.

Best Food Buys For This Week

A preview of the Thanksgiving turkey situation indicates that supplies are shorter than average and wholesale costs higher. There are more big turkeys this year, and the bigger the bird, the higher the value.

A 16-pound hen turkey yields 8½ pounds of meat while a 21-pound tom will yield 11½ pounds.

Fryers are in greater supply this week and about one cent a pound lower than last week. Retail markets are quoting 29 cents a pound for Grade A birds.

Egg prices continue high. Large size Grade A are selling at 73 to 75 cents a dozen.

BEEF SHOWS little price change. Blade cut chuck roasts are being promoted at 45 cents a pound, and round steak at 79.

Hams, smoked butts and picnics are seasonally appropriate buys in pork, which continues in short supply.

Fresh fruit and root vegetables are the better produce values. Lettuce costs less this week, but the quality isn't too high.

Other meat values this week are rump and sirloin tip roasts, sirloin steak, ground beef and brisket; pork steak and roasts, end chops.

ORT Sabbath '69

Countryside chapter of Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training) will observe ORT Sabbath 1969 on Friday at Congregation Beth Tikvah, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates, at 9 p.m.

In a special national observance service, a tribute will be paid to the global vocational education and training program of ORT.

Mrs. Irving Rish, president of Countryside chapter, explained the ORT Sabbath as a time during which ORT offers its thanks for what the program has been able to achieve during the last nine decades. ORT's networks have contributed to the rehabilitation of more than a million uprooted, deprived and persecuted Jews in many countries.

ABC TV Specials

Two prominent scientists will join ABC News for expert commentary and analysis of the two moon walks scheduled during the flight of Apollo 12.

Dr. Thomas Gold of Cornell University and Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will assist ABC News Apollo 12 Commentator Frank Reynolds and Science Editor Jules Bergman before and after the two 3½ hour EVA's by astronauts Bean and Conrad.

The lunar walks will take place Wednesday and Thursday. Coverage of the first EVA will air from 5 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. (EST) Wednesday. Coverage of the second EVA will begin at 11:30 a.m. (EST) Wednesday and conclude at 4:30 a.m. (EST) Thursday.

DR. GOLD IS DIRECTOR of Cornell University's center for radiophysics and space research. He is a leading authority on the lunar surface. The astronomer-physicist says he expects samples returned to earth by Apollo 12 to disclose whether the moon was scorched thousands of years ago by a flare-up on the sun.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker is the chief investigator of all lunar geology for NASA. He will compare the findings of astronauts Bean and Conrad with the scientific information gathered from study of the Apollo 11 samples. If possible Dr. Shoemaker will have on hand several lunar rocks from that earlier mission.

The award-winning ABC News documentary, "How Life Begins," which received one of the highest audience ratings of any documentary ever telecast and which gained wide critical and public acclaim for its sensitive and thorough study of natural reproduction, will be re-broadcast in color Friday, (7:30-8:30 p.m., EST) on Channel 7.

The hour-long special originally aired March 26, 1968, and was rebroadcast as a result of continuing viewer interest Oct. 14 of the same year. The program has become an educational classic.

"How Life Begins" has been honored with several major awards, among them an Emmy nomination, a citation by the Peabody Awards board, a special commendation of the American Medical Association and a Blue Ribbon Award from the American Film Festival of the Educational Film Library.

BASED ON THE BOOK, "How Life Begins," by producer Jules Power, the television special draws upon a worldwide body of scientific research and experimentation to portray the processes of conception and reproduction which link all members of the animal kingdom in the cycle of life.

Included in the program are sequences of unique film footage of the microscopic drama of fertilization; cell division within living organisms; the birth of fish, mammals and birds; and the development of a human fetus and eventual birth of a healthy baby girl. The special dispels many of the myths that have surrounded reproduction and birth.

Correction

In the review for Tri-Village Theatre Guild's production of the "Song of Bernadette," there was an error in the name of the girl who played Bernadette. The role was played by Dawn Ewert. Julie Fay, the name appearing in the article, portrayed the minor role of Jeanne.

Mail Gifts In Plastic

Mailing early is a must for Christmas gifts going overseas, and so is the right kind of packaging to get them there safely.

For food treats that are especially vulnerable to the effects of rough handling, delays and bad weather, the best answer may be the plastic food containers designed for freezer or refrigerator storage.

"With humidity the constant problem that it is in the Vietnam jungle, many service men have discovered a further use for these airtight containers," reported Mrs. Pauline Church, home service adviser for the Republic Molding Corp., Chicago.

"They use them to store and carry important papers, pictures from home — anything of value that must be kept dry," she explained.

OLIVER'S PUB, just west of York Road southwest suburbs of Chicago. All menu selections are priced under $3, and the restaurant has a seating capacity of 400.

It'll Be the Mount Rushmore of the South

by JACK WILKINSON
STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI)—"What we've got up there will be here eternally," Roy Faulkner said as he gazed at the majestic sight of the three Confederate heroes carved into the sheer face of the biggest granite mountain in the world.

"The only thing that can destroy that is man, himself. Erosion will never do it—not the way we're fixing it. This is the largest sculpture in the world. What we're trying to do is make it also the greatest artistic work in the world."

"We're trying to appeal to the farmer and to the greatest sculptor in the world who will be coming here 100 or 1,000 years from now."

Roy Faulkner had never cut a single piece of stone in his life when he undertook the huge project of carving statues of Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson and Jefferson Davis into the granite toughness of Stone Mountain, 20 miles from Atlanta.

Envisioned as a tribute to the Confederacy, the sculpture is laid over an area bigger than a football field. Its major figure, that of Lee, stands 60 feet high—and is larger in overall size than such famous works as the Mount Rushmore carvings in South Dakota and the Buddha overlooking the Min River.

The figures are so big that workmen often escape from sudden downpours by taking refuge in the open mouth of Lee's horse.

Faulkner, who got the job almost by accident but who qualified on the basis of his background as a steepjack-of-all-trades and his immense dedication, hopes to meet the spring deadline for the formal unveiling of the project, first started nearly 50 years ago.

Emblazoned on the north face of Stone Mountain, which rises 825 feet above the surrounding countryside, the project was started in 1923 by sculptor Gutzon Borglum. But he quit in 1926 after a dispute over finances and moved on to the Black Hills to create the Rushmore statues. Augustus Lukeman succeeded him, but had to stop when money ran out in 1928. The project lay dormant until 1964, when Georgia bought the mountain and turned the area into a state park. Walter Hancock of Gloucester, Mass., a noted sculptor and medalist, was hired to revive the project. Using the 11-foot-high model left by Lukeman (Borglum had destroyed his model when he left,) making revisions and models of his own, Hancock revitalized the project, which at the time consisted of only the unfinished figure of Lee.

Faulkner, a 37-year-old barrel-chested man who grew up only 40 miles away in Covington, Ga., signed on as foreman. He was there to help the carver. He wound up being the carver when the man hired didn't pan out.

"No one will comprehend what I faced on the side of this mountain, under these dangerous conditions," he said in a recent interview, after spending the morning buffeted by 50 mile-an-hour winds 600 feet above the ground. "I had everything set up, the scaffolds, the rigging, the electricity, the fuel lines—I put the elevator up in 28 days—all was ready for the carver. But he did not comprehend the magnitude of the job."

Faulkner asked for a chance to do some of the carving when the other man left. Hancock put him to work on Jackson's face. Hancock liked what he saw. Faulkner got the job.

In the 1920s, Borglum at first planned using a whole army. He projected onto the side of the mountain a likeness of his model, with workmen on scaffolds tracing the image onto the granite. The workmen hiked each day more than a mile to the top of the mountain, walked down 650 steps to the carving site and used air hammers, as did the Lukeman crew later.

Faulkner, who rides to work in his 36-story elevator, uses a thermo-jet torch, which resembles and sounds like a small jet engine.

One man with such a torch can do the work of 20 air hammers. Burning a mixture of kerosene and oxygen, the torch has a 3,500-degree flame which fires out with a muzzle velocity of about 2,800 feet-per-second.

Faulkner also uses mathematical equations to the utmost.

"Everything has to be done mathematically to scale," he said. "Everything on the mountain is 144 times bigger than our model. Every minor detail has to be gauged to scale. A small mistake could mean a whole area might have to be changed. Before, they were guessing. We know what we're doing."

He had to correct two major mistakes, both on the Lee figure. It took nine tons of granite, moved out and in during a perilous bit of surgery, to fix Lee's arm. He also had to restore part of Lee's chest by going behind the figure and bringing out a huge, rounded slab and fixing it in place.

On the ground, he spotted mistakes in Lukeman's model. The straps on Lee's horse, for example, were backwards. Davis' horse had one ear bigger than the other; his foot was incorrectly turned in the stirrup; Lee's horse had a lock of hair on top that "made him look like a unicorn." Davis' hat was wrong (this already was up and necessitated a series of changes). And, Faulkner, by now a student of Civil War history, saw that the model of Stonewall Jackson did not resemble the man.

"I knew the anatomy was wrong—the bone structure was not right," he said. "Stonewall Jackson was a lean, raw-boned man. Mr. Hancock did a new sculpture," he added, pointing to another model across the room. "Now, that is Stonewall Jackson."

Hancock never goes on the mountain. He does the model and acts as consultant. The rest is up to men like Faulkner.

"But, don't take anything away from him," Faulkner says. "He's the greatest."

The unfinished carving naturally is a major feature of the state park, which general manager Thomas Elliott says will attract 2.5 million people this year. The park's entire theme deals with the Civil War period and a series of plazas, one for each of the 13 Confederate states, is planned for the now open area between the memorial hall and the mountain.

White House Pool Must Go

by MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

The White House swimming pool, a 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue pool, in the early days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, is being boarded over to make room for additional office space, largely for use of the press.

Exercise rooms, steam baths, a room for pool equipment are being re-done as part of the renovation; a room for White House dogs and the florist shop moved to other locations. The expensive, colorful mural around the pool which was added during the Kennedy administration has been removed and stored away, should some later President decide to re-open the pool.

Using the pool area brings up several historical points or, in any case, interesting points of comparison:

—Both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson on occasion swam in the pool sans trunks and furthermore, talked business while skinny-dipping with associates (male) who were either in the pool or perched beside it. A vision of President Nixon, the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower or, for that matter, former President Harry

S. Truman, swimming naked and discussing business at the same time simply is impossible.

Both JFK and LBJ received callers in the White House bathroom, situated in the second-floor family quarters. While he was alive, Kennedy was not criticized for this because the fact did not come out until after his death. With Johnson, however, it was another matter. At least one Cabinet officer took high offense at being summoned into the President's bathroom. Others similarly summoned came away talking about it in amazement and before long, Johnson was being described around town as a dreadfully tasteless boor.

—The swimming pool conversion illustrates how shockingly short on space are the offices of an American President and his staff. This has been true for many years and gone largely uncorrected.

As a result, some of the highest policy-making officials of the current, or relatively recent, administration work in cramped quarters which a small-town bank vice president would find unacceptable.

The pool renovation will make it possible to move some of the ranking staff members out of the basement or out of offices which they now must share with other assistants and secretaries. This will be done by taking over the White House press room of many years and switching it to the pool area.

The Coup's The Thing

by PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

When President Nixon declared that the United States "must deal realistically with governments in the inter-American system as they are," he was recognizing the fact that military men now head nine Latin American governments.

They are Argentina, Brazil, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru and Bolivia. A civilian dictatorship rules Haiti and a Communist dictatorship holds sway in Cuba.

Three out of every four of 260 million Latin Americans live under military rule. And there are suggestions that the trend toward military rule has not yet run its course.

In the course of Latin American revolutionary history, Bolivia provides one of the most extreme examples, an average of one coup every eight months or 185 in 144 years of independence.

An example of stability has been Chile where the last coup occurred in 1932.

But among the nations spread out along South America's Andean Mountain spin, Chile also is considered a possible target for revolution.

Another is Venezuela.

A 24-hour uprising inside the Tacna military barracks in Santiago, Chile's capital, may have sown the seed, although its leaders declared it was against the high command rather than the government.

The soldiers complain that a lieutenant colonel in the army receives less pay after 25 years than does a beginning copper miner.

They complain their equipment is antiquated and inferior to the arms of two of Chile's neighbors, Peru and Argentina.

Politically, on the far left, a combination of Socialists and Communists is demanding quick nationalization of American-owned mining properties in the manner of Peru and Bolivia.

In Venezuela, a left of center government lifted the ban on the Communist party as a move toward appeasement of Venezuelan guerrillas and restless students of Caracas University.

It is making limited overtures on both the trade and economic levels toward the Soviet Union and other East European nations.

The new military men of Latin America are not the stereotype dictators of old. They are nationalists concerned with development and reform and opposed to what they consider economic domination by the United States.

ISU Dance Concert

Two area residents who are students at Illinois State University recently participated in the seventh annual concert of dances presented by the university's department of health and physical education.

They are Linda Levin of 233 W. Natoma, Addison, choreographer of "Katherine"; and Sandra Stull of Route 3, Roselle, dancer in "Days of Future Passed."

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701, Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138, Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045, and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 3,981 in his home township to 6,058 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,378 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,059 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 3,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100 vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,484.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

WOODS, THE FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, has been active in numerous government activities. He served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. A Republican, Woods also has served on the Wheeling Township GOP executive board and has been active in several Republican campaigns.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Woods also is a native of a southern state, born in Shreveport, La. He is an attorney, a graduate of the Georgetown Law Center, and is employed as vice president and general counsel of Universal Oil Products of Des Plaines. He and his wife have four children. Woods is 48.

HOPSCOTCHING ACROSS the third Senatorial District last night, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights greeted campaign workers who helped her win the second place on the ballot and a trip to the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Captains Did Work

Republican precinct captains did their work in Schaumburg Township for yesterday's Constitutional Convention election.

The two candidates endorsed by the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald and William Engelhardt, carried the township. Mrs. Macdonald received 1,650 votes and was one of the third district winners, along with John Woods. Engelhardt received 1,278 votes.

Woods was close behind Engelhardt with 1,210 votes and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder received 952 votes.

ONLY 15.8 per cent of Schaumburg Township registered voters cast ballots yesterday for delegates to Con-Con. The total number of voters was 2,586.

Schaumburg Township Committeeman Donald Totten said he was satisfied that yesterday's balloting was higher than the Con-Con primary of last month. In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald received 786, Engelhardt, 624, Woods, 394 and Mrs. Schroeder, 366.

"Our projected vote was 1,608 so 2,586 total is pretty good considering the bad weather and apparent lack of interest of the voters," Totten said.

The committeeman was pleased that Mrs. Macdonald and Engelhardt won in Schaumburg Township, but added he would have liked to have seen Engelhardt's total higher.

GOP HEADQUARTERS in Schaumburg Township was quietly efficient Tuesday with local results reported within an hour after polls closed. Precinct captains came in to check the results of their efforts.

Those who had knocked on doors or phoned voters Monday had the highest results, but even then only 25 per cent of those registered voted.

"How do you get people interested? Why don't they vote?" one captain wondered aloud. One said this was a "do nothing" election since most captains spent a full day at work instead of staying home and calling voters to go to the polls.

THEIR THOUGHTS turned to next Tuesday's 13th District Congressional election. Early in the evening, a beaming Mrs. Macdonald strolled into headquarters and was greeted with congratulations and kisses.

"You did a wonderful job," one supporter told her. "Thanks to all of you," she replied.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESELY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on South Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard toteboard, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

White smiled, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate, it duplicates the trials of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trial awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political freedom of the district came to shake hands with the top vote getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

"I THINK A STIFF campaign is good for a candidate... it is a duplicate of the trials of office," John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and now delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a big smile last night after tallying nearly 20,000 votes.

GEOLOGY BOOKS are examined by Eric Monson, 10, who will exhibit his rock collection in the basement meeting room of the Schaumburg Township Library this week. Children's hobbies will be on exhibit through Saturday.

Rap School Sites

Differences were brought out at Monday's Hoffman Estates village board meeting over who is responsible to insure that sites donated to Elementary School Dist. 54 are sufficiently buildable.

Village Pres. Frederick Downey read a letter received from Mrs. Mary Hannon, chairman of Dist. 54's building and ground committee. The letter told of Dist. 54's receipt of poor school sites in the past from residential developers in the district.

Mrs. Hannon asked that the zoning board of appeals assure that sites are buildable without the use of caissons before zoning is granted.

THE COST OF using caissons is prohibitive when building schools with Illinois School Building Commission (ISBC) financing formulas, the letter stated.

Plans Commission Chairman Richard Regan was then called on to speak on the letter.

Regan said he spoke to Supt. Wayne Schable Saturday and asked that the school district decide for itself if a proposed school site is adequately buildable.

"One man's pleasure is another man's poison," Regan said. He explained that the village cannot be sure a site is acceptable by the school district. It is the school's responsibility, he added.

REGAN SAID THAT Elementary School Dist. 15, serving Palatine Township, is a good example of a school district that is on the ball.

When Winston Muss made a school site offer at Unit III Dist. 15's architect and engineer were at the site the next day. The site was found to be unbuildable as it stood, but Winston Muss quickly brought the site up to a buildable level, Regan said.

Dist. 54 has been lax in this area, he added.

"I don't know how we can guarantee a buildable school site. It is up to the school board to do this with village cooperation," Regan said.

The question also deals with who should absorb the costs of soil borings at a proposed site. Dist. 54 maintains that builders are better able to absorb the cost which runs near $1,000.

Trustee Bruce Lind later proposed a joint meeting between the village and school officials at which the school sites will be taken up.

Jones Gravel Path Safety Hit

The potential hazards of the Jones Road gravel path between Highpoint and the Churchill School were discussed at Monday's Hoffman Estates village board meeting.

A letter from Mrs. Edward Tavill was read stating the path is dangerous to children walking along Jones Road because of heavy traffic.

The old route along Ashley Road is safer, she said.

Children tend to make a dangerous play toy of the gravel on the Jones Road path, she added.

Several residents of the Highpoint area west of Jones Road requested the path at the village board meeting a week earlier. The board approved its installation at a cost not to exceed $1,000.

The residents claimed the walk over to Ashley Road was an unnecessary inconvenience.

They preferred the walk be built on the west side of Jones Road, but construction there would cause a hazard to children.

In addition the west side of Jones Road is in Schaumburg. For these reasons the path was built on the east side of the road.

Another concern is that children walking to school still have to cross Jones Road twice.

Chief John O'Connell said crossing guards will be hired to protect the children. He urged that children cross at Hillcrest and Jones Road where the guard will be posted.

"Haste makes waste," said Trustee Edward Hennessey adding that the board may have moved too fast in approving the path. A consensus of the board showed problems still exist even with the path installed.

"As it stands, the path is hazardous," O'Connell said. The path was put in as a shoulder to Jones Road and runs from Edgemont north to Henther Lane.

School Dist. 54 is not urging parents to have their children use the path, said Mrs. Virginia Hayer, trustee. She said her information came from a conversation with Supt. Wayne Schable.

Trustee Bruce Lind then called for a joint meeting between the village board and the school board.

O'Connell asked if the path will be extended up to Hillcrest Blvd. where the children are to cross Jones Road.

Village Pres. Frederick Downey said nothing will be done immediately.

"We had a group of parents here last week who asked for the path. We tried to put it in quickly to satisfy them," Downey said.

"Now we have one letter criticizing our action and there is no one in the audience," Downey added. "I don't know what the next step should be."

Park Cancels 12 Programs

Due to lack of response from the community for a second time this year, Hanover Park directors were forced to cancel 12 programs planned for inclusion in the fall-winter recreation schedule.

Reporting to park directors Monday, Jim Kamradt, director of parks and recreation, noted that judo, bridge, couples dance, women's open volleyball and arts and crafts courses reported no registration as of last Saturday's deadline.

Gymnastics, men's volleyball, men's basketball, sewing, knitting, bitty basketball (seniors) and a third session of tiny tots had only minimal registration.

In recommending cancellation of all 12 activities, Kamradt asked the park board to approve refunding any monies collected from residents who had signed up for these activities.

Following the meeting, Kamradt told reporters he once again failed to understand the lack of interest in park-sponsored activities of the type cancelled.

"A few years ago when we offered all of these courses with no fee we had loads of people on the doorstep but I guess the picture changes when you start charging $2 or $3 for each course," he said.

In addition to brochures detailing the entire park recreation program mailed to all residents of the area earlier this fall, more than 2,500 flyers pertaining to registration were also distributed through local schools.

In other action this week, members of the park board approved a $100 expenditure for gifts, decorations and refreshments to be used at a Dec. 20 Christmas party co-sponsored by the district and Hanover Park Woman's Club.

Directors also agreed to purchase two artificial trees not to exceed a total of $75 for placement at Ahlstrand Fieldhouse and Longmeadows Activity Center during the holiday season. An additional $15 will be spent to obtain revolving spotlights for each tree.

Other expenditures approved by the park district this week included $150 for purchase of a Motorola megaphone, $150 for a contract to be installed at Longmeadows Activity Center, and $50 for two wooden desks to be placed in park offices.

Planners Act On 3 Items

Items concerning Century Towers, Multicon and Winston Muss Unit III were taken up at last week's plan commission meeting in Hoffman Estates.

A 50 foot right-of-way, with 37 feet to be paved by the developer, was agreed to for the Jones Road extension at the Century towers site.

The Century Towers apartments will be located on 40 acres adjoining the Vavrus apartments on Bode Road.

Multicon submitted papers dedicating its plat of open spaces and a 100 foot right-of-way for the Hassel Road extension.

A formal letter of agreement that Huntington Blvd. a north-south access into Higgins Road will align with the Springmeadow Road extension was also submitted.

MULTICON PLANS to build 2,100 units at the former Fieldale Gun Club site off Higgins Road in Hoffman Estates.

Their first phase will include 280 units to be completed by spring of 1970.

Winston-Muss Unit III will have to completely redraw their layout. Reason for change is that they agreed to dedicate additional park land. It will include a pond and buildings existing on the land.

Unit III is located west of Elm Road between Algonquin and Freeman roads.

Village Honors Champion Cougars

The Cougars of Conant High School were honored Monday by the Hoffman Estates village board for winning the Mid-Suburban League football championship.

Twenty team members were present to receive medals awarded by Village President Frederick Downey. Coaches Ralph Losee and Bob Ferguson were present with the team.

"You have brought great honor to yourselves, your families and to the community," Downey said.

Downey wished the team well for next season. "To those graduating, good luck in your further pursuits," he added.

The street running from east Thacker to Plum Grove Road was named Cougar Trail in honor of the championship team.

Downey had one of the new street signs at the board meeting Monday. The street runs east and west behind Conant High School.

Officer Friendly Begins 2nd Year

A luncheon for local police and school officials Monday noon at the Lancer Restaurant in Schaumburg will kick off the second year of the Officer Friendly Program in Schaumburg Township elementary schools. This program is supported by the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

Police departments in Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, and Hanover Park cooperate with Dist. 54 in the program. A policeman in each village representing Officer Friendly visits each class in kindergarten through third grade three times during the school year to talk with the pupils in his community. Officer Friendly also distributes coloring books to the primary pupils which tell about the policeman and his work.

The program is designed to establish a rapport between the child and the uniformed police officer in the community and to develop a wholesome image of the police department in the child's mind.

More than 6,000 elementary pupils will be involved in the program, including pupils at St. Hubert's Catholic School and St. Peter's Lutheran School.

Stroll Nets Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally. The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Rawls in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as one gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,981 in his home township to 6,063 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201; Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767; Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521; and Engelhardt, 4,484.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

WOODS, THE FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, has been active in numerous government activities. He served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. A Republican, Woods also has served on the Wheeling Township GOP executive board and has been active in several Republican campaigns.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Woods also is a native of a southern state, born in Shreveport, La. He is an attorney, a graduate of the Georgetown Law Center, and is employed as vice president and general counsel of Universal Oil Products of Des Plaines. He and his wife have four children. Woods is 48.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESLEY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on south Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard toteboard, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

White smiled, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate; it duplicates the trails of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trail awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political fiefdom of the district came to shake hands with the top vote-getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

HOPSCOTCHING ACROSS the third Senatorial District last night, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights greeted campaign workers who helped her win the second place on the ballot and a trip to the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Smiling But Weary

by MURRAY DUBIN

Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, was munching Mexican food hurriedly and extolling his virtues as the returns first began to appear on the big board.

Marshall Theroux was answering the phone with a cheery "Hello dear, it's Marshall."

Everyone else was sipping free premium beer and smiling at the favorable early returns at the Wheeling Township Republican Headquarters.

At 6:55 p.m., Virginia Macdonald walked into the fast-filling small room. Everyone told her to relax because it was all over and it appeared that she would be a delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

She sighed she was glad that it was over but that she wasn't ready to relax yet. Someone said, "One thing is sure, I know Engelhardt is out." The candidate and everyone else laughed.

SHE SAID she wasn't worried but, "I am really tired."

"The first thing I'll do tomorrow is to establish a telephone line between the voters and Springfield."

It was hard to hear her. Two adding machines, two constantly ringing phones and pleased Woods and Macdonald workers added to the noise.

Cowen was pleased at the results and the turnout. "There were less candidates with the field narrowed to four and people take the general election more seriously," he said.

"The primary showed us where we needed work and we did it."

Cowen bluntly added, "The turnout is never really good because what we're bragging about is usually about 25 per cent which is lousy."

WHILE COWEN and Theroux were getting the results over the phone, Republicans kept walking in the small two-room office and congratulating the smiling but weary Con-Con winner.

At 7:15, a tanned lawyer and state representative, Eugene Schlickman, walked into the headquarters and studied the precinct voting breakdown on the big board.

As everyone was congratulating themselves on a job well done, Schlickman began to hand out petitions for his candidacy in the next state representative election.

She Wins, Says 'Thanks'

by MARTHA KOPER

High on the list of priorities last night for Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, victorious in the Con-Con election, was saying thank-you.

While showing signs of a little surprise, she expressed her gratitude to campaign workers and those gathered at Republican Headquarters in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

"I really can't quite believe it yet," she said.

"It's been a good campaign."

And then, "All four of us have run a good campaign."

CALLING IT A CAMPAIGN to gain the confidence of voters in the Third Senatorial District, she explained, "We haven't campaigned politically. All our remarks related to issues."

Remembering back to when she first announced her candidacy in the Con-Con election, Mrs. Macdonald admitted a few things have changed.

"As I've campaigned, some of the issues have come into a different perspective," she said.

"One issue which has become crystal clear is the need for judicial reform," she said.

When someone reminded her the evening was a time to relax and celebrate, she laughed, "I guess it truly is."

But quickly added, "Tomorrow starts a busy time. I'm going to get going on that communication system right away."

AS PART OF HER campaign pledges, Mrs. Macdonald told voters she wanted to hear from anyone with ideas for the Constitutional Convention.

"I THINK A STIFF campaign is good for a candidate... it is a duplicate of the trials of office," John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and now delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a big smile last night after tallying nearly 20,000 votes.

SURROUNDED BY FRIENDS. Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of Arlington Park race track, attended the dedication of the new Boy Scout service center on Rand Road. Mrs. Everett donated $300,000 to the center and, in effect, gave a giant helping hand to the Northwest suburban scout organization.

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instruction in, 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

Safety Group Names Major Accident Areas

Five intersections in Buffalo Grove have been cited by a village traffic and safety committee report as the major accident areas in the village.

At Navajo Trail and Bernard Drive, five accidents have occurred in the last year. In an effort to make the intersection safer the village Monday agreed to erect a stop sign at the intersection stopping Navajo Trail traffic. The height of bushes at the corner also will be lowered as a traffic safety measure.

OTHER INTERSECTIONS with high accident rates are Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, Arlington Heights Road North and Dundee Road, and Arlington Heights Road South and Dundee Road. Four accidents occurred at each of these intersections in the last year.

Also cited was the intersection of Bernard Drive and Buffalo Grove Road. Three accidents occurred there.

Hackney's Is Robbed

Wheeling police are investigating a theft of $62 Sunday morning from Hackney's Restaurant in Wheeling.

Police said the money was taken from an automatic coin changer. The restaurant is at 241 S. Milwaukee Ave.

Park District Gets Some Parks

Buffalo Grove's two-month-old park district soon will be no longer a district without a park.

Monday the village board agreed to turn over four park sites in the village to the district. In doing so the board followed recommendations set forth in an interim report on park lands drawn up last week by Richard Decker, the village manager.

THE LANDS TO BE turned over to the district include the park sites at Longfellow, Cooper and Kildeer schools. Also, parts of Emmerich Park, including the park building will be turned over to the district.

Certain stipulations were included in the motion to turn over the lands. The board reserved the right to install water wells on any of the sites if necessary.

The village also reserved use of the Emmerich Park building garage as well as two offices in the building.

The board's decision, as well as Decker's report, came as a surprise.

Last week at a village board meeting, trustees decided to postpone a decision on the disposition of any of the park lands until Decker performed a survey of the village's land needs. At the time Decker said he would need two months for the survey.

In Decker's report listing his recommendations, he noted "Although I have requested two months for the proper comprehensive study to be made prior to any recommendation, I have concentrated my study to the singular question of what properties could be transferred to the district."

ALSO IN HIS report, Decker recommended that the lands he suggests be turned over to the district "at the earliest possible time due to the urgency set forth by the park district."

At last week's meeting the matter of the disposition of park lands was raised by Val Bettin, park board president.

Following an unsuccessful village board motion to turn over certain land to the park district, Bettin urged that the board "proceed quickly" on the land disposition matter.

Decker's interim report considered such things as the location of a future fire station in Lake County, the need for land by the department of public works and the requirement for possible additional well sites.

Decker also recommended that the Raupp Memorial, located in the Lake County portion of the village be turned over to the district. Trustees decided to hold up that transfer, however, until all stipulations concerning that property are taken care of by the village. The agreement turning it over to the village contains certain conditions dealing with its eventual use.

Strengthen Manager Post

Wheeling's village manager has a new set of duties and additional authority concerning village employees following passage of a new village manager ordinance Monday by the village board.

The board approved the ordinance unanimously without discussion. The ordinance had been revised at committee meetings of the board as a whole in recent weeks from a proposed ordinance submitted to the board by Matthew Golden, village manager.

Under provisions of the new ordinance the manager has the duties of implementing, managing, and coordinating board policy, and is responsible for overall management of village affairs, with all departments of the village reporting to him.

The new description of the job gives more weight to the village board's "commitment" to letting Golden "run the village" than did the earlier codified ordinance.

Important in the new ordinance is a statement of intent by the village board about the April referendum on the state statute form of village manager government.

The manager ordinance says that if village voters turn down a referendum to change Wheeling government to a village manager system as set up by state law, the local ordinance form of village manager government will be continued.

Wheeling voters turned down a similar referendum in 1965, but the village board adopted the local ordinance manager government and hired a manager in 1968.

Other provisions of the new manager ordinance include ones which give the manager protection against being fired within 60 days after an election, and give him a right to a public hearing within 10 days of his dismissal.

Requirements for the manager position have been changed to include a bachelor's degree and experience in public administration either as a manager or an analyst of local government functions.

The new law also gives the manager the power to "appoint, dismiss or suspend any full or part-time employee of the village" including the following department heads:

superintendent of public works, chief of police, fire chief, finance director, village collector, health officer, and fire inspector.

The manager may not remove any department head within 90 days of his becoming manager except with the approval of the board.

The village board retains the power to appoint or dismiss the village planner, village engineer, civil defense director and village attorney.

Drainage Problems Reviewed

Drainage problems on Coral Lane, Chestnut Lane and Sarasota Drive in the Highland Glen subdivision were reviewed at a committee meeting before the Wheeling Village Board meeting Monday.

Work on the correction of the drainage problems is awaiting estimates on the cost for the improvements, easements which must be granted to the village by property owners, and negotiations between the village and Highland Glen developer, George Harhan.

Trustees Peter Egan and Roger Stricker instructed the village manager to get estimates of the cost from Thomas Moody, Village Engineer.

CURRENTLY THE village is holding back all building and occupancy permits from Harhan until the drainage problem in that area is corrected.

Stricker told the manager that before the next set of permits for the homes in the development are issued, the village should require installation of all sewers.

"His problem is that he grades each lot at a different time and grades them differently and the water ends up draining into one person's yard," Stricker said about Harhan.

Golden said Tuesday that two permits for a garage and a well house had been issued recently to the Preference Homes Inc. which is developing Highland Glen. He said that permits on homes in the subdivision were still being held up, however.

Rec Vehicle Law in Effect

Inspections and enforcement of Wheeling's new recreational vehicle ordinance has begun, Village Mgr. Matthew Golden told the Herald yesterday.

Golden explained that the entire village has been inspected for trailers, boat trailers and campers which do not conform to the recently passed village ordinance.

Golden said that letters to homeowners explaining the violations are being sent out. He said that about 25 to 30 homes were currently in violation of the new ordinance with trailers parked illegally or not properly screened.

THE NEW ORDINANCE allows residents to park small trailers in backyards with screening as high as the trailer.

Large trailers as defined by measurements in the ordinance may be parked in back yards until next fall if they are screened.

The law also allows residents to park trailers in driveways for limited periods of time.

Information on the ordinance and vehicle stickers for trailers which are required under the new law are available through village offices.

Find Buyers for $4 Million Bonds

Bond brokers have finally found buyers for Buffalo Grove's $4 million revenue bond issue. Issued last January, the bonds have gone unsold for almost a year. Sale of the bonds will give the village the funds necessary to buy the Buffalo Utility Co., it has sought for several years.

Village Pres. Don Thompson said at Monday's village board meeting: "We're only a hair's breadth away from selling the bonds." He said the transaction was to have been completed Monday night.

HOWEVER, BECAUSE of certain technicalities the transaction will come tonight following a village board public hearing.

The bonds were issued last January through village board action. Because the bonds are revenue types rather than general obligation bonds, they were issued through a simple ordinance. No voter referendum was needed.

The village will pay the bond debt with the income from its water and sewer system. Thompson has said the utility purchase will not raise the rates now paid by those using the utility.

He has also said, "Studies have shown we might be able to lower the rates although not right away."

Shortly after the bonds went on sale last winter, it was reported that bond dealers had agreed to buy the entire issue at a negotiated interest rate.

But, the bond market became unstable, and the potential buyers backed away from the purchase.

THROUGH THE SPRING and part of the summer, interest rates kept climbing while the municipal bond interest rate remained at 6 per cent. Potential bond buyers were investing in other, more lucrative types of bonds.

Then an Illinois law was passed allowing municipalities to pay as much as 7 per cent interest on bonds they issue.

In August Thompson revealed that bond buyers were beginning "to make overtures" to the village for its bonds. Later that month, an agreement was worked out between the village and bond brokers giving the brokers an option to sell the bonds.

Also in August the village amended its original ordinance on the bonds, raising the maximum interest rate it would pay to 7 per cent.

Though the bond brokerage firm has required additional time to sell the issue, it has apparently finally found buyers for the bond issue.

The purchase of the Buffalo Utility Co., the purpose of the bond issue, is a goal the village has pursued almost since it was incorporated 11 years ago.

In 1966 the village was offered the utility at a cost of $1.3 million. However, the village was unable to sell the bonds necessary to raise the funds.

Then in August 1968 the village board and the utility company owners agreed on a purchase price of $1.35 million for the utility company.

Included in the agreement were provisions for the White Pines "strip" area and the Kilmer park site to be turned over to the village when it bought the utility.

Requests Books for GLs

A former security guard at Harper College in Palatine has appealed to Northwest suburbanites for reading matter for American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Marine Gunnery Sgt. Tom McEnroe has asked residents to send the reading material to the 1,500 marines and sailors he is stationed with on Hill 34.

In a letter to Sgt. William Carroll of the Elk Grove Village Police Department, McEnroe said the troops need reading matter, "ancient or modern, in any form, be it magazines, hard-cover or soft-cover books."

ENROE, WHO MET Carroll while a security guard when the college held classes in Elk Grove Village asked for copies of Reader's Digest, Catholic Digest, Coronet and other such magazines.

"Our marines and sailors love to read them," he said.

Interested persons or groups should send the reading materials to Gy. Sgt. Tom McEnroe, 116497 USMC, 1st 175 Gun Battery (SP), 1st Marine Div. FMF, c/o FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Mamie Declines Invite to School

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has sent a letter to the Dist. 23 Eisenhower School PTA, declining an invitation to attend the formal dedication of the new school in the spring. The Eisenhower School is located at the intersection of Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck roads in Prospect Heights.

Mrs. William Kaunzinger, cultural arts chairman of the PTA, wrote Mrs. Eisenhower requesting a picture of her late husband and inviting her to the dedication.

The school has received a large color print of the late president, which will be hung in the resource center. According to Mrs. Eisenhower, she asked the Presidential Library in Abilene, Kans. to send the picture to the school.

Mrs. Kaunzinger said the PTA remains hopeful some member of the Eisenhower family will be able to attend the dedication of the school.

Study Lights For Golfview

As the result of a traffic and safety committee recommendation, Buffalo Grove's village board is investigating the possibility of installing streetlights along Golfview terrace between Raupp Boulevard and Buffalo Grove Road.

A survey will be undertaken by the village to determine the number of lights necessary along the street.

THE STUDY COMES as a result of a traffic and safety committee report recommending lighting at the intersection of Golfview Terrace and Raupp Boulevard. The report maintains that several acts of vandalism have occurred in the area because of the lack of adequate lighting.

Thursday, Harold Smith, Buffalo Grove's police chief, said that most of the vandalism to which the report referred, happened last spring. He said it consisted of small trees being broken and residents' mailboxes being damaged.

THE COMMITTEE report also noted that three residents living along the street had requested last spring that lights be installed in front of their property.

Holmes Junior High Has Basketball Team

Seventh and eighth grade basketball teams at Holmes Junior High School in Wheeling have been chosen for the 1969-70 school year.

The eighth grade team, coached by John Broit, started practice sessions with about 30 boys. Coach Jim Messer of the seventh grade team reported 37 boys were at the first practice.

Both teams will be playing in 10 conference games, two non-conference games and one tournament.

Teams included in the Mid-Suburban Junior High Basketball Conference are River Trails Junior High in Prospect Heights, MacArthur Junior High in Prospect Heights, St. Peter's in Arlington Heights, Central Junior High in Mount Prospect, Jack London Junior High in Wheeling and Holmes Junior High.

Asks Local Unity With Republicans

Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, said Saturday he "wants to increase cooperation between the village of Wheeling and the Republican organization in any way that we can."

Cowen, who made his remarks before a speech by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip Crane at the Clayton House Saturday night, asked area residents to tell him how the organization "can do a better job in Wheeling."

COWEN COMMENTED several times about "the great people in Wheeling" and called last summer's Wheeling Diamond Jubilee parade the "greatest parade ever in the township."

Cowen and Crane spoke to a group of 35 Wheeling and Wheeling Township residents including State Sen. John Graham, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, Con-Con candidate; Wheeling Trustee John Koepfen; township committeewoman, Veva Meyer, Ron Cole, president of the Dist. 21 school board, and Merle Willis, township auditor.

Apollo 'Ready To Go'

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 12's moon orbiting space pilots reported everything "ready to go" yesterday for America's second lunar landing, but kept a wary eye out for radiation from a solar flare "bigger than the earth's surface."

Several discordant notes were sounded in the final crucial hours of the landing mission, but none was considered serious. The lunar landing was scheduled for 1:53 a.m. EST today.

Trade Relief Asked

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress yesterday to give more relief to U.S. industries hurt by imports and to broaden his retaliatory powers against unfair foreign competition.

Nixon pledged his administration to continuing a policy of freer world trade, but observed that this country no longer dominates world markets and that other countries are now fully competitive.

Showdown Vote Is Set

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans relented yesterday in their demand for delay and agreed to a showdown vote Friday on the controversial nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

If Democratic membership follows Senate leader Mike Mansfield's willingness to go along with the GOP proposal, the crucial roll call following three months of debate probably will come at about noon Friday.

Stroll Nets Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally.

The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Rawls in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as one gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 18.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,981 in his home township of 9,058 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,059 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,484.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

WOODS, THE FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, has been active in numerous government activities. He served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. A Republican, Woods also has served on the Wheeling Township GOP executive board and has been active in several Republican campaigns.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Woods also is a native of a southern state, born in Shreveport, La. He is an attorney, a graduate of the Georgetown Law Center, and is employed as vice president and general counsel of Universal Oil Products of Des Plaines. He and his wife have four children. Woods is 48.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESELY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on south Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard toteboard, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

White smiled, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate; it duplicates the trails of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trail awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political field of the district came to shake hands with the top vote-getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

HOPSCOTCHING ACROSS the third Senatorial District last night, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights greeted campaign workers who helped her win the second place on the ballot and a trip to the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Smiling But Weary

by MURRAY DUBIN

Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, was munching Mexican food hurriedly and extolling its virtues as the returns first began to appear on the big board.

Marshall Theroux was answering the phone with a cheery "Hello dear, it's Marshall."

Everyone else was sipping free premium beer and smiling at the favorable early returns at the Wheeling Township Republican Headquarters.

At 8:55 p.m., Virginia Macdonald walked into the fast-filling small room. Everyone told her to relax because it was all over and it appeared that she would be a delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

She sighed she was glad that it was over but that she wasn't ready to relax yet. Someone said, "One thing is sure, I know Engelhardt is out." The candidate and everyone else laughed.

SHE SAID she wasn't worried but, "I am really tired."

"The first thing I'll do tomorrow is to establish a telephone line between the voters and Springfield."

It was hard to hear her. Two adding machines, two constantly ringing phones and pleased Woods and Macdonald workers added to the noise.

Cowen was pleased at the results and the turnout. "There were less candidates with the field narrowed to four and people take the general election more seriously," he said.

"The primary showed us where we needed work and we did it."

Cowen bluntly added, "The turnout is never really good because what we're bragging about is usually about 25 percent which is lousy."

WHILE COWEN and Theroux were getting the results over the phone, Republicans kept walking in the small two-room office and congratulating the smiling but weary Con-Con winner.

At 7:15, a tanned lawyer and state representative, Eugene Schlickman, walked into the headquarters and studied the precinct voting breakdown on the big board.

As everyone was congratulating themselves on a job well done, Schlickman began to hand out petitions for his candidacy in the next state representative election.

She Wins, Says 'Thanks'

by MARTHA KOPER

High on the list of priorities last night for Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, victorious in the Con-Con election, was saying thank-you.

While showing signs of a little surprise, she expressed her gratitude to campaign workers and those gathered at Republican Headquarters in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

"I really can't quite believe it yet," she said.

"It's been a good campaign."

And then, "All four of us have run a good campaign."

CALLING IT A CAMPAIGN to gain the confidence of voters in the Third Senatorial District, she explained, "We haven't campaigned politically. All our remarks related to issues."

Remembering back to when she first announced her candidacy in the Con-Con election, Mrs. Macdonald admitted a few things have changed.

"As I've campaigned, some of the issues have come into a different perspective," she said.

"One issue which has become crystal clear is the need for judicial reform," she said.

When someone reminded her the evening was a time to relax and celebrate, she laughed, "I guess it truly is."

But quickly added, "Tomorrow starts a busy time. I'm going to get going on that communication system right away."

AS PART OF HER campaign pledges, Mrs. Macdonald told voters she wanted to hear from anyone with ideas for the Constitutional Convention.

"So, I'll be calling the telephone company first thing in the morning," she said.

In addition to providing direct lines to her while she's attending the convention, she also hopes to provide communication lines within the northwest suburbs.

"Until then, my home phone number is available," she said.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS several hours after the polls closed before she would accept the fact she was the second top vote-getter, Mrs. Macdonald eventually started thinking about her trip to Springfield.

Her cautious optimism stemmed from the Con-Con primary in September when she had to leave town before all the votes were counted.

"Even though I still won, the final results were a lot different than when I flew out of Chicago that night," she smiled.

"I THINK A STIFF campaign is good for a candidate... it is a duplicate of the trials of office," John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and now delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a big smile last night after tallying nearly 20,000 votes.

SURROUNDED BY FRIENDS, Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of Arlington Park race track, attended the dedication of the new Boy Scout service center on Rand Road. Mrs. Everett donated $300,000 to the center and, in effect, gave a giant helping hand to the Northwest suburban scout organization.

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instructions in, 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

Safety Group Names Major Accident Areas

Five intersections in Buffalo Grove have been cited by a village traffic and safety committee report as the major accident areas in the village.

At Navajo Trail and Bernard Drive, five accidents have occurred in the last year.

In an effort to make the intersection safer the village Monday agreed to erect a stop sign at the intersection stopping Navajo Trail traffic. The height of bushes at the corner also will be lowered as a traffic safety measure.

OTHER INTERSECTIONS with high accident rates are Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, Arlington Heights Road North and Dundee Road, and Arlington Heights Road South and Dundee Road. Four accidents occurred at each of these intersections in the last year.

Also cited was the intersection of Bernard Drive and Buffalo Grove Road. Three accidents occurred there.

Hackney's Is Robbed

Wheeling police are investigating a theft of $62 Sunday morning from Hackney's Restaurant in Wheeling.

Police said the money was taken from an automatic coin changer. The restaurant is at 241 S. Milwaukee Ave.

Scout service center on Rand Road. Mrs. Everett donated $300,000 to the center and, in effect, gave a giant helping hand to the Northwest suburban scout organization.

At the bottom of the letter was a post card, which the letter writers asked recipients to mail to Ken Gill, Dist. 21 superintendent.

The message on the post card called for an immediate end to the family living and sex education program in Dist. 21.

Call Special Sewer Session

Wheeling Township's board of auditors yesterday called a special town meeting for Dec. 9 to consider a sewer easement through township property.

The easement is one part of a storm water drainage system affecting several residential developments along Buffalo Grove Road, just north of Hintz Road.

The board agreed on the meeting after Richard Cowen, township attorney, told the auditors, "It doesn't appear likely that either of the adjoining property owners would grant the easement without substantial monetary consideration."

THE EASEMENT, to run south along the west side of the township garage at 2430 Hintz Road, would be used for a sanitary sewer and a storm sewer to carry water from four residential developments.

The board also acted on Cowen's advice to hire the engineering firm of Baxter and Woodman of Crystal Lake to study the granting of the easement from the township's point of view for "the protection of existing township property, and to report to the board prior to the Dec. 9 special meeting."

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield Builders Corp., developer of one of the four residential projects that would benefit from the easement, agreed to pay the costs of the township engineer's fee.

The sewer plan involving the easement is the result of several lawsuits over the storm water drainage of the Cambridge subdivision in Buffalo Grove. Hillman had requested the easement earlier this fall, but the auditors delayed a decision until the possibility of using adjoining property had been eliminated.

THE PROPOSED sewer is part of a plan to drain part of the Cambridge subdivision, Chesterfield's proposed Tahoe subdivision in Wheeling, the Mallard Lake planned development in Wheeling, and property on Hintz Road, being developed by Zule Builders.

Recognition Planned

A recognition dinner for adult leaders in the Mount Prospect-Prospect Heights Camp Fire Girl District will be held at the Prospect House Restaurant in Mount Prospect Dec. 5.

Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

The dinner is to honor all adult Camp Fire leaders and the district plan group. A new district committee is expected to be appointed at the meeting. Mrs. James Metzger is district chairman.

Park District Gets Some Parks

Buffalo Grove's two-month-old park district soon will be no longer a district without a park.

Monday the village board agreed to turn over four park sites in the village to the district. In doing so the board followed recommendations set forth in an interim report on park lands drawn up last week by Richard Decker, the village manager.

THE LANDS TO BE turned over to the district include the park sites at Longfellow, Cooper and Kildeer schools. Also, parts of Emmerich Park, including the park building will be turned over to the district.

Certain stipulations were included in the motion to turn over the lands. The board reserved the right to install water wells on any of the sites if necessary.

The village also reserved use of the Emmerich Park building garage as well as two offices in the building.

The board's decision, as well as Decker's report, came as a surprise.

Last week at a village board meeting, trustees decided to postpone a decision on the disposition of any of the park lands until Decker performed a survey of the village's land needs. At the time Decker said he would need two months for the survey.

In Decker's report listing his recommendations, he noted "Although I have requested two months for the proper comprehensive study to be made prior to any recommendation, I have concentrated my study to the singular question of what properties could be transferred to the district."

ALSO IN HIS report, Decker recommended that the lands he suggests be turned over to the district "at the earliest possible time due to the urgency set forth by the park district."

At last week's meeting the matter of the disposition of park lands was raised by Val Bettin, park board president.

Following an unsuccessful village board motion to turn over certain land to the park district, Bettin urged that the board "proceed quickly" on the land disposition matter.

Decker's interim report considered such things as the location of a future fire station in Lake County, the need for land by the department of public works and the requirement for possible additional well sites.

Decker also recommended that the Raupp Memorial, located in the Lake County portion of the village be turned over to the district. Trustees decided to hold up that transfer, however, until all stipulations concerning that property are taken care of by the village. The agreement turning it over to the village contains certain conditions dealing with its eventual use.

Strengthen Manager Post

Wheeling's village manager has a new set of duties and additional authority concerning village employees following passage of a new village manager ordinance Monday by the village board.

The board approved the ordinance unanimously without discussion. The ordinance had been revised at committee meetings of the board as a whole in recent weeks from a proposed ordinance submitted to the board by Matthew Golden, village manager.

Under provisions of the new ordinance the manager has the duties of implementing, managing, and coordinating board policy, and is responsible for overall management of village affairs, with all departments of the village reporting to him.

The new description of the job gives more weight to the village board's "commitment" to letting Golden "run the village" than did the earlier codified ordinance.

Important in the new ordinance is a statement of intent by the village board about the April referendum on the state statute form of village manager government.

The manager ordinance says that if village voters turn down a referendum to change Wheeling government to a village manager system as set up by state law, the local ordinance form of village manager government will be continued.

Wheeling voters turned down a similar referendum in 1965, but the village board adopted the local ordinance manager government and hired a manager in 1966.

Other provisions of the new manager ordinance include ones which give the manager protection against being fired within 60 days after an election, and give him a right to a public hearing within 10 days of his dismissal.

Requirements for the manager position have been changed to include a bachelor's degree and experience in public administration either as a manager or an analyst of local government functions.

The new law also gives the manager the power to "appoint, dismiss or suspend any full or part-time employee of the village" including the following department heads:

superintendent of public works, chief of police, fire chief, finance director, village collector, health officer, and fire inspector.

The manager may not remove any department head within 90 days of his becoming manager except with the approval of the board.

The village board retains the power to appoint or dismiss the village planner, village engineer, civil defense director and village attorney.

Drainage Problems Reviewed

Drainage problems on Coral Lane, Chestnut Lane and Sarasota Drive in the Highland Glen subdivision were reviewed at a committee meeting before the Wheeling Village Board meeting Monday.

Work on the correction of the drainage problems is awaiting estimates on the cost for the improvements, easements which must be granted to the village by property owners, and negotiations between the village and Highland Glen developer, George Harhan.

Trustees Peter Egan and Roger Stricker instructed the village manager to get estimates of the cost from Thomas Moody, Village Engineer.

CURRENTLY THE village is holding back all building and occupancy permits from Harhan until the drainage problem in that area is corrected.

Stricker told the manager that before the next set of permits for the homes in the development are issued, the village should require installation of all sewers.

"His problem is that he grades each lot at a different time and grades them differently and the water ends up draining into one person's yard," Stricker said about Harhan.

Golden said Tuesday that two permits for a garage and a well house had been issued recently to the Preference Homes Inc. which is developing Highland Glen. He said that permits on homes in the subdivision were still being held up, however.

Rec Vehicle Law in Effect

Inspections and enforcement of Wheeling's new recreational vehicle ordinance has begun, Village Mgr. Matthew Golden told the Herald yesterday.

Golden explained that the entire village has been inspected for trailers, boat trailers and campers which do not conform to the recently passed village ordinance.

Golden said that letters to homeowners explaining the violations are being sent out. He said that about 25 to 30 homes were currently in violation of the new ordinance with trailers parked illegally or not properly screened.

THE NEW ORDINANCE allows residents to park small trailers in backyards with screening as high as the trailer.

Large trailers as defined by measurements in the ordinance may be parked in back yards until next fall if they are screened.

The law also allows residents to park trailers in driveways for limited periods of time.

Information on the ordinance and vehicle stickers for trailers which are required under the new law are available through village offices.

Find Buyers for $4 Million Bonds

Bond brokers have finally found buyers for Buffalo Grove's $4 million revenue bond issue. Issued last January, the bonds have gone unsold for almost a year. Sale of the bonds will give the village the funds necessary to buy the Buffalo Utility Co., it has sought for several years.

Village Pres. Don Thompson said at Monday's village board meeting: "We're only a hair's breadth away from selling the bonds." He said the transaction was to have been completed Monday night.

HOWEVER, BECAUSE of certain technicalities the transaction will come tonight following a village board public hearing.

The bonds were issued last January through village board action. Because the bonds are revenue types rather than general obligation bonds, they were issued through a simple ordinance. No voter referendum was needed.

The village will pay the bond debt with the income from its water and sewer system. Thompson has said the utility purchase will not raise the rates now paid by those using the utility.

He has also said, "Studies have shown we might be able to lower the rates although not right away."

Shortly after the bonds went on sale last winter, it was reported that bond dealers had agreed to buy the entire issue at a negotiated interest rate.

But, the bond market became unstable, and the potential buyers backed away from the purchase.

THROUGH THE SPRING and part of the summer, interest rates kept climbing while the municipal bond interest rate remained at 6 per cent. Potential bond buyers were investing in other, more lucrative types of bonds.

Then an Illinois law was passed allowing municipalities to pay as much as 7 per cent interest on bonds they issue.

In August Thompson revealed that bond buyers were beginning "to make overtures" to the village for its bonds. Later that month, an agreement was worked out between the village and bond brokers giving the brokers an option to sell the bonds.

Also in August the village amended its original ordinance on the bonds, raising the maximum interest rate it would pay to 7 per cent.

Though the bond brokerage firm has required additional time to sell the issue, it has apparently finally found buyers for the bond issue.

The purchase of the Buffalo Utility Co., the purpose of the bond issue, is a goal the village has pursued almost since it was incorporated 11 years ago.

In 1966 the village was offered the utility at a cost of $1.3 million. However, the village was unable to sell the bonds necessary to raise the funds.

Then in August 1968 the village board and the utility company owners agreed on a purchase price of $1.35 million for the utility company.

Included in the agreement were provisions for the White Pines "strip" area and the Kilmer park site to be turned over to the village when it bought the utility.

Asks Local Unity With Republicans

Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, said Saturday he "wants to increase cooperation between the village of Wheeling and the Republican organization in any way that we can."

Cowen, who made his remarks before a speech by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip Crane at the Clayton House Saturday night, asked area residents to tell him how the organization "can do a better job in Wheeling."

COWEN COMMENTED several times about "the great people in Wheeling" and called last summer's Wheeling Diamond Jubilee parade the "greatest parade ever in the township."

Cowen and Crane spoke to a group of 35 Wheeling and Wheeling Township residents including State Sen. John Graham; Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, Con-Con candidate; Wheeling Trustee John Koeppen; township committeewoman, Veva Meyer, Ron Cole, president of the Dist. 21 school board, and Merle Willis, township auditor.

Holmes Junior High Has Basketball Team

Seventh and eighth grade basketball teams at Holmes Junior High School in Wheeling have been chosen for the 1968-70 school year.

The eighth grade team, coached by John Brott, started practice sessions with about 30 boys. Coach Jim Messer of the seventh grade team reported 37 boys were at the first practice.

Both teams will be playing in 10 conference games, two non-conference games and one tournament.

Teams included in the Mid-Suburban Junior High Basketball Conference are River Trails Junior High in Prospect Heights, MacArthur Junior High in Prospect Heights, St. Peter's in Arlington Heights, Central Junior High in Mount Prospect, Jack London Junior High in Wheeling and Holmes Junior High.

Study Lights For Golfview

As the result of a traffic and safety committee recommendation, Buffalo Grove's village board is investigating the possibility of installing streetlights along Golfview terrace between Raupp Boulevard and Buffalo Grove Road.

A survey will be undertaken by the village to determine the number of lights necessary along the street.

THE STUDY COMES as a result of a traffic and safety committee report recommending lighting at the intersection of Golfview Terrace and Raupp Boulevard.

The report maintains that several acts of vandalism have occurred in the area because of the lack of adequate lighting.

Thursday, Harold Smith, Buffalo Grove's police chief, said that most of the vandalism to which the report referred, happened last spring. He said it consisted of small trees being broken and residents' mailboxes being damaged.

THE COMMITTEE report also noted that three residents living along the street had requested last spring that lights be installed in front of their property.

Requests Books for GIs

A former security guard at Harper College in Palatine has appealed to Northwest suburbanites for reading matter for American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Marine Gunnery Sgt. Tom McEnroe has asked residents to send the reading material to the 1,500 marines and sailors he is stationed with on Hill 34.

In a letter to Sgt. William Carroll of the Elk Grove Village Police Department, McEnroe said the troops need reading matter, "ancient or modern, in any form, be it magazines, hard-cover or soft-cover books."

McEnroe, who met Carroll while a security guard when the college held classes in Elk Grove Village asked for copies of Reader's Digest, Catholic Digest, Coronet and other such magazines.

"Our marines and sailors love to read them," he said.

Interested persons or groups should send the reading materials to Gy. Sgt. Tom McEnroe, 110547 USMC, 1st 175 Gun Battery (SP), 1st Marine Div. FMF, c/o PPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Mamie Declines Invite to School

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has sent a letter to the Dist. 23 Eisenhower School PTA, declining an invitation to attend the formal dedication of the new school in the spring. The Eisenhower School is located at the intersection of Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck roads in Prospect Heights.

Mrs. William Kaunzinger, cultural arts chairman of the PTA, wrote Mrs. Eisenhower requesting a picture of her late husband and inviting her to the dedication.

The school has received a large color print of the late president, which will be hung in the resource center. According to Mrs. Eisenhower, she asked the Presidential Library in Abilene, Kans. to send the picture to the school.

Mrs. Kaunzinger said the PTA remains hopeful some member of the Eisenhower family will be able to attend the dedication of the school.

Apollo 'Ready To Go'

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 12's moon orbiting space pilots reported everything "ready to go" yesterday for America's second lunar landing, but kept a wary eye out for radiation from a solar flare "bigger than the earth's surface."

Several discordant notes were sounded in the final crucial hours of the landing mission, but none was considered serious. The lunar landing was scheduled for 1:53 a.m. EST today.

Trade Relief Asked

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress yesterday to give more relief to U.S. industries hurt by imports and to broaden his retaliatory powers against unfair foreign competition.

Nixon pledged his administration to continuing a policy of freer world trade, but observed that this country no longer dominates world markets and that other countries are now fully competitive.

Showdown Vote Is Set

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans re-elected yesterday in their demand for delay and agreed to a showdown vote Friday on the controversial nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

If Democratic membership follows Senate leader Mike Mansfield's willingness to go along with the GOP proposal, the crucial roll call following three months of debate probably will come at about noon Friday.

Stroll Nets Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally.

The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Rawls in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as 0.5 gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,981 in his home township to 6,658 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,404.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESELY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on south Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard toteboard, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

White smiled, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate; it duplicates the trails of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trail awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political fiefdom of the district came to shake hands with the top vote-getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

"I THINK A STIFF campaign is good for a candidate . . . it is a duplicate of the trials of office." John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and now delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a big smile last night after tallying nearly 20,000 votes.

SURROUNDED BY FRIENDS. Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of Arlington Park race track, attended the dedication of the new Boy Scout service center on Rand Road. Mrs. Everett donated $300,000 to the center and, in effect, gave a giant helping hand to the Northwest suburban scout organization.

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instructions in, 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

Safety Group Names Major Accident Areas

Five intersections in Buffalo Grove have been cited by a village traffic and safety committee report as the major accident areas in the village.

At Navajo Trail and Bernard Drive, five accidents have occurred in the last year. In an effort to make the intersection safer the village Monday agreed to erect a stop sign at the intersection stopping Navajo Trail traffic. The height of bushes at the corner also will be lowered as a traffic safety measure.

OTHER INTERSECTIONS with high accident rates are Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, Arlington Heights Road North and Dundee Road, and Arlington Heights Road South and Dundee Road. Four accidents occurred at each of these intersections in the last year.

Also cited was the intersection of Bernard Drive and Buffalo Grove Road. Three accidents occurred there.

Hackney's Is Robbed

Wheeling police are investigating a theft of $62 Sunday morning from Hackney's Restaurant in Wheeling.

Police said the money was taken from an automatic coin changer. The restaurant is at 241 S. Milwaukee Ave.

Park District Gets Some Parks

Buffalo Grove's two-month-old park district soon will be no longer a district without a park.

Monday the village board agreed to turn over four park sites in the village to the district. In doing so the board followed recommendations set forth in an interim report on park lands drawn up last week by Richard Decker, the village manager.

THE LANDS TO BE turned over to the district include the park sites at Longfellow, Cooper and Kildner schools. Also, parts of Emmerich Park, including the park building will be turned over to the district.

Certain stipulations were included in the motion to turn over the lands. The board reserved the right to install water wells on any of the sites if necessary.

The village also reserved use of the Emmerich Park building garage as well as two offices in the building.

The board's decision, as well as Decker's report, came as a surprise.

Last week at a village board meeting, trustees decided to postpone a decision on the disposition of any of the park lands until Decker performed a survey of the village's land needs. At the time Decker said he would need two months for the survey.

In Decker's report listing his recommendations, he noted "Although I have requested two months for the proper comprehensive study to be made prior to any recommendation, I have concentrated my study to the singular question of what properties could be transferred to the district."

ALSO IN HIS report, Decker recommended that the lands he suggests be turned over to the district "at the earliest possible time due to the urgency set forth by the park district."

At last week's meeting the matter of the disposition of park lands was raised by Val Bettin, park board president.

Following an unsuccessful village board motion to turn over certain land to the park district, Bettin urged that the board "proceed quickly" on the land disposition matter.

Decker's interim report considered such things as the location of a future fire station in Lake County, the need for land by the department of public works and the requirement for possible additional well sites.

Decker also recommended that the Raupp Memorial, located in the Lake County portion of the village be turned over to the district. Trustees decided to hold up that transfer, however, until all stipulations concerning that property are taken care of by the village. The agreement turning it over to the village contains certain conditions dealing with its eventual use.

Strengthen Manager Post

Wheeling's village manager has a new set of duties and additional authority concerning village employees following passage of a new village manager ordinance Monday by the village board.

The board approved the ordinance unanimously without discussion. The ordinance had been revised at committee meetings of the board as a whole in recent weeks from a proposed ordinance submitted to the board by Matthew Golden, village manager.

Under provisions of the new ordinance the manager has the duties of implementing, managing, and coordinating board policy, and is responsible for overall management of village affairs, with all departments of the village reporting to him.

The new description of the job gives more weight to the village board's "commitment" to letting Golden "run the village" than did the earlier codified ordinance.

Important in the new ordinance is a statement of intent by the village board adopted the April referendum on the state statute form of village manager government.

The manager ordinance says that if village voters turn down a referendum to change Wheeling government to a village manager system as set up by state law, the local ordinance form of village manager government will be continued.

Wheeling voters turned down a similar referendum in 1965, but the village board adopted the local ordinance manager government and hired a manager in 1968.

Other provisions of the new manager ordinance include ones which give the manager protection against being fired within 60 days after an election, and give him a right to a public hearing within 10 days of his dismissal.

Requirements for the manager position have been changed to include a bachelor's degree and experience in public administration either as a manager or an analyst of local government functions.

The new law also gives the manager the power to "appoint, dismiss or suspend any full or part-time employee of the village" including the following department heads:

superintendent of public works, chief of police, fire chief, finance director, village collector, health officer, and fire inspector.

The manager may not remove any department head within 90 days of his becoming manager except with the approval of the board.

The village board retains the power to appoint or dismiss the village planner, village engineer, civil defense director and village attorney.

Drainage Problems Reviewed

Drainage problems on Coral Lane, Chestnut Lane and Sarasota Drive in the Highland Glen subdivision were reviewed at a committee meeting before the Wheeling Village Board Monday.

Work on the correction of the drainage problems is awaiting estimates on the cost for the improvements, easements which must be granted to the village by property owners, and negotiations between the village and Highland Glen developer, George Harshan.

Trustees Peter Egan and Roger Stricker instructed the village manager to get estimates of the cost from Thomas Moody, Village Engineer.

CURRENTLY THE village is holding back all building and occupancy permits from Harshan until the drainage problem in that area is corrected.

Stricker told the manager that before the next set of permits for the homes in the development are issued, the village should require installation of all sewers. "His problem is that he grades each lot at a different time and grades them differently and the water ends up draining into one person's yard," Stricker said about Harshan.

Golden said Tuesday that two permits for a garage and a well house had been issued recently to the Preference Homes Inc. which is developing Highland Glen. He said that permits on homes in the subdivision were still being held up, however.

Rec Vehicle Law in Effect

Inspections and enforcement of Wheeling's new recreational vehicle ordinance has begun, Village Mgr. Matthew Golden told the Herald yesterday.

Golden explained that the entire village has been inspected for trailers, boat trailers and campers which do not conform to the recently passed village ordinance.

Golden said that letters to homeowners explaining the violations are being sent out. He said that about 25 to 30 homes were currently in violation of the new ordinance with trailers parked illegally or not properly screened.

THE NEW ORDINANCE allows residents to park small trailers in backyards with screening as high as the trailer.

Large trailers as defined by measurements in the ordinance may be parked in back yards until next fall if they are screened.

The law also allows residents to park trailers in driveways for limited periods of time.

Information on the ordinance and vehicle stickers for trailers which are required under the new law are available through village offices.

Find Buyers for $4 Million Bonds

Bond brokers have finally found buyers for Buffalo Grove's $4 million revenue bond issue. Issued last January, the bonds have gone unsold for almost a year. Sale of the bonds will give the village the funds necessary to buy the Buffalo Utility Co., it has sought for several years.

Village Pres. Don Thompson said at Monday's village board meeting: "We're only a hair's breadth away from selling the bonds." He said the transaction was to have been completed Monday night.

HOWEVER, BECAUSE of certain technicalities the transaction will come tonight following a village board public hearing.

The bonds were issued last January through village board action. Because the bonds are revenue types rather than general obligation bonds, they were issued through a simple ordinance. No voter referendum was needed.

The village will pay the bond debt with the income from its water and sewer system. Thompson has said the utility purchase will not raise the rates now paid by those using the utility.

He has also said, "Studies have shown we might be able to lower the rates although not right away."

Shortly after the bonds went on sale last winter, it was reported that bond dealers had agreed to buy the entire issue at a negotiated interest rate.

But, the bond market became unstable, and the potential buyers backed away from the purchase.

THROUGH THE SPRING and part of the summer, interest rates kept climbing while the municipal bond interest rate remained at 6 per cent. Potential bond buyers were investing in other, more lucrative types of bonds.

Then an Illinois law was passed allowing municipalities to pay as much as 7 per cent interest on bonds they issue.

In August Thompson revealed that bond buyers were beginning "to make overtures" to the village for its bonds. Later that month, an agreement was worked out between the village and bond brokers giving the brokers an option to sell the bonds.

Also in August the village amended its original ordinance on the bonds, raising the maximum interest rate it would pay to 7 per cent.

Though the bond brokerage firm has required additional time to sell the issue, it has apparently finally found buyers for the bond issue.

The purchase of the Buffalo Utility Co., the purpose of the bond issue, is a goal the village has pursued almost since it was incorporated 11 years ago.

In 1966 the village was offered the utility at a cost of $1.3 million. However, the village was unable to sell the bonds necessary to raise the funds.

Then in August 1968 the village board and the utility company owners agreed on a purchase price of $1.35 million for the utility company.

Included in the agreement were provisions for the White Pines "strip" area and the Kilmer park site to be turned over to the village when it bought the utility.

Requests Books for GIs

A former security guard at Harper College in Palatine has appealed to Northwest suburbanites for reading matter for American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Marine Gunner Sgt. Tom McEnroe has asked residents to send the reading material to the 1,500 marines and sailors he is stationed with on Hill 34.

In a letter to Sgt. William Carroll of the Elk Grove Village Police Department, McEnroe said the troops need reading matter, "ancient or modern, in any form, be it magazines, hard-cover or soft-cover books."

ENROE, WHO MET Carroll while a security guard when the college held classes in Elk Grove Village asked for copies of Reader's Digest, Catholic Digest, Coronet and other such magazines.

"Our marines and sailors love to read them," he said.

Interested persons or groups should send the reading materials to Gy. Sgt. Tom McEnroe, 1105497 USMC, 1st 175 Gun Battery (SP), 1st Marine Div. FMF, c/o FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Study Lights For Golfview

As the result of a traffic and safety committee recommendation, Buffalo Grove's village board is investigating the possibility of installing streetlights along Golfview Terrace between Raupp Boulevard and Buffalo Grove Road.

A survey will be undertaken by the village to determine the number of lights necessary along the street.

THE STUDY COMES as a result of a traffic and safety committee report recommending lighting at the intersection of Golfview Terrace and Raupp Boulevard. The report maintains that several acts of vandalism have occurred in the area because of the lack of adequate lighting.

Thursday, Harold Smith, Buffalo Grove's police chief, said that most of the vandalism to which the report referred, happened last spring. He said it consisted of small trees being broken and residents' mailboxes being damaged.

THE COMMITTEE report also noted that three residents living along the street had requested last spring that lights be installed in front of their property.

Mamie Declines Invite to School

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has sent a letter to the Dist. 23 Eisenhower School PTA, declining an invitation to attend the formal dedication of the new school in the spring. The Eisenhower School is located at the intersection of Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck roads in Prospect Heights.

Mrs. William Kaunzinger, cultural arts chairman of the PTA, wrote Mrs. Eisenhower requesting a picture of her late husband and inviting her to the dedication.

The school has received a large color print of the late president, which will be hung in the resource center. According to Mrs. Eisenhower, she asked the Presidential Library in Abilene, Kans. to send the picture to the school.

Mrs. Kaunzinger said the PTA remains hopeful some member of the Eisenhower family will be able to attend the dedication of the school.

Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

The dinner is to honor all adult Camp Fire leaders and the district plan group. A new district committee is expected to be appointed at the meeting. Mrs. James Metzger is district chairman.

Asks Local Unity With Republicans

Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, said Saturday he "wants to increase cooperation between the village of Wheeling and the Republican organization in any way that we can."

Cowen, who made his remarks before a speech by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip Crane at the Clayton House Saturday night, asked area residents to tell him how the organization "can do a better job in Wheeling."

COWEN COMMENTED several times about "the great people in Wheeling" and called last summer's Wheeling Diamond Jubilee parade the "greatest parade ever in the township."

Cowen and Crane spoke to a group of 35 Wheeling and Wheeling Township residents including State Sen. John Graham; Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, Con-Con candidate; Wheeling Trustee John Koeppen; township committeewoman, Veva Meyer; Ron Cole, president of the Dist. 21 school board, and Merle Willis, township auditor.

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,981 in his home township to 6,958 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,378 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,484.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

"So, I'll be calling the telephone company first thing in the morning," she said. In addition to providing direct lines to her while she's attending the convention, she also hopes to provide communication lines within the northwest suburbs.

"Until then, my home phone number is available," she said.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS several hours after the polls closed before she would accept the fact she was the second top vote-getter, Mrs. Macdonald eventually started thinking about her trip to Springfield.

Her cautious optimism stemmed from the Con-Con primary in September when she had to leave town before all the votes were counted.

"Even though I still won, the final results were a lot different than when I flew out of Chicago that night," she smiled.

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

"I THINK A STIFF campaign is good for a candidate... it is a duplicate of the trials of office," John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and now delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a big smile last night after tallying nearly 20,000 votes.

HOPSCOTCHING ACROSS the third Senatorial District last night, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights greeted campaign workers who helped her win the second place on the ballot and a trip to the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Vote As Expected

by DON BRANNAN

Con-Con candidates Mrs. Virginia Macdonald and John Woods carried Palatine Township Tuesday with vote totals of 2,733 and 2,532, respectively.

William Engelhardt, a resident of Inverness, ran third with 2,124 votes, while Mrs. Madeline Schroeder received 2,025 votes in the township.

The Palatine Township Republican Organization had endorsed Mrs. Macdonald and Engelhardt in the Con-Con race. And Palatine's mayor, John Moodie, had endorsed John Woods.

"I WOULD HAVE LIKED to have seen Engelhardt win in Palatine Township because he's a native son," said GOP committeeman Bernard Pedersen. "But the winning candidates had more widely known names."

The rather light voter turnout for the Con-Con election in the township was attributed to a combination of disinterest and bad weather. And, as Pedersen pointed out, "There have just been a lot of elections going on."

Pedersen said that he expects a significantly larger turnout in next Tuesday's 13th District contest since he feels there is greater interest among voters in this race.

According to a precinct captain in the township, a few voters Tuesday had asked where to write in the name of Philip Crane, Republican candidate in the 13th District race.

RECENTLY NAMED to succeed Wally Schaw as committeeman in the township, Pedersen said, "I don't know how many registered voters there are in the township." He said he was still adjusting to his new post. A total 4,900 votes were cast in Palatine Township's 41 precincts Tuesday.

In the Con-Con primary Sept. 23, balloting for the candidates was as follows in the township: Mrs. Macdonald, 1,383; Woods, 1,047; Engelhardt, 1,424, and Mrs. Schroeder, 765.

The first vote returns started coming into the GOP headquarters shortly after polls closed at 6 p.m., and all the precincts had reported by 7:30 p.m.

As the precinct totals were added rapidly on an adding machine, a spectator heckled the man working the machine: "Hey, I know who this guy is. He's the checker at the supermarket."

As scattered returns came in from other townships, it appeared the winners were Woods and Mrs. Macdonald for the whole Third District.

She Wins, Says 'Thanks'

by MARTHA KOPER

High on the list of priorities last night for Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, victorious in the Con-Con election, was saying thank-you.

While showing signs of a little surprise, she expressed her gratitude to campaign workers and those gathered at Republican Headquarters in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

"I really can't quite believe it yet," she said.

"It's been a good campaign."

And then, "All four of us have run a good campaign."

Remembering back to when she first announced her candidacy in the Con-Con election, Mrs. Macdonald admitted a few things have changed.

"As I've campaigned, some of the issues have come into a different perspective," she said.

"One issue which has become crystal clear is the need for judicial reform," she said.

When someone reminded her the evening was a time to relax and celebrate, she laughed, "I guess it truly is."

But quickly added, "Tomorrow starts a busy time. I'm going to get going on that communication system right away."

AS PART OF HER campaign pledges, Mrs. Macdonald told voters she wanted to hear from anyone with ideas for the Constitutional Convention.

Residents Challenge Four Seasons

Palatine's board of trustees was adamantly and dramatically challenged by about 50 homeowners Monday night on its recent annexation of four acres along S. Quentin Road for a nursing home.

Residents of Hunting Ridge subdivision including attorney Richard Mugalian came to the village hall prepared to dispute the legality of the board's action during the past few months concerning Four Seasons

Nursing Center.

Proposed since February is a 200-bed facility near the intersection of Illinois and Quentin.

In the fourth change of action, the site was annexed and special zoning granted for the nursing home last week.

But that was only the most recent of several actions in violation of Illinois statute and local ordinance, according to Mu-galian.

"YOU'RE SWORN to uphold the law and you haven't," he told village officials.

John Moodie, village president, said, "As far as I'm concerned, the decision was made last week and the village attorney advised us our action was legal at the time."

However, trustees agreed to have the case reviewed and will request Bradley

Glass, village attorney, to submit his opinion by the Nov. 24 meeting.

"I make no suggestion the village board did anything intentionally wrong," Mugalian continued.

"But it shouldn't be necessary to make one of your citizens go to court to force you to uphold the law," he added.

On Sept. 8 three ordinances covering a pre-annexation agreement, the actual annexation and special use zoning were defeated with a tie vote.

There is a six-months waiting period required before the matter can be taken up again which the board did not observe, according to Mugalian.

THE CASE WAS brought before the board again Sept. 22 when a motion to reconsider annexation was approved.

Mugalian also challenged validity of the motion to reconsider citing a statute provision which requires the motion to be made by the "prevailing side."

Trustee Wendell Jones answered, "I can guarantee one place it won't come from," and the audience showed their approval with applause.

"A motion to reconsider would jumble up this case so much that no judge could ever unravel it," Mugalian added.

"I THINK IT'S already in that condition," Moodie said.

A homeowner chimed in, "This thing is so darn fishy. There are implications all over the place."

It was then that Jones, opposed to the nursing home since it first was proposed, said, "I resent some of the implications which have been made here tonight. It was a legitimate oversight."

Trustee Fred Zajonc reminded residents of a similar case concerning the nine-hole golf course at Baldwin and Hicks.

"THIS IS THE second time citizens have stormed the village hall opposed to an annexation. We turned down Elmer Gleich's proposal for an apartment development. Now, he's sold the property at a tremendous price which means it will be developed in high density — a lot of apartments."

"Now, with the confusion around the Four Seasons land — anything could happen to this piece of property," he said.

Tax Lawsuit Brings Frowns

Officials in Palatine Township are concerned about the pending lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of local tax collections.

The case against all suburban tax collectors has been continued until Dec. 2.

When tax money was delayed this year, local government bodies appealed to Albert P. Palatine Township collector, for quick payment.

HE BEGAN ADVANCING money from the July 1 collection as early as June 6, according to a pre-planned schedule of proportional payments he said he has devised.

Because of the early payments, he was able to save taxpayers thousands of dollars in interest on loans which would have been necessary to keep the agencies going, according to DePue.

If the current lawsuit is successful, the office of township tax collector will be eliminated in each of the 30 Cook County townships. All tax money, then, would be directly channeled to the Cook County offices.

Without the tax collector's office, local townships would not be eligible to receive 2 per cent commission for collecting local taxes.

THIS YEAR, Palatine Township's commission amounted to $184,600, and was used to pay for salaries and services, including the general assistance fund at more than $19,000.

In addition, the township youth committee received $24,230 from excess commissions. Three local groups also received transfers of funds from surplus township money amounting to more than $42,000. Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School Dist. 15 received $14,000. Payment of $28,000 went to the mental health fund and $950 for the Palatine Park District Leisure Club.

"The services we provide with commission from tax collection would require an additional tax levy if the lawsuit is successful," DePue said. "Or they would have to be discontinued entirely, which, of course, would mean an end to township government."

DePue said that quick remittance of tax money to local government agencies was appreciated by all officials.

IN A LETTER sent to him last summer, James Lawrence, former business manager of High School Dist. 211, said prompt remittance of tax money "enabled us to save several thousand dollars in interest by repaying their tax warrants sooner than planned."

Harper Junior College needed funds before the close of its fiscal year and received $36,799 on June 25, according to DePue.

He said that because he receives most tax payments locally, he is able to disburse funds to local taxing bodies quickly.

"But payments from the county building are regularly slow for township agencies," he said.

"This year, the first check from Chicago did not arrive until Aug. 26," he added.

TAXES FROM THE first collection amounted to $293,490 for School Dist. 15 and so far, is the only payment the district has received.

However, DePue already had disbursed more than $2 million to the schools by Aug. 10, followed by a final payment in October, bringing Dist. 15's tax collection up to almost $1 million.

The lawsuit to eliminate township collectors has been so quiet, it is liable to be decided before most local residents are even aware of it," DePue said.

He continued, "Personal service to individuals with tax problems now performed as part of the day's work would disappear with the local tax collector's office."

"Local taxpayers would have to go to Chicago with a tax problem and face delays and indifference from county patronage employees far removed from our area," he said.

Stroll Nets Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally.

The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Rawls in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as one gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

Requests Books for GIs

A former security guard at Harper College in Palatine has appealed to Northwest suburbanites for reading matter for American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Marine Gunnery Sgt. Tom McEnroe has asked residents to send the reading material to the 1,500 marines and sailors he is stationed with on Hill 34.

In a letter to Sgt. William Carroll of the Elk Grove Village Police Department, McEnroe said the troops need reading matter, "ancient or modern, in any form, be it magazines, hard-cover or soft-cover books."

ENROE, WHO MET Carroll while a security guard when the college held classes in Elk Grove Village asked for copies of Reader's Digest, Catholic Digest, Coronet and other such magazines.

"Our marines and sailors love to read them," he said.

Interested persons or groups should send the reading materials to Gy. Sgt. Tom McEnroe, 1105497 USMC, 1st 75 Gun Battery (SP), 1st Marine Div. FMF, c/o FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Skating Precautions Taken

Looking ahead to ice skating season, the Rolling Meadows Park District is taking precautions on the Kimball Hill pond until the area is safe for skating.

The pond has a warning sign and barrels which mean the ice isn't safe.

First freeze of the year and the wish to test the ice for skating makes this time in the season dangerous.

The park district said that although the pond may have a buildup of ice, one 40-degree day would cause a break through of water.

SIGNS WILL REMAIN out until conditions permit safe ice. Kimball Hill pond has approximately six feet of water and two to three feet of mud to create a dangerous condition.

In a recent survey conducted by the Illinois Association of Park Districts, it was determined that two inches of clear ice was safe for individuals, three to four inches was safe for general skating, five inches safe for general skating and more than six inches safe for one-and-one-half-ton trucks.

Artificial ice produced by spraying cannot be successful until a cold spell arrives maintaining sub-freezing temperatures of 10 degrees and below with some assurance of continued below normal conditions.

Below zero conditions allow a quick freeze of one-fifteenth to one-eighth of an inch individual applications until about one inch of ice is formed.

Under normal crowd and weather conditions, skaters will shave off one-quarter inch of ice in a five-hour period.

The park district reports it will be watching daily weather indications and will begin ice construction as soon as it is possible and practical.

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages, 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instructions in 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

At the bottom of the letter was a post card, which the letter writers asked recipients to mail to Ken Gill, Dist. 21 superintendent.

The message on the post card called for an immediate end to the family living and sex education program in Dist. 21.

MADLINE SCHROEDER, the favorite of independent voters and a good

Thinks of Ham, Not Politics

by GERRY De ZONNA
Mrs. Madeline Schroeder accepted defeat last night in the same sincere way in which she waged her campaign for election to the Constitutional Convention.

The candidate from Arlington Heights laid all her cards on the table, admitting that the odds were stacked against her as the independent candidate, and accepted defeat by a powerful suburban Republican organization.

When the polls closed at 6 p.m., Mrs. Schroeder was in the bedroom of her North Chestnut Street home, slipping into a dress and running a comb quickly through her hair. A minute later she was in the kitchen, sleeves rolled above the elbows, arranging slices of boiled ham, swiss cheese and rye bread on a platter.

"IT'S TOUGH TO beat the party. Organizing a campaign against the party machinery is hard work because the political organization works for its candidate. But, feeling as strongly as I do about Con-Con, I had to take the outside independent chance and gamble against the odds," she said.

At 6:45 p.m. the early voting returns thundered into township headquarters across the district, but Mrs. Schroeder continued to prepare a sandwich buffet as calmly as though she were baking cookies for a PTA meeting.

As Mrs. Schroeder handled the kitchen detail, her husband, George, answered the endless stream of telephone calls from campaign workers in each township. He would jot down some figures, hang up the phone and continue his conversation that had been interrupted, never mentioning the latest tallies, although his wife might have gained a couple hundred votes.

"WE'RE RUNNING A solid third, Madeline. Picked up one place since the Con-Con primary. That's a good showing," he said, repeating the good news to the next well-wisher who called.

Actually Mrs. Schroeder's calm, cool and collected appearance masked her anxiety to throw a monkey wrench into the powerful party organization and beat the machinery. Minute by minute she waited out the election results, knowing that she had mounted one of the best campaign efforts of an independent candidate in recent history.

"The Constitution is very important to the party and its survival. The party's going to make every effort possible to elect its own people who will protect the organization. Our only hope in redrafting the Constitution is to have enough independents who will serve as a moderating influence at the convention," she said.

"If everyone defers to the party because the party says so, then we're not going to have our democratic system of government much longer."

AS THOUGH THIS WOULD be the last time someone would listen earnestly to what she had to say about the Constitution and party politics, Mrs. Schroeder rummaged through her handbag looking for her copy of the speeches that had been delivered at the 1968 Legislative Commission Conference on Intergovernmental Cooperation.

She thumbed through the reprint, whose pages revealed that they had been well read, and sought support for her platform from a speech Gov. Richard Ogilvie delivered at the conference.

"Ogilvie didn't have to play politics with this speech and he summed up the future of the State of Illinois accurately: 'Politics and patronage must end as a way of life if our governmental institutions are to be reformed and rebuilt.'"

"If anyone asks, this is the reason why I ran for election to the Constitutional Convention," she said.

AT 7:30 P.M. AND TRAILING by more than 1,800 votes behind her closest opponent, Mrs. Schroeder admitted that it was almost impossible to catch the two front-runners. "But, we placed a solid third," her husband reminded her.

The only thing that seemed to upset Madeline Schroeder last night was that her guests weren't eating as much ham and cheese and rye bread as she had planned.

VICTORIOUS CANDIDATE in yesterday's Con-Con election, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, brought her campaign to Palatine last week as she greeted commuters at the railroad depot with a bagpiper flanked by campaign workers dressed in tams showing Macdonald is a good Scotch name.

Engelhardt: 'Did My Best'

"I did the best I could, and the voters have made their choice."

That was the response of William R. Engelhardt of Inverness last night after he finished fourth in the four-way race for delegate seats to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con).

He said he had no future plans for seeking office, adding, "I'm not a politician, I made myself available and thought I could do a better job than the others."

THE FORMER MAYOR of Inverness had run third in the Sept. 23 primary, but had not run an active campaign between the two elections.

"I had no fund-raisers, no campaign managers, and just went along in my own way," he said.

Engelhardt's advice to the victors, John Woods and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, was to remember that they represent the entire district and not just Arlington Heights.

He said he would "reserve the right to offer suggestions to the delegates" and indicated he would maintain an active interest in the convention's proceedings.

Engelhardt had been endorsed by the County Republican organization and by seven of the eight GOP township organiza-

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701, Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138, Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045, and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,961 in his home township to 6,058 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,404.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

WOODS, THE FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, has been active in numerous government activities. He served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. A Republican, Woods also has served on the Wheeling Township GOP executive board and has been active in several Republican campaigns.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Woods also is a native of a southern state, born in Shreveport, La. He is an attorney, a graduate of the Georgetown Law Center, and is employed as vice president and general counsel of Universal Oil Products of Des Plaines. He and his wife have four children. Woods is 48.

Apollo 'Ready To Go'

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 12's moon orbiting space pilots reported everything "ready to go" yesterday for America's second lunar landing, but kept a wary eye out for radiation from a solar flare "bigger than the earth's surface."

Several discordant notes were sounded in the final crucial hours of the landing mission, but none was considered serious. The lunar landing was scheduled for 1:53 a.m. EST today.

Trade Relief Asked

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress yesterday to give more relief to U.S. industries hurt by imports and to broaden his retaliatory powers against unfair foreign competition.

Nixon pledged his administration to continuing a policy of freer world trade, but observed that this country no longer dominates world markets and that other countries are now fully competitive.

Showdown Vote Is Set

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans relented yesterday in their demand for delay and agreed to a showdown vote Friday on the controversial nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

If Democratic membership follows Senate leader Mike Mansfield's willingness to go along with the GOP proposal, the crucial roll call following three months of debate probably will come at about noon Friday.

HOPSCOTCHING ACROSS the third Senatorial District last night, Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights greeted campaign workers who helped her win the second place on the ballot and a trip to the Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Vote As Expected

by DON BRANNAN

Con-Con candidates Mrs. Virginia Macdonald and John Woods carried Palatine Township Tuesday with vote totals of 2,733 and 2,532, respectively.

William Engelhardt, a resident of Inverness, ran third with 2,124 votes, while Mrs. Madeline Schroeder received 2,025 votes in the township.

The Palatine Township Republican Organization had endorsed Mrs. Macdonald and Engelhardt in the Con-Con race. And Palatine's mayor, John Moodie, had endorsed John Woods.

"I WOULD HAVE LIKED to have seen Engelhardt win in Palatine Township because he's a native son," said GOP Committeeman Bernard Pedersen. "But the winning candidates had more widely known names."

The rather light voter turnout for the Con-Con election in the township was attributed to a combination of disinterest and bad weather. And, as Pedersen pointed out, "There have just been a lot of elections going on."

Pedersen said that he expects a significantly larger turnout in next Tuesday's 13th District contest since he feels there is greater interest among voters in this race.

According to a precinct captain in the township, a few voters Tuesday had asked where to write in the name of Philip Crane, Republican candidate in the 13th District race.

RECENTLY NAMED to succeed Wally Schaw as committeeman in the township, Pedersen said, "I don't know how many registered voters there are in the township." He said he was still adjusting to his new post. A total 4,900 votes were cast in Palatine Township's 41 precincts Tuesday.

In the Con-Con primary Sept. 23, balloting for the candidates was as follows in the township: Mrs. Macdonald, 1,363; Woods, 1,047; Engelhardt, 1,424; and Mrs. Schroeder, 765.

The first vote returns started coming into the GOP headquarters shortly after polls closed at 6 p.m., and all the precincts had reported by 7:30 p.m.

As the precinct totals were added rapidly on an adding machine, a spectator heckled the man working the machine: "Hey, I know who this guy is. He's the checker at the supermarket."

As scattered returns came in from other townships, it appeared the winners were Woods and Mrs. Macdonald for the whole Third District.

She Wins, Says 'Thanks'

by MARTHA KOPER

High on the list of priorities last night for Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, victorious in the Con-Con election, was saying thank-you.

While showing signs of a little surprise, she expressed her gratitude to campaign workers and those gathered at Republican Headquarters in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

"I really can't quite believe it yet," she said.

And then, "All four of us have run a good campaign."

CALLING IT A CAMPAIGN to gain the confidence of voters in the Third Senatorial District, she explained, "We haven't campaigned politically. All our remarks related to issues."

Remembering back to when she first announced her candidacy in the Con-Con election, Mrs. Macdonald admitted a few things have changed.

"As I've campaigned, some of the issues have come into a different perspective," she said.

"One issue which has become crystal clear is the need for judicial reform," she said.

When someone reminded her the evening was a time to relax and celebrate, she laughed, "I guess it truly is."

But quickly added, "Tomorrow starts a busy time. I'm going to get going on that communication system right away."

AS PART OF HER campaign pledges, Mrs. Macdonald told voters she wanted to hear from anyone with ideas for the Constitutional Convention.

"So, I'll be calling the telephone company first thing in the morning," she said.

In addition to providing direct lines to her while she's attending the convention, she also hopes to provide communication lines within the northwest suburbs.

"Until then, my home phone number is available," she said.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS several hours after the polls closed before she would accept the fact she was the second top vote-getter, Mrs. Macdonald eventually started thinking about her trip to Springfield.

Her cautious optimism stemmed from the Con-Con primary in September when she had to leave town before all the votes were counted.

"Even though I still won, the final results were a lot different than when I flew out of Chicago that night," she smiled.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESELY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on south Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard tote-board, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

White smiled, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate; it duplicates the trials of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trail awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political field of the district came to shake hands with the top vote-getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schickman, Mayor Jack Pahl of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

"I THINK A STIFF campaign is good for a candidate... it is a duplicate of the trials of office," John Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and now delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a big smile last night after tallying nearly 20,000 votes.

Residents Challenge Four Seasons

Palatine's board of trustees was adamantly and dramatically challenged by about 50 homeowners Monday night on its recent annexation of four acres along S. Quentin Road for a nursing home.

Residents of Hunting Ridge subdivision including attorney Richard Mugalian came to the village hall prepared to dispute the legality of the board's action during the past six months concerning Four Seasons

Nursing Center.

Proposed since February is a 200-bed facility near the intersection of Illinois and Quentin.

In the fourth change of action, the site was annexed and special zoning granted for the nursing home last week.

But that was only the most recent of several actions in violation of Illinois statute and local ordinance, according to Mu-galian.

"YOU'RE SWORN to uphold the law and you haven't," he told village officials.

John Moodie, village president, said, "As far as I'm concerned, the decision was made last week and the village attorney advised us our action was legal at the time."

However, trustees agreed to have the case reviewed and will request Bradley

Glass, village attorney, to submit his opinion by the Nov. 24 meeting.

"I make no suggestion the village board did anything intentionally wrong," Mugalian continued.

"But it shouldn't be necessary to make one of your citizens go to court to force you to uphold the law," he added.

On Sept. 8 three ordinances covering a pre-annexation agreement, the actual annexation and special use zoning were defeated with a tie vote.

There is a six-months waiting period required before the matter can be taken up again which the board did not observe, according to Mugalian.

THE CASE WAS brought before the board again Sept. 22 when a motion to reconsider annexation was approved.

Mugalian also challenged validity of the motion to reconsider citing a statute provision which requires the motion to be made by the "prevailing side."

In the case of the nursing home, the prevailing side would be trustees who originally voted against annexation, he said.

The Hunting Ridge attorney finally questioned legality of last week's annexation approval since all the ordinances were repealed Oct. 27 after an omission in the original annexation petition was discovered.

"The whole thing was completely and irrevocably ended that night," Mugalian said.

BUT ACTING ON advice from the village attorney, the board accepted a new petition for annexation and approved the necessary ordinances last week.

Monday night, Moodie suggested, "We'll have to find out who can make a motion to reconsider."

Trustee Wendell Jones answered, "I can guarantee one place it won't come from," and the audience showed their approval with applause.

"A motion to reconsider would jumble up this case so much that no judge could ever unravel it," Mugalian added.

"I THINK IT'S already in that condition," Moodie said.

A homeowner chimed in, "This thing is so darn fishy. There are implications all over the place."

It was then that Jones, opposed to the nursing home since it first was proposed, said, "I resent some of the implications which have been made here tonight. It was a legitimate oversight."

Trustee Fred Zajonc reminded residents of a similar case concerning the nine-hole golf course at Baldwin and Hicks.

"THIS IS THE second time citizens have stormed the village hall opposed to an annexation. We turned down Elmer Gleich's proposal for an apartment development. Now, he's sold the property at a tremendous price which means it will be developed in high density — a lot of apartments."

"Now, with the confusion around the Four Seasons land — anything could happen to this piece of property," he said.

Tax Lawsuit Brings Frowns

Officials in Palatine Township are concerned about the pending lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of local tax collections.

The case against all suburban tax collectors has been continued until Dec. 2.

When tax money was delayed this year, local government bodies appealed to Albert Pue, Palatine Township collector, for quick payment.

HE BEGAN ADVANCING money from the July 1 collection as early as June 6, according to a pre-planned schedule of proportional payments he said he has devised.

Because of the early payments, he was able to save taxpayers thousands of dollars in interest on loans which would have been necessary to keep the agencies going, according to DePue.

If the current lawsuit is successful, the office of township tax collector will be eliminated in each of the 30 Cook County townships. All tax money, then, would be directly channeled to the Cook County offices.

Without the tax collector's office, local townships would not be eligible to receive 2 per cent commission for collecting local taxes.

THIS YEAR, Palatine Township's commission amounted to $184,600, and was used to pay for salaries and services, including the general assistance fund at more than $19,000.

In addition, the township youth committee received $24,230 from excess commissions. Three local groups also received transfers of funds from surplus township money amounting to more than $42,000. Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School Dist. 15 received $14,000. Payment of $28,000 went to the mental health fund and $950 for the Palatine Park District Leisure Club.

"The services we provide with commission from tax collection would require an additional tax levy if the lawsuit is successful," DePue said. "Or they would have to be discontinued entirely, which, of course, would mean an end to township government."

DePue said that quick remittance of tax money to local government agencies was appreciated by all officials.

IN A LETTER sent to him last summer, James Lawrence, former business manager of High School Dist. 211, said prompt remittance of tax money "enabled us to save several thousand dollars in interest by repaying their tax warrants sooner than planned."

Harper Junior College needed funds before the close of its fiscal year and received $36,799 on June 25, according to DePue.

He said that because he receives most tax payments locally, he is able to disburse funds to local taxing bodies quickly.

"But payments from the county building are regularly slow for township agencies," he said.

"This year, the first check from Chicago did not arrive until Aug. 26," he added.

TAXES FROM THE first collection amounted to $293,490 for School Dist. 15 and so far, is the only payment the district has received.

However, DePue already had disbursed more than $2 million to the schools by Aug. 10, followed by a final payment in October, bringing Dist. 15's tax collection up to almost $1 million.

The lawsuit to eliminate township collectors has been so quiet, it is liable to be decided before most local residents are even aware of it," DePue said.

He continued, "Personal service to individuals with tax problems now performed as part of the day's work would disappear with the local tax collector's office."

"Local taxpayers would have to go to Chicago with a tax problem and face delays and indifference from county patronage employees far removed from our area," he said.

Requests Books for GIs

A former security guard at Harper College in Palatine has appealed to Northwest suburbanites for reading matter for American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Marino Gunnery Sgt. Tom McEnroe has asked residents to send the reading material to the 1,500 marines and sailors he is stationed with on Hill 34.

In a letter to Sgt. William Carroll of the Elk Grove Village Police Department, McEnroe said the troops need reading matter, "ancient or modern, in any form, be it magazines, hard-cover or soft-cover books."

ENROE, WHO MET Carroll while a security guard when the college held classes in Elk Grove Village asked for copies of Reader's Digest, Catholic Digest, Coronet and other such magazines.

"Our marines and sailors love to read them," he said.

Interested persons or groups should send the reading materials to Gt. Sgt. Tom McEnroe, 1105497 USMC, 1st 175 Gun Battery (SP), 1st Marine Div. FMF, c/o FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Skating Precautions Taken

Looking ahead to ice skating season, the Rolling Meadows Park District is taking precautions on the Kimball Hill pond until the area is safe for skating.

The pond has a warning sign and barrels which mean the ice isn't safe.

First freeze of the year and the wish to test the ice for skating makes this time in the season dangerous.

The park district said that although the pond may have a buildup of ice, one 40-degree day would cause a break through of water.

SIGNS WILL REMAIN out until conditions permit safe ice. Kimball Hill pond has approximately six feet of water and two to three feet of mud to create a dangerous condition.

In a recent survey conducted by the Illinois Association of Park Districts, it was determined that two inches of clear ice was safe for individuals, three to four inches safe for general skating, five inches safe for general skating and more than six inches safe for one-and-one-half-ton trucks.

Artificial ice produced by spraying cannot be successful until a cold spell arrives maintaining sub-freezing temperatures of 10 degrees and below with some assurance of continued below normal conditions.

Below zero conditions allow a quick freeze of one-fifteenth to one-eighth of an inch individual applications until about one inch of ice is formed.

Under normal crowd and weather conditions, skaters will shave off one-quarter inch of ice in a five-hour period.

The park district reports it will be watching daily weather indications and will begin ice construction as soon as it is possible and practical.

Stroll Nets Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally.

The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Ravlis in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as one gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages, 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instructions in 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

At the bottom of the letter was a post card, which the letter writers asked recipients to mail to Ken Gill, Dist. 21 superintendent.

The message on the post card called for an immediate end to the family living and sex education program in Dist. 21.

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

A BIG HUG FOR daddy, John G. Woods, was the reward daughter Karen had after Woods and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald were elected delegates to the Constitutional Convention yesterday. Mrs. Macdonald, at left, doesn't seem to mind the show of affection for her fellow delegate. The winners will go to Springfield Dec. 8 for the opening of the convention.

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William B. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,981 in his home township to 6,058 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs.

Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,211, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,484.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

WOODS, THE FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, has been active in numerous government activities. He served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. A Republican, Woods also has served on the Wheeling Township GOP executive board and has been active in several Republican campaigns.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Woods also is a native of a southern state, born in Shreveport, La. He is an attorney, a graduate of the Georgetown Law Center, and is employed as vice president and general counsel of Universal Oil Products of Des Plaines. He and his wife have four children. Woods is 48.

She's Smiling, 'Really Tired'

by MURRAY DUBIN

Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, was munching Mexican food hurriedly and extolling its virtues as the returns first began to appear on the big board.

Marshall Theroux was answering the phone with a cheery "Hello dear, it's Marshall."

Everyone else was sipping free premium beer and smiling at the favorable early returns at the Wheeling Township Republican Headquarters.

At 6:55 p.m., Virginia Macdonald walked into the fast-filing small room. Everyone told her to relax because it was all over and it appeared that she would be a delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

She sighed she was glad that it was over but that she wasn't ready to relax yet. Someone said: "One thing is sure, I know Engelhardt is out." The candidate and everyone else laughed.

SHE SAID she wasn't worried but, "I am really tired. The first thing I'll do tomorrow is to establish a telephone line between the voters and Springfield."

It was hard to hear her. Two adding machines, two constantly ringing phones and pleased Woods and Macdonald workers added to the noise.

Cowen was pleased at the results and the turnout. "There were less candidates with the field narrowed to four and people take the general election more seriously," he said.

The primary showed us where we needed work and we did it."

Cowen bluntly added, "The turnout is never really good because what we're bragging about is usually about 25 per cent which is lousy."

WHILE COWEN and Theroux were getting the results over the phone, Republicans kept walking in the small two-room office and congratulating the smiling but weary Con-Con winners.

At 7:15, a tanned lawyer and state representative, Eugene Schlickman, walked into the headquarters and studied the precinct voting breakdown on the big board.

As everyone was congratulating themselves on a job well done, Schlickman began to hand out petitions for his candidacy in the next state representative election.

Apollo 'Ready To Go'

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 12's moon orbiting space pilots reported everything "ready to go" yesterday for America's second lunar landing, but kept a wary eye out for radiation from a solar flare "bigger than the earth's surface."

Several discordant notes were sounded in the final crucial hours of the landing mission, but none was considered serious. The lunar landing was scheduled for 1:53 a.m. EST today.

Trade Relief Asked

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress yesterday to give more relief to U.S. industries hurt by imports and to broaden his retaliatory powers against unfair foreign competition.

Nixon pledged his administration to continuing a policy of freer world trade, but observed that this country no longer dominates world markets and that other countries are now fully competitive.

Showdown Vote Is Set

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans relented yesterday in their demand for delay and agreed to a showdown vote Friday on the controversial nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

If Democratic membership follows Senate leader Mike Mansfield's willingness to go along with the GOP proposal, the crucial roll call following three months of debate probably will come at about noon Friday.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESELY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on south Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard toteboard, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

White smiled, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate; it duplicates the trails of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trail awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political fiefdom of the district came to shake hands with the top vote-getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling

High on the list of priorities last night for Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, victorious in the Con-Con election, was saying thank-you.

While showing signs of a little surprise, she expressed her gratitude to campaign workers and those gathered at Republican Headquarters in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

"I really can't quite believe it yet," she said.

"It's been a good campaign."

And then, "All four of us have run a good campaign."

CALLING IT A CAMPAIGN to gain the confidence of voters in the Third Senatorial District, she explained, "We haven't campaigned politically. All our remarks related to issues."

Remembering back to when she first announced her candidacy in the Con-Con election, Mrs. Macdonald admitted a few things have changed.

"As I've campaigned, some of the issues have come into a different perspective," she said.

"One issue which has become crystal clear is the need for judicial reform," she said.

When someone reminded her the evening was a time to relax and celebrate, she laughed, "I guess it truly is."

But quickly added, "Tomorrow starts a busy time. I'm going to get going on that communication system right away."

AS PART OF HER campaign pledges, Mrs. Macdonald told voters she wanted to hear from anyone with ideas for the Constitutional Convention.

"So, I'll be calling the telephone company first thing in the morning," she said.

In addition to providing direct lines to her while she's attending the convention, she also hopes to provide communication lines within the northwest suburbs.

Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

"Until then, my home phone number is available," she said.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS several hours after the polls closed before she would accept the fact she was the second top vote-getter, Mrs. Macdonald eventually started thinking about her trip to Springfield.

'Ginny' Tops Here

by TOM WELLMAN

The biggest winner, in a relatively quiet Con-Con night in Elk Grove Twp., was Mrs. Virginia Macdonald.

Mrs. Macdonald, who became "Ginny" as the tallies went up on the blackboard in the GOP office in Mount Prospect, easily outdistanced her primary competition in the township, Mrs. Madeline Schroeder.

To top it off, she outdistanced former Arlington Heights president John Woods — by 11 votes.

The final tally, with all 56 precincts reporting, was Mrs. Macdonald, 3395; Woods, 3384; Mrs. Schroeder, 2492; and William Engelhardt of Inverness, 2147.

The Elk Grove GOP had endorsed Mrs. Macdonald and Engelhardt. They were overjoyed to see Mrs. Macdonald win, but they muttered about Engelhardt's lack of campaigning throughout the area. And they did not expect him to finish well.

COMMITTEEMAN Carl Hansen, as the precinct captains headed to parties thrown by Woods and Mrs. Macdonald, said the vote ran just about the way he had expected it to run.

"John Woods ran strong, as expected, in the Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights areas of Elk Grove township," he said. "Ginny Macdonald did well throughout the township."

The defeat of Mrs. Schroeder became evident much earlier in the evening, when state representative David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, gleefully posted figures showing Mrs. Schroeder doing poorly in Wheeling Twp. And she needed a strong turnout there to win a seat at the convention.

Hansen said, "I'm extremely pleased with the result, namely our district sending two highly qualified delegates to the Constitutional Convention, both of whom have a record of clear identification with Republican principles."

HE PRAISED the turnout, which hit 19.1 per cent of the registered voters in the township, which includes parts of Mount Prospect, Elk Grove, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. He said the total was six per cent higher than the turnout during the Con-Con primary.

Hansen said he felt the rainy and cold weather slowed the turnout. At the same time, although he was impressed with the 19.1 per cent, he said it wasn't enough of a turnout to decide on who should represent this area at the Constitutional Convention.

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

A BIG HUG FOR daddy, John G. Woods, was the reward daughter Karen had after Woods and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald were elected delegates to the Constitutional Convention yesterday. Mrs. Macdonald, at left, doesn't seem to mind the show of affection for her fellow delegate. The winners will go to Springfield Dec. 8 for the opening of the convention.

John Woods ran strong, as expected, in the Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 8,981 in his home township to 6,958 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs.

Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Joins Tax Collection Fight

Dist. 59 will join Elk Grove Township in its fight to continue the present method of suburban tax collection.

Board members voted Monday night to participate as intervenors in behalf of the defendants, all 30 township tax collectors in Cook County and Cook County Treasurer Edmund Kucharski.

"Basically, this will mean that when the suit comes to court a letter will be in the judge's hands indicating that we are in sympathy with the defendants," Al Walitman, acting school superintendent, said.

THE SUIT WAS filed last August by two Chicago residents in behalf of all Chicago taxpayers challenging the constitutionality of "excess fees" as a commission to township governments.

If the suit is successful the school district will lose over $100,000 in revenue which it receives from these funds yearly. Although the district has received more than that amount this year, the distribution of funds for Wheeling Township has been held up.

Townships are allowed to keep for operations 2 per cent of all taxes collected through their tax collector Money not used for operations is termed "excess" and is distributed at annual town meetings. Much of this money goes to the elementary schools.

The suit, due to come to court Dec. 2, contends that the practice grants special privileges to suburban residents over Chicago residents and alleges the state constitution is violated because it imposes upon taxpayers of the city the obligation of paying the corporate debt of other municipalities.

IN ANOTHER AREA, the board heard Mrs. Gloria Kinney, executive director of Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) outline the purpose and structure of the organization.

Mrs. Kinney explained that NEC was a program combining efforts of 10 area elementary districts and two high school districts for better efficiency in areas of similar concerns.

Each board and administration is asked to list priorities which they feel the cooperative should handle.

NEC is presently involved in four cooperative ventures, she reported. They are the Northwest Special Education Organization, of which the diagnostic learning center is a part, a Title II library cooperative and an in-service training program for teachers.

2 Police Vacancies Filled

Mount Prospect Police Chief Newell Esmond hired two recruits this month to fill vacancies in the department.

The new patrolmen are Robert Randolph, 32, of Chicago and Andy Toth, 23, of Arlington Heights. They will fill vacancies left on the force by the resignations of Charles Barr and William Ostermann.

Ostermann left the force in May to accept a position with the Schaumburg police department, and Barr is reportedly employed as a security agent for Montgomery Ward.

TOTH AND RANDOLPH have been with the department for two weeks acquainting themselves with police procedures, policies and personnel. Their orientation includes instruction in communication, records and files and police equipment.

"Both men have spent some time working in the radio room plus patrolling the streets and answering calls with the patrolmen on the shift. They're not authorized yet to write tickets or make arrests until they've completed a course at the Northwest Police Academy which is a state requirement for all policemen," Esmond said.

Toth and Randolph will take the four-week course in police instruction in January at the Northwest Police Academy in Arlington Heights. The academy is sponsored by communities in the Northwest suburban area to fulfill a state law which requires a minimum of 160 hours of classroom instruction for all members of the police force.

Classes, taught by accredited police instructors and members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, include instruction in public relations, records and files, search and seizure, law of arrest, administrative procedures, juvenile law, traffic law and criminal law.

RANDOLPH, who was employed as a switchman for the Baltimore and Ohio R.R. for 10 years before joining the force, lives in Chicago with his wife, Mary Ann. The Toths have one daughter and are expecting their second child in January.

Randolph, who has had no previous police experience, applied for the job after a friend told him that the department was hiring personnel to fill two vacancies. "My wife and I really want to move out of Chicago to the suburbs, and this is one of my primary reasons for joining the force."

"Now that I have a job in Mount Prospect, we'll have the opportunity to make that change," he said. "Also, I think I'm really going to enjoy this job, especially the opportunity to work with juveniles."

Randolph, who graduated from St. George's High School in Evanston, served two years with the Marine Corps from 1957 to 1959. He was stationed with an artillery unit at Twenty-Nine Palms in the Mojave Desert, California.

Toth, also an ex-Marine, served three years with the corps from 1964 to 1967 including tours of duty in Vietnam and Okinawa. While stationed at Da Nang in northern Vietnam, he was hit in the chest with a hand grenade during a fire fight and was evacuated to Great Lakes Naval Hospital in Waukegan.

"I WAS ON borrowed time there for a while, and it was a good eight months before I was back in shape. The force of the explosion threw me back several yards and head-first into a creek, but the funny part about it was that my wounds didn't hurt at first and I continued fighting until we were evacuated by helicopter," he said.

After he was released from the hospital, Toth finished his tour of duty at Great Lakes where he transported Marine prisoners from the brig to their original duty stations.

"The Marines who got thrown in the brig at Great Lakes had to be transported back to their bases and I accompanied them. Most of the men in the brig were there for unauthorized absences (U.A.) from the base. I'd say 90 per cent of all the prisoners were U.A. They might not have wanted to go to Vietnam, so they cut out or many of them went to visit their girls," Toth said.

Toth, who is originally from Akron, Ohio, lives in Arlington Heights with his wife, Judy, and their 2-year-old son. "I just bought a house in Mount Prospect, and we'll be moving in around the end of the month. Right now we're living in an apartment, and I'm not too crazy about that," he said.

TOTH, who also does not have previous police experience, was employed as an electrician for the Bruning Co. in Mount Prospect and Randhurst Security at Randhurst Shopping Center.

Toth and Randolph were two of 18 applicants who were interviewed by the fire and police commission and Chief Esmond, who made the final selection from a list of eligible police candidates recommended by the commission.

Each candidate was required to pass five tests for eligibility in the department: physical agility exercises, a physical examination, an aptitude test, an interview with the police and fire commission and the chief of police and an interview with Dr. Donald Duckers, consulting psychologist for the department.

The fire and police commission, established by state law, is a three-member commission appointed by the village board. Members of the commission are Laurence Ostling, 1212 Green Acres; Thomas Ackerman, 603 Henry Street, and Kenneth O'Callaghan, 903 Hi-Lusi Street.

OR WOULD YOU RATHER be a clown — Third graders at Fairview School in Mount Prospect participated in a Christmas Carnival, sponsored by the Fairview PTA, last Saturday. At one of the game booths, two teachers, Miss Patricia Kudla and Mrs. Diane Edington, applied greasepaint to the faces of Karen Cadoni and Jim Toniolo, making them into youthful clowns.

Swimming Pool Contract Set; Opens June 15

June 15 is the date set for the opening of the new River Trails swimming pool at Woodland Trail Park, Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue in Prospect Heights, according to Barbet Builders.

Barbet Builders of River Grove, was awarded the contract to construct a swimming pool complex for the River Trails Park District last week.

Barbet Builders' total bid of $397,777 was the lowest made at a district board meeting in October. The park commissioners selected the low bid after the district architect firm, Ralph H. Burke Inc., made a thorough study of all eight bids submitted.

PLANS CALL FOR A T-shaped pool with a diving well, a "kiddie" pool and a winterized bath house. The pool complex will be able to accommodate 1,000 people.

According to Bernard Carrigan, president of Barbet Builders, ground was broken Thursday. "If we get the bottom of the pool in before the frost, we should be able to put the walls of the pool in during the spring and meet our June goal."

"We should also be able to close in the bath house (build a shell) within seven weeks. Then we can work on the interior during the winter months," added Carrigan.

The only thing that might slow progress is weather and labor problems, according to Park Director Marvin Weiss.

THE DISTRICT IS still waiting to receive a building permit from Cook County. "We already have a building permit from the state, so approval from Cook County is more or less a formality," Weiss said. "The county will not release a permit until they receive a letter from Citizen's Utility Co. (CU) certifying the pool site for water service. And CU is waiting for a 'go ahead' from the Illinois Commerce Commission."

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages, 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instructions in 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

At the bottom of the letter was a post card, which the letter writers asked recipients to mail to Ken Gill, Dist. 21 superintendent.

The message on the post card called for an immediate end to the family living and sex education program in Dist. 21.

Requests Books for GLs

A former security guard at Harper College in Palatine has appealed to Northwest suburbanites for reading matter for American soldiers in South Vietnam.

Marine Gunnery Sgt. Tom McEnroe has asked residents to send the reading material to the 1,500 marines and sailors he is stationed with on Hill 34.

In a letter to Sgt. William Carroll of the Elk Grove Village Police Department, McEnroe said the troops need reading matter, "ancient or modern, in any form, be it magazines, hard-cover or soft-cover books."

ENROE, WHO MET Carroll while a security guard when the college held classes in Elk Grove Village asked for copies of Reader's Digest, Catholic Digest, Coronet and other such magazines.

"Our marines and sailors love to read them," he said.

Interested persons or groups should send the reading materials to Gy. Sgt. Tom McEnroe, 1105497 USMC, 1st 175 Gun Battery (SP), 1st Marine Div. FMF, c/o FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

2 Injured in Accidents

Two area residents were treated and released for injuries received in separate automobile accidents Monday in Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Caroline M. Lux, 44, 506 N. Russell St., Mount Prospect, was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital for cuts over her left eye and knee when the car she was driving collided with another vehicle at the intersection of Kensington and Circle Drive.

Attempting to make a left turn onto Circle Drive, Mrs. Lux's westbound automobile collided with a car driven by Mrs. Germaine C. Johnson, 44, 415 E. Grove St., Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Lux was cited on a charge of failing to yield the right-of-way.

Raymond Boll, 60, 508 S. Pine St. in Mount Prospect, was struck by an automobile while crossing Elmhurst Drive Monday evening.

Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally.

The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Rawls in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as one gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

Apollo 'Ready To Go'

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Apollo 12's moon orbiting space pilots reported everything "ready to go" yesterday for America's second lunar landing, but kept a wary eye out for radiation from a solar flare "bigger than the earth's surface."

Several discordant notes were sounded in the final crucial hours of the landing mission, but none was considered serious. The lunar landing was scheduled for 1:53 a.m. EST today.

Trade Relief Asked

WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress yesterday to give more relief to U.S. industries hurt by imports and to broaden his retaliatory powers against unfair foreign competition.

Nixon pledged his administration to continuing a policy of freer world trade, but observed that this country no longer dominates world markets and that other countries are now fully competitive.

Showdown Vote Is Set

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans relented yesterday in their demand for delay and agreed to a showdown vote Friday on the controversial nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

If Democratic membership follows Senate leader Mike Mansfield's willingness to go along with the GOP proposal, the crucial roll call following three months of debate probably will come at about noon Friday.

Woods, Mrs. Macdonald Triumph

by ED MURNANE

John Woods and Virginia Macdonald, a pair of veterans in political and government activities, were elected delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) yesterday by Third Senatorial District voters.

The winners, both residents of Arlington Heights, finished in the same order as they did in the Sept. 23 Con-Con primary when they ran one-two in a field of 16.

Running third was Mrs. Madeline Schroeder, also of Arlington Heights, and the only candidate in the field of four who did not have political party backing.

WOODS, MRS. MACDONALD and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness all had been endorsed by the Cook County Republican Central Committee and by various township Republican organizations.

In the primary, Engelhardt finished third, but a vigorous campaign and growing support for Mrs. Schroeder allowed her to pass him in yesterday's general election.

With all but one of 274 precincts in the district reporting, Woods had 19,701; Mrs. Macdonald, 17,138; Mrs. Schroeder, 13,045; and Engelhardt, 9,448.

Woods carried three townships and Mrs. Macdonald carried five, but Woods' large margin in Wheeling Township provided enough to keep him in the number one spot. He received 3,981 in his home township to 6,058 for Mrs. Macdonald and 4,926 for Mrs. Schroeder.

Engelhardt, the only non-Wheeling Township resident, received only 1,578 votes.

Engelhardt campaigned much less than the other three since the primary and the results were obvious. He carried Palatine Township, his home base, in the primary, but ran a distant third yesterday and only barely ahead of Mrs. Schroeder.

Woods, on the other hand, strengthened his Palatine Township support substantially and was challenging Mrs. Macdonald for the lead.

Wheeling Township, home of Woods, Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Schroeder, again proved the most reliable for Woods.

IN THE PRIMARY, he received 5,210 votes in Wheeling, more than half his 9,069 total. Yesterday, he again was running just about half with more than 8,000 votes.

The closest race of the night was in Elk Grove Township, where Woods and Mrs. Macdonald were neck and neck. The final showed Mrs. Macdonald on top by only 11 votes, 3,395 to 3,384.

In the primary, Mrs. Macdonald defeated Woods by more than 500 votes and Engelhardt also ran ahead of Woods. Yesterday, Engelhardt dropped to fourth with 2,147, behind Mrs. Schroeder's 2,492.

THE REAL RACE had been expected to be between Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs.

Schroeder, but the unofficial results with all but one precinct reporting gave Mrs. Macdonald a 4,100-vote plurality.

Mrs. Schroeder defeated Mrs. Macdonald in only one of the eight townships, Northfield, where she finished second behind Woods with 1,375 and ahead of Mrs. Macdonald's 1,200.

The two winners will join 114 other delegates from throughout the state Dec. 8 when Governor Ogilvie calls the convention to order in Springfield. It will be the first time in 50 years that Illinois has attempted to rewrite its 1870 Constitution.

Voters rejected the last new Constitution in 1922.

With the polls closed for only 45 minutes, it was obvious how the race would end. With results from 138 of the 275 precincts, Woods had 10,201, Mrs. Macdonald had 8,767, Mrs. Schroeder, 6,521, and Engelhardt, 4,484.

The early returns were from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Northfield townships and provided an adequate enough picture to show Woods and Mrs. Macdonald as the winners.

WOODS, THE FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, has been active in numerous government activities. He served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. A Republican, Woods also has served on the Wheeling Township GOP executive board and has been active in several Republican campaigns.

Mrs. Macdonald has established herself as one of the better known Republican women in the Chicago area.

She served as chairwoman of the Cook County Republican Central Committee and is a former Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

A NATIVE OF TEXAS, Mrs. Macdonald, 49, has lived in Arlington Heights since 1953. She and her husband, Alan, have two grown children.

Woods also is a native of a southern state, born in Shreveport, La. He is an attorney, a graduate of the Georgetown Law Center, and is employed as vice president and general counsel of Universal Oil Products of Des Plaines. He and his wife have four children. Woods is 48.

She's Smiling, 'Really Tired'

by MURRAY DUBIN

Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, was munching Mexican food hurriedly and extolling its virtues as the returns first began to appear on the big board.

Marshall Theroux was answering the phone with a cheery "Hello dear, it's Marshall."

Everyone else was sipping free premium beer and smiling at the favorable early returns at the Wheeling Township Republican Headquarters.

At 6:55 p.m., Virginia Macdonald walked into the fast-filling small room. Everyone told her to relax because it was all over and it appeared that she would be a delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

She sighed she was glad that it was over but that she wasn't ready to relax yet. Someone said, "One thing is sure, I know Engelhardt is out." The candidate and everyone else laughed.

SHE SAID she wasn't worried but, "I am really tired."

"The first thing I'll do tomorrow is to establish a telephone line between the voters and Springfield."

It was hard to hear her. Two adding machines, two constantly ringing phones and pleased Woods and Macdonald workers added to the noise.

Cowen was pleased at the results and the turnout. "There were less candidates with the field narrowed to four and people take the general election more seriously," he said.

"The primary showed us where we needed work and we did it."

Cowen bluntly added, "The turnout is never really good because what we're bragging about is usually about 25 per cent which is lousy."

WHILE COWEN and Theroux were getting the results over the phone, Republicans kept walking in the small two-room office and congratulating the smiling but weary Con-Con winner.

At 7:15, a tanned lawyer and state representative, Eugene Schlickman, walked into the headquarters and studied the precinct voting breakdown on the big board.

As everyone was congratulating themselves on a job well done, Schlickman began to hand out petitions for his candidacy in the next state representative election.

A BIG HUG FOR daddy, John G. Woods, was the reward daughter Karen had after Woods and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald were elected delegates to the Constitutional Convention yesterday. Mrs. Macdonald, at left, doesn't seem to mind the show of affection for her fellow delegate. The winners will go to Springfield Dec. 8 for the opening of the convention.

Politics In Rec Room

by JAMES VESELY

At 6:30 p.m. yesterday, John Woods walked into his house on south Belmont and brushed the snow off his lapels. He carried a pile of legal papers under one arm and in his pocket, a ticket to Springfield signed by nearly 20,000 residents of the Third Senatorial District.

Although Woods didn't know the exact figures, he and everyone else in the Con-Con campaign expected his candidacy to dominate the field of four aspirants to the Third District two Con-Con delegate seats.

Even before Woods got home, the machinery of tabulation was in gear in the basement of Woods' home, except the machinery consisted of a cardboard toteboard, a card table and two telephones.

FROM THE BEGINNING, last night, there was an air of quiet expectation at 214 S. Belmont. Campaign workers John and Nancy White began to tally the first few numbers from the townships. At 6:35 p.m., barely more than a half-hour after the polls closed, 33 of Wheeling's 89 townships reported Woods showing a substantial lead over the other three candidates.

White smiled, but said it was too early to tell. He kept that up until about an hour and a half later, when it was apparent to everyone but pilots flying overhead that Woods took the margin of victory he wanted.

While the well-wishers filed down the staircase at the Woods home, the candidate leaned against a wash tub in the back room and talked of the office he had just won.

"I hope to work on committee of finance, home rule or the judiciary," Woods said. "I think they are all of equal importance and I will be satisfied to work in any of those fields."

WOODS DISCARDED ANY notion that he may seek some high office within the convention. He said he would be pleased to be the chairman of one of the committees, but that anything higher is not being considered.

"I think I can be of more use on the floor," he said, "working in the areas that I consider most important to the convention." Woods assessed the recent campaign with the same political razor blade he honed as mayor of Arlington Heights for eight years.

"We are going down to draft a political document," he said. "It is good that there should be a political campaign in this race. A stiff campaign is good for a candidate; it duplicates the trails of office."

IN THE RECREATION room, another trail awaited him. Well-wishers composing the political freedom of the district came to shake hands with the top vote-getter of the race — State Sen. John Graham, State Rep. Gene Schlickman, Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village, Dick Cowen, Wheeling

by MARTHA KOPER

High on the list of priorities last night for Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, victorious in the Con-Con election, was saying thank-you.

While showing signs of a little surprise, she expressed her gratitude to campaign workers and those gathered at Republican Headquarters in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

"I really can't quite believe it yet," she said.

"It's been a good campaign." And then, "All four of us have run a good campaign."

CALLING IT A CAMPAIGN to gain the confidence of voters in the Third Senatorial District, she explained, "We haven't campaigned politically. All our remarks related to issues."

Remembering back to when she first announced her candidacy in the Con-Con election, Mrs. Macdonald admitted a few things have changed.

"As I've campaigned, some of the issues have come into a different perspective," she said.

"One issue which has become crystal clear is the need for judicial reform," she said.

When someone reminded her the evening was a time to relax and celebrate, she laughed, "I guess it truly is."

But quickly added, "Tomorrow starts a busy time. I'm going to get going on that communication system right away."

AS PART OF HER campaign pledges, Mrs. Macdonald told voters she wanted to hear from anyone with ideas for the Constitutional Convention.

"So, I'll be calling the telephone company first thing in the morning," she said.

In addition to providing direct lines to her while she's attending the convention, she also hopes to provide communication lines within the northwest suburbs.

Township GOP committeeman, and members of enough boards and commissions to throw a real estate developer into a state of apoplexy.

It was an evening that those who crowded there enjoy the most. It was politics in a suburban basement recreation room. And that's what they live for.

"Until then, my home phone number is available," she said.

ALTHOUGH IT WAS several hours after the polls closed before she would accept the fact she was the second top vote-getter, Mrs. Macdonald eventually started thinking about her trip to Springfield.

'Ginny' Tops Here

by TOM WELLMAN

The biggest winner, in a relatively quiet Con-Con night in Elk Grove Twp., was Mrs. Virginia Macdonald.

Mrs. Macdonald, who became "Ginny" as the tallies went up on the blackboard in the GOP office in Mount Prospect, easily outdistanced her primary competition in the township, Mrs. Madeline Schroeder.

To top it off, she outdistanced former Arlington Heights president John Woods — by 11 votes.

The final tally, with all 56 precincts reporting, was Mrs. Macdonald, 3395; Woods, 3384; Mrs. Schroeder, 2492; and William Engelhardt of Inverness, 2147.

The Elk Grove GOP had endorsed Mrs. Macdonald and Engelhardt. They were overjoyed to see Mrs. Macdonald win, but they muttered about Engelhardt's lack of campaigning throughout the area. And they did not expect him to finish well.

COMMITTEEMAN Carl Hansen, as the precinct captains headed to parties thrown by Woods and Mrs. Macdonald, said the vote ran just about the way he had expected it to run.

"John Woods ran strong, as expected, in the Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights areas of Elk Grove township," he said. "Ginny Macdonald did well throughout the township."

The defeat of Mrs. Schroeder became evident much earlier in the evening, when state representative David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, gleefully posted figures showing Mrs. Schroeder doing poorly in Wheeling Twp. And she needed a strong turnout there to win a seat at the convention.

Hansen said, "I'm extremely pleased with the result, namely our district sending two highly qualified delegates to the Constitutional Convention, both of whom have a record of clear identification with Republican principles."

HE PRAISED the turnout, which hit 19.1 per cent of the registered voters in the township, which includes parts of Mount Prospect, Elk Grove, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. He said the total was six per cent higher than the turnout during the Con-Con primary.

Hansen said he felt the rainy and cold weather sliced the turnout. At the same time, although he was impressed with the 19.1 per cent, he said it wasn't enough of a turnout to decide on who should represent this area at the Constitutional Convention.

Joins Tax Collection Fight

Dist. 29 will join Elk Grove Township in its fight to continue the present method of suburban tax collection.

Board members voted Monday night to participate as interveners in behalf of the defendants, all 30 township tax collectors in Cook County and Cook County Treasurer Edmund Kucharski.

"Basically, this will mean that when the suit comes to court a letter will be in the judge's hands indicating that we are in sympathy with the defendants," Al Wiltman, acting school superintendent, said.

THE SUIT WAS filed last August by two

Chicago residents in behalf of all Chicago taxpayers challenging the constitutionality of "excess fees" as a commission to township governments.

If the suit is successful the school district will lose over $100,000 in revenue which it receives from these funds yearly.

Although the district has received more than that amount this year, the distribution of funds for Wheeling Township has been held up.

Townships are allowed to keep for operations 2 per cent of all taxes collected through their tax collector. Money not used for operations is termed "excess" and is distributed at annual town meetings. Much of this money goes to the elementary schools.

The suit, due to come to court Dec. 2, contends that the practice grants special privileges to suburban residents over Chicago residents and alleges the state constitution is violated because it imposes upon taxpayers of the city the obligation of paying the corporate debt of other municipalities.

IN ANOTHER AREA, the board heard Mrs. Gloria Kinney, executive director of Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) outline the purpose and structure of the organization.

Mrs. Kinney explained that NEC was a program combining efforts of 10 area elementary districts and two high school districts for better efficiency in areas of similar concerns.

Each board and administration is asked to list priorities which they feel the cooperative should handle.

NEC is presently involved in four cooperative ventures, she reported. They are the Northwest Special Education Organization, of which the diagnostic learning center is a part, a Title II library cooperative and an in-service training program for teachers.

Receive Letters Rapping Sex Ed.

Letters opposing the family living and sex education program in School Dist. 21 were distributed Sunday to homeowners in the vicinity of the district's Frost School at 21 Aspen Drive in Prospect Heights.

Homeowners reported the letters, signed "The Concerned Parents of Robert Frost School and Dist. 21," were placed in their mailboxes.

The Prospect Heights post office reported it is seeking the identities of the persons who placed the letters in the mailboxes. According to a post office spokesman it is illegal to place any material in a mailbox unless it is sent through the postal system.

MISS PATRICIA WEISS, school principal, said Monday she had received several phone calls from residents in the area concerning the letter. She said the calls were from people who both disagreed with the contents of the letter and opposed the method of distribution. The Herald also received several calls complaining about the letter.

The letter was titled, "An Open Letter to the Parents of the Robert Frost School." It charged both the school district and the school itself with making "guinea-pigs of our children," in "attempting to instruct our children, ages 5 to 12 years old, in an experimental course of instruction in 'Family Living and Sex Education.' This curriculum has not been proven," said the letter.

THE LETTER suggested that if parents feel the need for such a course, "then the superintendent and his staff should, by all means have it available to them on a voluntary basis, in classes, after school hours."

At the bottom of the letter was a post card, which the letter writers asked recipients to mail to Ken Gill, Dist. 21 superintendent.

The message on the post card called for an immediate end to the family living and sex education program in Dist. 21.

Trips Over Legal Hurdle

An apartment complex on the southern edge of Arlington Heights almost made it through the hurdles at last night's meeting of the board of trustees' legal committee.

After gaining approval of their proposed plan for 137 apartment units, the owners of the property quickly throw another hurdle in the way.

The complex is planned for a 48-acre site owned by Kenroy, Inc., at Goebbert and Seeger roads. The southern edge of the land abuts the Lutheran Church of the Cross and Forest View High School.

The land is presently not a part of the village and Kenroy is seeking apartment zoning and annexation of the land by the village.

The legal committee approved the plan presented by representatives of Kenroy, but balked when a written agreement was presented.

The representatives stated the agreement merely implemented the plan the committee had just approved, but members reserved judgment until the village attorney, the village manager and committee members had a chance to look over the agreement.

The committee has held at least three meetings with Kenroy to iron out their differences. The meetings were planned to make an out-of-court settlement of a suit filed by the village against the property's owners.

A few years ago, Kenroy received zoning from the county that would allow 1,400 apartment units to be built on the property. Arlington Heights filed a suit to prevent the construction of such a high density of apartments.

Although Kenroy's plan presented last night was in accordance with the committee's recommendations in past meetings, the insurmountable hurdle was the written agreement. The committee may call another meeting to discuss the proposed agreement.

2 Injured in Accidents

Two area residents were treated and released for injuries received in separate automobile accidents Monday in Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Caroline M. Lux, 44, 506 N. Russell St., Mount Prospect, was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital for cuts over her left eye and knee when the car she was driving collided with another vehicle at the intersection of Kensington and Circle Drive.

Attempting to make a left turn onto Circle Drive, Mrs. Lux's westbound automobile collided with a car driven by Mrs. Germaine C. Johnson, 44, 415 E. Grove St., Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Lux was cited on a charge of failing to yield the right-of-way.

Raymond Boll, 60, 503 S. Pine St. in Mount Prospect, was struck by an automobile while crossing Elmhurst Drive Monday evening.

Mrs. Nancy T. Weight, 40, 600 Wyngat Lane in Buffalo Grove, was cited on a charge of driving too fast for conditions and failing to yield the right-of-way.

Boll was treated and released from Holy Family Hospital.

4 Jaycees To Attend Mock Con-Con Session

Four members of the Arlington Heights Jaycees will attend a mock Con-Con convention in Springfield this weekend with 116 other Jaycee delegates.

Bart Barrow, Joseph Engel, Robert Kazlauskis and Robert Reiter will represent the local Jaycee chapter and help draft a document representative of Jaycee members throughout the state.

The convention will form 10 committees to discuss the various aspects of the state's new constitution. Jaycees from Arlington Heights have expressed interest in working on the education and corporation committees of the convention.

The model convention in Springfield is the second step for the Illinois Jaycees in their support of revision in Illinois.

Stroll Nets Stolen Drugs

A Wheeling woman went for a simple walk along Buffalo Creek near her backyard Sunday, and ended up with two cases of stolen narcotics.

Wheeling police said the drugs could be valued as high as $25,000 if sold illegally.

The woman, Mrs. J. Rutkowski of 404 W. Dundee Road, reported the cases of capsules to police Sunday afternoon. Wheeling Sgt. Ted Bracke said yesterday the cases contained 37,000 capsules of phenaphen, a sedative which includes the narcotic, codeine.

Bracke said the drugs were stolen last week from a truck in Chicago. The three stolen cases belong to the A. H. Robins Co., of 69 Rawls in Des Plaines. The third case has not been recovered.

Bracke said one of the cases, which had been hidden along the creek bank, apparently fell into the water. The cases were found near 12th Street.

Some of the pills contained as much as one gram of codeine, police said. If bought at a pharmacy, the pills would cost between 10 and 20 cents each.

Bracke said yesterday the FBI would be brought into the case.

In a letter to Sgt. William Carroll of the Elk Grove Village Police Department, McEnroe said the troops need reading matter, "ancient or modern, in any form, be it magazines, hard-cover or soft-cover books."

ENROE, WHO MET Carroll while a security guard when the college held classes in Elk Grove Village asked for copies of Reader's Digest, Catholic Digest, Coronet and other such magazines.

"Our marines and sailors love to read them," he said.

Interested persons or groups should send the reading materials to Gy. Sgt. Tom McEnroe, 1105497 USMC, 1st 175 Gun Battery (SP), 1st Marine Div. FMP, c/o FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Kelleghan and Sommerschield Win

William Sommerschield of Elmhurst and Thomas C. Kelleghan of West Chicago are the unofficial winners of yesterday's extremely close election of state Constitutional Convention delegates in the 39th senatorial district.

Kelleghan was the top vote-getter with an unofficial 13,521 votes to the second place Sommerschield with 12,963.

The announced team of Kelleghan and Stanley Kula, both conservative Republican attorneys, failed to pull through in the finish with Kula tallying a close third place vote of 12,398.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson of Elmhurst was the low vote getter of the day and ran behind all during the election night tally. She finished with 12,183 unofficially.

ONLY ABOUT 650 votes separated the winning candidates: Kelleghan and Sommerschield, who will become the 39th district convention delegates to review the antiquated state constitution.

The last two precincts to report last night at about 9:30 p.m. were from York Township. Sommerschield rallied about 500 votes to definitely put on the road to Springfield. Sommerschield and Kula ran close all night with as little as 100 votes separating the two Republicans.

Sommerschield, 27, tagged the most liberal of the four run-off candidates, ran second most of the night with Kelleghan in the lead.

A total 50,965 ballots were used in yesterday's vote. This was considered a good voter turnout with the total number of registered voters set at 107,222.

The 40th district was also holding election of Con-Con delegates. Election central was the Wheaton courthouse.

THE 39TH DISTRICT includes the DuPage County townships of Addison, Bloomingdale, Naperville, Wayne, Winfield and York. The 40th district takes the rest of the DuPage townships of Milton, Lisle and Downers Grove.

Kelleghan, 41, is attorney and a member of the DuPage County public defender's office. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame law school.

Sommerschield is a time buyer for the advertising firm of Leo Burnett of Chicago. He has been a legislative assistant in both houses of the Illinois General Assembly and a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The Con-Con vote appeared to be neither a landslide victory for the conservative or liberal fronts. Sommerschield's fine showing probably was also a moral victory for the young, liberal movement from which he drew part of his backing.

Mrs. Larson was considered a non-parti-

Losers See Defeat In Different Ways

The two 39th District candidates who lost their bid for a seat at the Constitutional Convention in December had distinctly different reactions to yesterday's election results.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson was attending a board meeting of Salt Creek School Dist. 48 when she received the results. She calmly expressed disappointment at news of her last-place finish.

"Well, I'm pleased Sommerschield won," she said.

MRS. LARSON HAD campaigned as an independent candidate, but she shared with Sommerschield liberal views supporting streamlined government and more equitable taxes.

Mrs. Larson said she hoped to continue working for her political goals, perhaps by regaining an active part in the League of Women Voters.

"I have no specific plans to help influence the convention," she said. "I thought I'd wait until I saw the election results."

KULA SEEMED ANGRY when interviewed at his home following the election.

"I guess the people would prefer I continue to practice law instead of attending the Constitutional Convention," Kula said.

When asked why he lost while his virtual running mate, Thomas Kelleghan, gained the most votes, Kula was unwilling to answer. He and Kelleghan were both strong party favorites, advocates of conservative government.

"I haven't the foggiest idea why I lost, and I think it's ridiculous to ask me before I've had a chance to analyze the results, precinct by precinct."

Kula said he would continue his political activities.

"I WORKED ON THE issues long before the convention started, and I intend to continue."

"But it's ridiculous to plan how to help in Springfield since I lost. If the delegates want any help from me, it's their job to contact me, not me contacting them."

A Kula supporter who had joined the san candidate and had the League of Women Voters working for her while Sommerschield depended on friends and endorsements from news media.

KELLEGHAN AND KULA were undoubtedly supported and worked for by the hardcore Republicans including many committeemen. Kula's defeat was not a party defeat, but rather a defeat of his campaign since he was forced to finalize some of his views to form a team with Kelleghan and get formal township support.

There were no voting trends in Bloomingdale Township evident last night, however, Addison Township went for Mrs. Larson and Sommerschield. The heavy Addison Township vote for Sommerschield is counted as one factor toward Kula's defeat there.

Kula household in watching election results expressed his own disappointment.

"I think the people will be sorry they didn't get a man of this caliber to bring some common sense to this fiasco," he said. "The people have spoken, and they got what they deserve."

Amazed at Closeness of Race

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Understandably tired and happy, Thomas C. Kelleghan, top vote-getter in the election for delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention from the 39th Dist. was "pleased with the voter turnout and amazed at the closeness of the race."

In a victory statement released late last night Kelleghan said:

"I am elated at being elected delegate to the Constitutional Convention, but I consider my election a victory for the point of view of those who supported me."

"I look forward to the challenge of helping to write a new constitution for the state of Illinois and to working with William Sommerschield in Springfield."

"In particular I am grateful to all who worked so hard for my election, especially to my close advisers."

"FINALLY WITHOUT the patience and understanding of my wife the campaign could not have been a success."

Commenting on the loss of Stanley A. Kula who made a third-place finish behind William A. Sommerschield, Kelleghan said "I guess he just wasn't strong enough."

Kula, who received 12,398 votes to Som-

ELECTION RETURNS poured in as members of the Wheaton North varsity football team helped the DuPage County clerk's office handle ballots last night at election central, Wheaton. Two high school age sons of Jay Benedict, chief deputy county clerk, rounded up the boys who act as paid volunteers. Yesterday's election of two Constitutional Convention delegates from the 39th District was close.

merschield's 12,963 was running as part of a team with Kelleghan during the final weeks of the campaign.

With the election of Sommerschield, who has opposed him on many issues, Kelleghan said "There will be two points of view at the convention. I do not foresee any problems. We understand each other."

Kelleghan said he anticipates and encourages letters from the voters of the district. He has set up a mailing address, Con-Con, P.O. Box 25, Lombard, Ill. 60418.

He added he will begin working on his proposed advisory council "immediately" and promised there would be publicity on it soon.

KELLEGHAN TOLD THE Register earlier he hoped to pattern the advisory council after one formed by State Rep. Lewis V. Morgan, R-38th Dist.

The council utilized by Morgan, consisted of representatives from professional

Explains: Got Most Votes

by GARY ZACNY

William Sommerschield, victorious 39th district candidate for the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a sound explanation for his success in the election last night.

"I think the explanation, pure and simple, is that I had a lot of citizens and committeemen who worked hard on my behalf. And I got the most votes."

Sommerschield's victory was a mild upset, since he ran against a pair of strongly supported Republican party men, Thomas Kelleghan and Stanley Kula. Sommerschield felt he was able to edge Kula because of the intense canvass conducted by his supporters Saturday.

"I think this did it, as I think was the case in the primary," Sommerschield said. "There were hundreds of people working, in the rain, going door-to-door, leaving literature. And this made all the difference."

SOMMERSCHIELD SAID he expected no friction between himself and Kelleghan, the other elected delegate. Despite the conflict of his liberal views with Kelleghan's conservative leanings, Sommerschield felt certain they could achieve a working relationship.

Sommerschield promised to work hard to uphold the interests of his supporters and to maintain good communication between Springfield and the electorate of the 39th District. He issued the following statement to cement those goals:

"I want to thank everyone who assisted in achieving this victory. It is really a victory for the many citizens who worked for months in my behalf, both in the primary and in today's election."

"I PLAN TO WORK hard with my fellow delegates in the coming months to help write a new constitution for the next 100 years. I will try honestly and thoroughly to represent all the residents of this district, keeping in close communication with them as the vital issues come up in Springfield."

"As delegates to this convention, we have an awesome responsibility for meeting the needs of the future of Illinois. I will dedicate my efforts to that task and with the continued support and interest of the political leaders, committeemen, newspapers and hundreds of hard working residents of DuPage County, we will write a new constitution which everyone can be proud of and which can be adopted by the voters."

Nottke To Oppose Knuepfer in Primary

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Itasca Mayor Wilbert H. Nottke formally announced late last night he would oppose State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th Dist., in the March 17 Republican primary election.

At the close of the municipality's village board meeting, Nottke told trustees that reports he might run were true, and "I'm officially in the race."

He is circulating petitions, "lining up support, and it looks a lot better than I thought it would."

FIRST INDICATIONS that Nottke would challenge Knuepfer, a two-term veteran, came last Friday when the mayor confirmed his interest in an exclusive interview with the Register.

The announcement followed a village board meeting at which a group of residents objecting to a special assessment for a storm sewer in the vicinity of Washington and Walnut streets were heard.

Nearly 120 residents have opposed the measure for more than a year, and expressed frustration when it was learned the village's special assessment of the $220,000 project will be upheld in court, probably next week.

THE VILLAGE board's position is that they may or may not pursue the project further, because the original assessment would have to be dropped and another filed.

Discussion ranged from bitter charges of "a shady deal" to an appeal for an end to name-calling and a declaration that a matter of individual rights was involved.

Residents in the area indicated they may appeal the local court decision.

The board approved a variation in zoning request by the Union Oil Co., for installation of a gas station at Maple and Line streets.

The action came after an impassioned plea by Trustee Roy Petherbridge to deny the request on grounds the station would be an eyesore, lead to dangerous precedent in the business district, and that it was wrong to use a zoning approval to force another service station out of business.

HE WAS SPEAKING of a Standard Oil Co. station which all agreed is an eyesore and which would be next to the new Union Oil facility.

Nottke, speaking for the majority of the board, contended that the new station would be a service to residents in helping to end undesirable business district structures, be valuable for residents because of locale opposite the railroad station, and Merton Wright, Fenton High School Dist. 100 board of education member, asked for the resignation last night of Board Pres. James DiOrio.

"At the last meeting, you said you would tender your resignation as soon as there was a full board present," he told DiOrio, "and there is a full board here tonight (Tuesday)."

DiOrio responded:

"I feel I am not going to resign because I have not yet seen a change in this board. As long as you remain a board member, helpful to commuters because of more parking space available.

The parking space results from a land trade tied to the offer, in which the village gave Union Oil 1,950 square feet in exchange for more than 22,000 square feet of land.

Mr. Wright, so should I. I will not tender my resignation."

"STILL I WILL remain as president as long as this board does not ask me to resign," DiOrio said.

Last June during a dispute over school administrative salaries, DiOrio resigned orally, saying:

"I feel I can no longer work with this board."

It was pointed out at the following board meeting during which DiOrio was absent, that his resignation was not official until submitted in writing and approved by the board of education.

Last night's request by Wright came during a presentation by Carl York, industrial arts department chairman, who told the board:

"If truth is our end, and we are not self-seeking, bias, newspaper-selling people, the truth about the program at Fenton must be told."

York was asking for cooperation from the board to reinstate the curtailments at Fenton. He added that he felt the board was not communicating well with either teachers or the public.

MANY TASKS are involved in teaching a child how to use library facilities. Mrs. LeRoy Braekin, library secretary for the Dist. 2 schools, shows third grader Julie Marek from Tioga School how to use the card catalog. This week is National Children's Book Week.

How To Teach 'Unknowns'?

One of the biggest unknowns for those in the field of special education is how to teach the child with learning disabilities. By definition, the child is of at least average or above average intelligence, but has some problem which prevents him from learning at his normal level.

Mrs. Jan Freeman, director of special education for Bensenville Dist. 2 schools, said the problem can be due to several factors. Some are perceptual handicaps, that is the inability to discriminate auditory and visual images.

Other problems in learning may be due to a cultural background different from that of the average suburban child or emotional involvements which interfere with the child's ability to learn.

THERE ARE 39 children in the program in Bensenville, with a staff of five full-time teachers. The program in Bensenville has been in existence for six years and expanded greatly in that time but Mrs. Freeman said there is a waiting list of 60 more children.

Efforts to assist students with learning disabilities, once the forgotten children of the classroom, need to be accelerated in the next few years, Mrs. Freeman said.

Increasing recognition of the problem is being expressed through state and federal legislation and the combined activities of parents and educators at the local level, according to Joseph Gartner of Glen Ellyn, president of the West Suburban Association for the Other Child.

To help call attention to the efforts already being made, Governor Richard Ogilvie has designated Nov. 16-22 as the "Week for Children with Learning Disabilities."

Some authorities estimate that 10 per cent or more of our school children have perceptual, conceptual or coordinative problems that prevent them from learning at their level even though they have normal intelligence.

IT HAS ONLY been in the last few years, however, that the scope of the problem has been recognized and that progress has been made in getting special education programs started, even though many of these children can achieve their full learning potential if given the proper assistance.

One step has been the enactment of Article 14 of the Illinois School Code, which has required all school districts since July 1 to provide programs for all handicapped children, including those with learning disabilities.

More recently, the House of Representatives adopted a bill, H.R. 13310, introduced by Illinois Rep. Roman C. Pucinski (D-Ill.), to provide special programs for children with learning disabilities. A companion bill, S.B. 1190, has been introduced in the Senate.

Teen Dance Plans

A teen dance, to be held Friday at White Pines Golf Course, will be a topic of discussion at tonight's Bensenville Park District meeting.

Donald Carroll, park district president, said the board would "have to discuss the matter."

The dance is scheduled from 8 to 11:15 p.m. Friday and will be sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker of 458 Milner Street in Bensenville. The Walkers have contracted two bands for the evening, The Fifth Column and The Facts of Life. Tickets will cost $2.25 per person.

The idea for holding a teen dance in Bensenville began with Tom Walker some time ago. At the time, he was (and still is) operating a teen club on the South Side of Chicago called the Village Green. The dances were such a success that he began wondering if he could do the same sort of thing for teens in the western suburbs.

WALKER SAID HE WAS encouraged in his idea by local residents who felt there was a need for such entertainment in and around Bensenville.

The first step of the plan was to hold an experimental dance at Flick-Reedy Corp. early this fall. Walker hired a popular band, put out posters and attracted more than 600 teens from the Bensenville area to the dance. Finding the idea successful, he decided to pursue it further.

Holding another dance at Flick-Reedy was out of the question. The company has a policy that a single organization can rent its facilities only once a year and then only for two years in a row.

So Walker began looking around for a facility large enough to hold the kind of dances he likes best, those with lots of kids and lots of music. Walker said that he found no building in Bensenville large enough so he went to the Dist. 100 school board to ask for permission to rent the gymnasium at Fenton High School. The board heard him out and asked him to make a formal application with the administration.

THIS HE DID AND was notified a week later that his request had been turned down for several reasons. Probably the largest was that his dances are a profit-making organization, something the school generally shies away from.

Another reason was wear on the gymnasium floor and conflicts with regularly-scheduled school events. Also, the administration said, there would be confusion among students about the difference in regulations between school-sponsored dances and Walker's dances.

According to board policy, decisions made by the administration which are denials for school use are reviewed by the board. It is expected that Walker's request will be reconsidered at this week's Dist. 100 meeting.

In the meantime, Walker asked to rent space in one of the elementary schools in Dist. 2. Again his request was turned down by the administration.

NEXT, WALKER WENT to the village. He talked first to Village Pres. John Varble who referred him to trustee William Bychowski, chairman of the youth committee.

Walker took his case before Bychowski, who said he liked in principle what Walker was trying to do, but didn't see any way the village could help since it owned no facility large enough and had no control over the school boards which had made the decisions.

Still not ready to give up, Walker waited about a week and then remembered that the White Pines Golf Course might be available for rental. He investigated, and found that it was.

WALKER SAID White Pines did not have "the capacity we would like," but added, "anyway, it's a start." The capacity of the White Pines facility is between 250 and 300 persons.

Cost of renting the hall is a $50 minimum deposit with a 50-cent charge per person up to 200.

Walker said there "is a possibility we would try to rent the facility on a regular basis," but added that Friday's dance will be experimental.

Advisory Group Is Appointed

Ten new appointments for college advisory committees were approved by the board of trustees, College of DuPage, at their meeting Nov. 12.

They include: William J. Boswell, Metals Technology; Thomas Crowe, Cooperative Education; Russell R. DeRose, Electronics; George P. Graves, Police Science; Chief John H. Jones, Fire Science; William A. Marbach, Graphic Arts; Lee C. Mielke, Architectural Technology; Braly S. Myers, Mechanical Technology; Patrick Williams and Mrs. Alda Young, Library Technician Assistant.

After almost two months of consideration the board voted to pay its dues to the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges (IACJC). The board had withheld their dues because of reservations concerning the relevancy of IACJC to the needs of community college movement in Illinois and College of DuPage.

In a report to the board, Vice Chairman J. Daniel Ray expressed optimism that the state association is aware of its problems and is making headway in resolving areas questioned by DuPage. He recommended continuing membership within the present organization.

CHOOSING GOOD children's books is not a simple task as Sue Ozmus, librarian for the Bensenville Dist. 2 schools, well knows. Miss Ozmus said there are many good book lists available for parents so they can be sure their child is reading worthwhile books.

School Activities Cut Back

Several major extra-curricular activities at Bensenville's Fenton High School are cut back this year due to curtailments in salary allotments for faculty advisors and lack of supplies.

One major economy move by the high school district was the cut back on $6,000 worth of athletic equipment and supplies. Another slice in the budget comes for $3,000 in theater equipment and supplies. The athletic and theater programs will likewise suffer for these losses.

The creative writing high school magazine, Helikon, will probably not be published this year due to the lack of a $280 allotment for an adviser, unless a faculty member volunteers time.

MUSIC WILL suffer with the elimination of salaries for a director of Madrigals singing group, director of marching band and director of pep band (reduced 50 per cent). A total $850 savings was made in the music department.

Other losses will be coaches for junior varsity football and basketball; and adviser for modern dance group, Orchestras; freshman wrestling coach; theater ticket manager and assistant theater director.

Civil Defense Enlarges Role

The role of Civil Defense workers in Bensenville is growing stronger. The group recently added two new members, Ed Knicker and Robert Liss.

During the Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of the Halloween holiday, the civil defense aided police by helping patrol the village. Using their own cars, CD workers roamed throughout the town, spotting probable vandalism areas and alerting the police department.

Communications became possible through new mobile unit radios installed in several of the CD cars by the village. Other workers relied on help through privately purchased radios in their cars.

Police Charge 2 With Theft

Two persons were arrested by Bensenville police Saturday and charged with theft. John Joseph Sellinger and Beverly Conin, both of Chicago, were stopped by Bensenville police at 3 p.m. for speeding. Police said the driver, Sellinger, was doing 49 in a 25 m.p.h. zone.

Police became suspicious when they stopped Sellinger and saw a box containing numerous cartons of cigarettes on the seat beside him. Police took both driver and passenger to the station for questioning.

According to the police station, he took the box that had been next to him on the seat and put it in the trunk. Police observed other boxes in the trunk including liquor and bottles of men's cologne.

POLICE SAID Sellinger had told them he was arrested for armed robbery of a drug store in 1965, but disclaimed any knowledge of recent thefts in Bensenville.

Police found that labels had been torn or scratched off the various bottles and question Sellinger about it. He said he was an independent vending machine salesman and had purchased the cigarettes for the machines.

Wrapped in a piece of tissue which Miss Conin dropped were several labels which police checked with several local merchants who said the labels matched their own.

The pair was released on $1,000 bond each and are scheduled to appear in court Dec. 19.

POLICE HAVE reported the days surrounding Halloween this year were exceptionally quiet and vandalism was at a minimum in Bensenville.

The Civil Defense also assisted at the Halloween dance at Fenton and the Park District costume party.

Another part of the new civil defense image is the uniform which CD workers are adopting. The uniforms are similar to those of the Bensenville Police and bunker coats and boots have been ordered for use when aiding the fire department. Hats and patches on the coats will identify those who work in the Civil Defense.

The Bensenville group recently acquired a 20-Kilovolt generator which has been placed temporarily on the large fire and rescue truck. It will be transferred soon to a trailer.

The generator will be used as auxiliary power for the village, police or fire department in the event of an emergency power failure. A CD man is being trained to maintain and operate the unit.

Another project of the Civil Defense is training and study on how to deal with emergencies of all kinds. The group is working in close conjunction with the Bensenville Police Department in gaining this necessary training.

THE GROUP HOPES to begin a course soon in crowd and traffic control. Other programs being instituted are refresher and beginner courses in first aid. The group hopes all members will have received first aid cards by early December.

The Bensenville unit is seeking new members. Upon passing screening tests and a 90-day probationary period, an applicant is eligible for full membership. Meetings of the Civil Defense are held on the second Tuesday of every month at 8 p.m. in the basement of the Bensenville Police Station. Any interested men should call 766-8209 for further information.

Officers of the Bensenville Civil Defense are Richard Sabatino, director; Frank Bollinger, assistant director; and Norman Anderson, secretary.

The finance committee of the forest preserve commission opened bids Monday for a $7,500,000 bond issue authorized at the last session of that body. The commission has the same membership as the county board. This authorization requires the finance committee to select the lowest bidder and bring in a recommendation at today's session for approval.

According to Carleton Nadelhoffer, commission legal adviser, although the apparent low bidder is the Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago the committee will want to analyze the methods used in the bid proposals offered and "go into the arithmetic" before the best offer is accepted.

HE SAID A MEETING of the committee will be held before the opening of today's forest preserve commission to reach a common agreement necessary for a recommendation.

Tuesday of next week an ordinance will be voted on legalizing this bid award and the sale of the bonds.

The three low bidders and their bids are: Continental Illinois National Bank, 6.22259; Northern Trust, 6.23846; and Harris Trust, 6.2772.

Asked how this interest rate compared with previous ones Jack O'Heron, commission administrative officer, said last October it was 4.237 and 10 years ago it was close to 3 per cent.

This shows, says Pat Savaiano, finance chairman, what unparalleled growth and inflation is doing to the cost of money needed for public financing in suburban DuPage County.

He reveals that the interest cost on these 20 year maturity bonds will amount to $4,376,625. This is in addition to the principal or the listed dollar value of the bond issue.

But he says these big banks are eager to handle a DuPage County bond issue because these bonds are easy to dispose of. This is because they are tax exempt and DuPage County is a top bond risk because of its long tradition of solvency and its nearly 100 per cent tax collections. The county boasts these pretty strong credentials, with a figure of $1,871,025,677 in assessed valuations as of 1968.

"THERE'S NO BETTER investment in the foreseeable future than DuPage County bonds," Carl Demme a forest preserve program advocate says.

LeRoy James, Downers Grove, president of the commission, said the funds from the bond sales will be used to finance the second phase of the land acquisition program, which will be the purchase of 1641 acres. He points out that suitable acreage in DuPage County for forest purposes is disappearing fast.

"Looking to the future we need the acreage because our population is increasing," he claims. "The longer we wait the higher the cost and the likelihood of not getting what we need in park land or maybe none at all."

But at the present time the commission, as Savaiano previously pointed out, is operating on one leg. A directive from the Nixon administration has suspended the dollar-matching that has been flowing from Washington.

For every dollar spent from local taxes for land acquisition until a few months ago another dollar was tossed in the fiscal hopper from federal sources.

DuPage County taxpayers have felt that matching dollars for DuPage County is justified because they claim they are in the front row among suburban counties in the country sending federal income tax dollars to Washington.

THAT'S WHY DuPage County is interested in a reverse flow of dollars from Washington for local government projects. This is heralded as a part of the Nixon administration program. But more urgent issues have to be solved first, overwhelmingly Republican DuPage County leaders agree.

This seems to say that with the present tax and financial climate there is no telling when those matching dollars will resume their flow. Under the circumstances, the general agreement is that the county will have to go it alone. To wait might be disastrous for the land acquisition program.

The members of the finance committee handling this bond program for land acquisition are: Savaiano, chairman, Koebbeman, Belling, Nichols, Ruzicka and Haas.

Fred Koebbeman, Addison Township, says this bond cost comes to $5 per $10,000 assessed valuation. Further, he makes clear, a statute, little used, was voted by the legislature which gives counties, for purposes such as this, power to authorize bond issues up to 75 per cent of their bonding power without referendum.

To show taxpayers how their money is being spent, Howard Johnson, DuPage County Forest Preserves superintendent, announces a guided tour at the 1115 acre Blackwell Preserve, north of Butterfield Road and west of Winfield Road, Sunday.

HERE THE MUCH publicized "hill" is being built for winter sports and a fascinating 65 acre lake is being created for those who prefer warm weather.

Refuse from all parts of the county, including garbage, is used in the construction of the hill and makes it authentically DuPage, if artificial.

Addison's peace rally last Friday in support of the "get out of Vietnam" effort was a bust. The only group out in force was the law.

This reporter as an observer that chilly afternoon saw only one police car. It was parked across Addison Road near Armitage where the "action" was.

The police sat in the car to stay warm. It was so cold the protesters only complained about the weather, not the war. There were chattering teeth, not chanting and just shivering, not shouting.

WHEN READING through the weekend police reports as usual on Monday morning, this reporter was taken aback by the number of police and others who were actually hawking the blue-tipped crowd of long hairs.

According to the report, there were six squad cars, other unmarked cars and private vehicles. The occupants varied from the Addison assistant police chief (since the regular chief is out of town), two police sergeants, seven regular officers and the local director of civil defense. The report also said there were even two U.S. Army intelligence officers and a juvenile officer from Addison.

The highly trained group of law enforcement guys took down car license numbers and eyeballed the proceedings while they lasted.

Just like in movies, an unmarked car with four big fellows in topcoats drove slowly around. License numbers and car descriptions were written down and checked later.

THE LICENSE PLATES check showed an interesting group in attendance that Arctic afternoon. The report showed cars lined up along Armitage belonged to a guy from Villa Park, three others from Chicago, one fellow from Lansing, Mich., three from Elmhurst and one rent-a-car.

I was sure one of the license checks was accurate. It was mine. The cops and I joked about it Monday after I explained I wasn't a Communist infiltrator or something.

When I first saw my name in the police report, I wasn't sure if I was listed as a wanted man, public enemy No. 103 or just one of the local no-goodniks. I told the kindly police officer who I was, but maybe the three choices previously mentioned still applied, in his mind, at least.

IN WAS COMFORTING to know Addison was safe Friday afternoon. The expected 100 anti-war protesters didn't show up despite some good efforts by rally organizers. The group may try again later, but maybe they should wait until spring so the protest songs and anti-war slogans aren't drowned out by a chorus of "Jingle Bells" or shouts of "Happy New Year."

School Vote: Register Now

Any resident of Community High School Dist. 88 who intends to vote in the Nov. 23 referendum, and who is not registered from his present address, may register starting tomorrow through election day.

To be eligible to vote, a person must be a United States citizen, 21-years-old or over, and have lived in the state one year, in the county 90 days, and in the school district 30 days.

Persons may register at the DuPage County clerk's office, at the county court house building in Wheaton, Monday through Friday, between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., or at any municipal or township office in the county.

A voter expecting to be out of the county, confined to hospital or home on election day can vote absentee by applying to the Dist. 88 business office at Willowbrook High School, 1250 South Ardmore Ave., Villa Park, or not later than Saturday in person.

FOR FURTHER information on voting absentee, call the school district business office, TE 4-9400, ext. 341.

Every resident of Dist. 88 could be affected in one way or another if the district's three high schools are forced to go on double shifts or are compelled to shut down. Sam N. Weigle, general chairman of the district's Citizens' Advisory Council (CAC) points out.

The district's board of education has said that one, or perhaps all three of the high schools, York in Elmhurst, Willowbrook in Villa Park, and Addison Trail in Addison may have to be put on double shifts as early as next year unless the overcrowding of buildings, caused by steadily rising enrollment, is relieved.

All three schools are now on split shifts, which increase the capacity of the buildings by about 10 per cent. Under a double shift schedule, half of the students would go to school five hours in the morning, and the rest attend five hours in the afternoon.

A PROPOSED BOND issue of $8,800,000, to be voted on in the Nov. 23 referendum, would provide funds to construct additional classrooms and laboratories, and renovate facilities that are inadequate or obsolete.

The other referendum proposal is for an increase of 17 cents in the educational fund tax rate limit from its present $1.03 to $1.20 per $100 of assessed evaluation.

According to the school board, unless the schools are provided with additional tax revenue, the deficit in that fund will reach $1,700,000 by the end of this school year, and $5,650,000 by the end of the 1971-72 school year. At that time the fund will be insolvent, with insufficient cash to meet teacher payrolls and other expenses, and with the district's legal borrowing power exhausted, the schools might be forced to close.

"We should do everything possible to avoid double shifts," Weigle said. "Our investigations have shown that wherever double shifts have had to be established, a serious deterioration in the quality of education occurred.

"They led to the departure of some of the best teachers. They caused inconvenience to parents as well as students and created transportation problems. It was also necessary to eliminate school cafeteria service. They reduced the accessibility of school library and other resource facilities, and permitted teachers virtually no opportunity to give individual help to students with their problems."

"A school shutdown would affect the community as a whole in a variety of ways. Residential property values would decline, juvenile delinquency problems would multiply, and corporations would be less inclined to send their executive personnel to a community that wasn't willing to give its high schools enough support to keep them in operation."

"THE CUTS MADE IN budget expenditures for the current school year by Dist. 88 are more drastic than most people realize," Board Member John F. Gorman said.

"As adopted by the board, this year's educational fund budget reflects cutbacks totaling $631,500 from what would have been a normal program."

About $367,500 of that total represents the elimination of salaries of 35 teachers which was done by reducing the personnel. Under normal conditions, 20 to 30 additional teachers would have been hired to handle the increase in student enrollment. Not only were no teachers added, but the total number of certificated personnel was reduced by five. The reduction in faculty made it necessary to enlarge class sizes substantially.

Another $37,000 was "saved" by a reduction in administration and clerical expenditures. Cutbacks in faculty compensation for athletics, music, Pom Poms, etc., amounted to $38,000. Expenditures for the libraries were cut by $16,000; for supplies, $24,000, and for reference books, $8,000. Other cutbacks brought the total reductions to $631,500.

Airport Lobby Dedicated

CLAUDE WALKER JR.

The lobby of the DuPage County airport's new administration building was dedicated Saturday to the late Claude Walker Jr., of Bensenville.

Walker, a former Addison township assistant supervisor, died just over a year ago at the age of 33. The son of former State Rep. Claude A. Walker Sr., R-Forest Park, he was a county board member since 1961. He was also the editor of a weekly newspaper in Forest Park and an active DuPage County Republican.

The county-built building completed Oct. 1 will house offices of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) flight service station, the DuPage County manager and other county offices.

Also contained are administration offices for the airport. The upstairs of the $300,000 structure is presently vacant but may soon be home for the county superintendent of schools.

Among the speakers and guests Saturday were Paul Ronske, county board chairman Jack Wubolding, assistant area manager for the FAA Jake Levesque, assistant director for the Illinois department of aeronautics; and many county board members.

Mrs. Nancy Walker accepted a plaque during the reading of a board resolution of dedication and recognition to Walker. An open house was held following formal ceremonies.

Walker was active in county politics, filling the positions of secretary of the Addison Township Republican Party and Addison Township Committeeman. He was past president of the Addison Township Young Republicans.

Walker had three children, a son Claude III, 16 and two daughters, Robin, 13, and Lisa, 11.

Four Teams — Four! — Tied for Top

THE BEST IN Sports Sportsman's Notebook by KEN KNOX

Illinois is not exactly Nebraska or South Dakota as a pheasant state, but it still does boast some of the nation's finest ring-necked shooting, and not very far from these suburbs

The Illinois Department of Conservation — which seems to be keeping tabs of pheasants better than ever this year — has come up with a Top Ten of pheasant counties in the state

They're all in a cluster in East Central Illinois, including the farm land around Pontiac, Watseka, Champaign-Urbana, Lincoln and Bloomington-Normal

The best of them is the closest — Livingston — and the rest, in order, are Logan, Ford, Woodford, Moultrie, Platte, McLean, Champaign, Iroquois and DeWitt

The conservation people have even pinpointed what are supposed to be the two most concentrated pheasant areas in Illinois — the region in Logan County between Emden and San Jose, and the spot where Douglas, Edgar, Champaign and Vermilion counties join

Getting into this prime pheasant country is no problem, because it's accessible by two expressways Interstate 55 (old U.S. 66) cuts diagonally through the western half of the area, from Dwight at the Livingston County line all the way to near Springfield And the new Interstate 57, now complete from the city south to Onarga, runs directly into the eastern half

The only problem is finding a place to hunt once you get there, because Illinois — unlike some states — never has come to grips with that problem. It's still a matter of getting permission from private landowners, a tricky piece of diplomacy at best

There is one state hunting area in the cluster, the Iroquois County Area in extreme Iroquois County But to hunt there, you need a special permit from the conservation department

Anyway, it's great to know all that fine pheasant country is there, and just to drive through it is a thrill

But it's not really necessary to go even that far, if you can get permission closer to home. Some good pheasant shooting was again reported in this part of North-east Illinois after opening day Saturday, with hunters still bagging roosters in the little farm and marsh pockets outside of Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling

The birds are still there, whatever we've done to drive them away

And it's even better up in Lake and McHenry counties, not just because they're more rural, but also because the high concentration of hunting preserves in those counties has been a real reservoir for the pheasant population

All things considered — the numbers up, weather holding, most of the corn picked — it could be one of the best Illinois pheasant seasons in years

OTHERWISE: —The first session of the Illinois shotgun deer season runs this Friday through Sunday, with permits still available in 33 of the 71 counties open for hunting Among counties still open are these in northern Illinois: Boone, DeKalb, Henry, Kendall, Lee, Stark and Winnebago. Second session of the season is Dec. 12-14

—Freelancers have been given the word by the conservation department everyone who hunts on a state-managed goose, pheasant or duck-hunting area where a permit is required must pay the fee Past policy was to give courtesy passes to certain individuals, and that list grew to 2,345 persons last year As one department official observed, it became hard to say "no" So now the department has decided to say no to everyone, including conservation employees, members of the General Assembly and (gulp) press people Even though I've been cut off from a privilege I never took advantage of, I say good for the department

—How many fish did you catch last year? 10? 50? 200? That's nothing, pal, compared to the number taken without benefit of any tackle. Good old pollution claimed 15,236,000 in 1968, give or take a few hundred thousand. That's the count from the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration. Biggest killer of all our municipal sewers and sewage treatment plants, which in the census of 42 states were responsible for almost 7 million dead fish. Close behind: industrial wastes. Think of how much fun it would have been to have taken all those fish on rod and reel

If a parlor game were invented that involved thinking up the most worn-out sports phrases of all time, some of the leading ones would be "up for grabs" and "anyone can win it"

As trite as these phrases are, nothing can better describe the current first-half race in the Paddock Classic Traveling League And the saying "several teams still have a shot at it" — applied to the present Classic scramble — could rank as one of the biggest understatements of the season

Yes, the accompanying standings ARE correct. No less than four teams are crammed into first place, and that may make this race closer this late in the half-season than any race has been ever before in the 12 years of the league

For a time, the men's teams were playing "hot potato" with the lead. Now, they're all trying to hold on to it at once

Can you imagine being two points out of first place with 11 of the first half's 16 weeks gone and still being in fifth place? That's the plight of Snack Time Restaurant at the moment

It's all part of the mad, mad, mad world of Paddock Classic bowling, in as wild a scuffle for the top as you'll ever want to see

Going into last weekend, the league was in one of those situations where just the right combination of circumstances, out of countless possibilities, had to occur for the results to come out as they did

That bizarre combination somehow came to pass. It involved such happenings as the previous first-place team being shut out, the second place unit also losing, and two teams previously tied for fourth both winning shutouts to jet into a share of first

A tense individual battle for first place also continues to accompany the team jostling. Bob Glaser posted a 645 series, second high of the night, to push his average just above 200 and sneak back into first place after a two-week absence. Ray Olson, who was bumped out of the top spot, is just an eyelash behind Glaser

The other big news individually was Al Brown's blazing 682 series for Snack Time. That's the second best series of the season in the league and just three pins from the best

Al Brown

Morton Pontiac and Uncle Andy's Cow Palace were the two teams coming out of nowhere with 7-0 shutouts to tie for the lead after previously being in a tie for fourth

Morton racked up the top team series of the night, 2965, including a middle game total of 1024, in subbing Thunderbird Pro Shop. Glaser's 645 paved the way with other big contributions coming from Mike Wagner (623) and Bob Bennett (591)

There were also a pair of 600 marks from the Thunderbird group. Dave Wilk had 632 and Dick Schlapinski 604

Uncle Andy's Cow Palace ran up a surprisingly easy win over the previous Buick in Evanston leaders, also getting a 2900 team series for the evening's second highest. Their second game of 1042 was high for the night

Don Eberl was tops for the winners with a 514 series, while George Schmidt and Ron Reehoff each had 590's. It was a fine Paddock debut for Reehoff, rolling for Uncle Andy's for the first time. An Elk Grove resident, Reehoff had a 188 average last year

Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant at the Flying Carpet Motor Inn had a golden opportunity to jump back into undisputed first place but had to settle for a share of the lead after a 5-2 loss to Langlo's Refinishing. The win moved Langlo's from seventh to sixth place

Don Christensen's 639 was the match's best, as he racked up three 200 games, but Aladdin's was able to win only the first game. Ted Getersbach paced Langlo's win with a 599 series

Snack Time stayed close to the jam-up at the top by edging Gaare Oil, 4-3. Gaare won the third game and the team series, but Snack Time fashioned slim margins in the first two games

Al Brown's 682 series was the key to victory, while Paul Borvig led Gaare with 624

Kemmerly Realty Enjoys 7-0 Evening

Here comes Kemmerly! That was the charge issued Saturday evening in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League

Kemmerly Realty obviously has some very serious designs on catching pace-setting Sims Bowl in the stretch run of the first half competition

Sims marched onward Saturday with a neat pickup of five points, but Kemmerly charged to seven in a sweep over Morton Pontiac and now stands only four shy of the coveted top position

This is the picture in the Paddock Women's first-half race, a red-hot affair that has now moved into its critical latter stages

Sims and Kemmerly hold the 1-2 positions, but there's still time for several other outfits to turn on the power and ignite a determined charge into contention

Des Plaines Lanes, losing ground over the weekend, still finds itself only seven points out of first and with seven points at stake in every match, one big night could drastically alter the standings

Lattof Chevrolet stayed eight behind Sims with a 5-2 conquest of Girard-Bruns, and Doyle's Striking, although 10 points down, still has the firepower needed to make a rapid climb

Duchess Beauty Salon, Girard-Bruns, and Morton Pontiac round out the eight teams, but anything can happen in a league where seven points go up for grabs per match every Saturday

But the big news last Saturday was Kemmerly's 7-0 triumph, a triumph not as one-sided as the final margin. Morton gave Kemmerly a real battle before succumbing

Only 10 pins separated the two outfits in the opening game with Peggy Wales firing a big 204 for the winners and Harriet Fuchs chipping in with a 192

Kemmerly needed these efforts as Ruthmary Baurhyte and Lu Lass set the pins down for identical 200 counts for Morton

Winnie Lohse

Overall, Kemmerly showed a margin of 74 pins at the finish of the three games with Mary Lou Kolb's 558 and Harriet Fuchs' 553 (213 middle game) paving the way in a very balanced attack

Lu Lass didn't falter after her booming opener, following that 200 with a 201-211 and 612 series, her top showing of the season

Sims Bowl, while obviously noticing Kemmerly's charge, kept some breathing room between first and second by collecting five important points against Duchess Beauty Salon

Team balance dictated again with Lee Winski throwing a 560, opening at 213, to pace the triumph. Jean Ladd was high for Duchess with a 592, a fine effort keyed by a 231 middle game

A 911 third game, where four of the five bowlers hit 100 or better, enabled Sims to pull out the total series by 13 pins

Lattof Chevrolet had some nervous moments but finally emerged with a 5-2 win over Girard-Bruns. Only 16 pins separated these teams at the finish as the Paddock division experienced one of its most closely-contested evenings of the season

Donna Reinhardt and Lois Giesmoe shared the series lead for Lattof with identical 568s, and the two gals had identical games for the night, but in different order. Lois went at 170-179-217. Donna finished at 179-217-170

Peggy Harris hit 562 and Shirley Schultz 561 for Girard-Bruns, and Joan Christensen had the high game — a 211

The top series of the season wasn't enough for Des Plaines in their 4-3 loss to Doyle's Striking

Winnie Lohse, a 182-average kegger this year, achieved a whopping 647 for Des Plaines on games of 190-234-223

But that still wasn't enough as Doyle's Striking picked up four points thanks to a balanced attack, paced by Lu Schoenberger's 561

This was another of those tight battles

Saturday and only one pin was the difference in the second game as Doyle's Striking claimed a 895-894 win

It was one of those heart-pounding nights in the Paddock Women's Classic! And the charge was sounded. Here comes Kemmerly!

An Old-Fashioned Thanksgiving

She Sticks with Tradition

by LOIS SEILER

Tradition is the keyword to Mrs. Robert A. Isaacson's success as a homemaker.

She emphasizes it in her home decor and the food she prepares, artfully blending the steadfast values of the past with the modern outlook of a woman who has at times pursued a career along with raising a family.

Helen Isaacson likes to cook in the old-fashioned manner, preparing simple foods but making them taste really good.

She learned to make most of her favorite recipes from her mother, who was born and raised in Indiana. Thus, Helen classifies her cooking as "Hoosier and homey" — the hearty type that is served in the country.

"I COME FROM A family of good cooks," Helen said, referring to her mother, Mrs. Edward Keller, who lives with the Isaacson family, and her Pennsylvania Dutch grandmother.

"However, we aren't gourmets," she added, indicating her preference for roast chicken well-seasoned with onion and celery and served with homemade dumplings or noodles to a French specialty.

She makes a wide variety of foods such as sauerbraten and souffles, likes to use her imagination with herbs and seasonings, and loves to work with yeast dough, particularly in coffee cakes.

But her big specialty is pie baking, and she is noted among her friends as an expert.

"I use lard in my crusts to make them extra tender and flaky, and the filling depends on whatever fruit is in season," Helen said.

DURING THE SUMMER months, she bakes pies from her home-grown rhubarb, as well as all the seasonal fruits and berries. Tart, juicy apples are her preference for fall, and she always serves a pie as dessert for dinner parties because it makes a big hit with men.

With tradition such an important factor in Helen's life, it is natural that holiday meals in the Isaacson household are a festive event.

"We always have oyster stew on Christmas Eve and roast beef with Yorkshire pudding on Christmas Day," she said.

Thanksgiving is the traditional turkey and all the trimmings, with homemade pumpkin pie, of course, for dessert.

HELEN EVEN STARTS Thanksgiving day on a special note, with an elegant holiday breakfast. This features halves of grapefruit, scrambled eggs and sausage patties and a flaky apple-filled coffee cake. It is topped off by quantities of old-fashioned egg coffee, which Helen learned to make from her Swedish mother-in-law.

The coffee cake is one of this good cook's favorites and although a yeast recipe, she explained, it is unbelievably easy to prepare.

"I make the cake the day before, as it can be sandwiched in easily with other Thanksgiving preparations," Helen said.

"Because the dough rises in the refrigerator, there is no concern over proper room temperature or any of the other fussiness which may accompany the preparation of some yeast doughs," she remarked.

IT MAY BE MADE using any fruit that is in season, but for Thanksgiving Helen usually prefers a tart apple filling.

"This is not a light or fluffy coffee cake, but a thin, flaky type similar to a Danish pastry," she added.

She calls this her handy-dandy recipe because the cake may be served for any occasion — breakfast, dessert or as an afternoon snack. The rich dough doesn't get soggy but is just as good the next day, and the flavor improves with age.

It is the old-fashioned turkey stuffing that makes Helen's Thanksgiving dinner especially appealing. Her mother even bakes homemade bread for the dressing, making it a day or two ahead so that it will dry out a bit.

"You needn't go to these lengths, but it does make a delicious stuffing!" Helen exclaimed.

HOWEVER, SHE definitely recommends using a homemade-style bread such as Catherine Clark, Pepperidge Farm or a good bakery bread.

Cut in tiny cubes, she seasons it with salt, pepper, sage and poultry seasoning and adds a beaten egg. Onion and celery that have been sautéed in lots of butter are mixed in to give this dressing a delicious flavor.

If more moisture is needed, Helen uses broth made by cooking a turkey neck in water. Packed tightly into the bird, any extra stuffing may be baked in a casserole.

As accompaniments for the turkey and stuffing, Helen recommends a casserole of creamed onions topped with sharp cheddar cheese, green beans and either sweet potatoes or squash.

OCCASIONALLY MASHED potatoes or perhaps a frozen fruit salad may be included in her menu, while homemade cranberry sauce and a relish dish heaped with crisp celery and large olives are always a "must."

Helen's pies are the "piece de resistance" of this Thanksgiving feast, and she always has two types available for the choice of her guests. One is a delicious pumpkin, spiced with cinnamon, ginger, cloves and nutmeg. This she serves with whipped cream topped by finely-chopped candied ginger.

The other is an easy-to-make lemon custard pie with a refreshingly tart flavor that is especially appealing after a heavy meal. And both are complemented by the superb texture of Helen's pie crusts.

THIS GOOD COOK credits her enjoyment of culinary activities to the appreciative response of her family. She smilingly remarked that her agreeable husband Bob will eat anything and everything set before him except liver and fig newtons! Their four children include Robert, a senior at the University of Illinois; Alan, a freshman at Harper College; and Bruce and Linda, sophomores at Arlington High School.

An avid cyclist, Helen rides six to 10 miles every day. "I love to eat, and this counteracts the calories," she commented.

Along with cook books and recipes, she also collects and refinishes antiques and is yearbook chairman for the Dunton chapter of Quakers.

HAVING MAJORED in English at the University of Chicago, Helen served several years as a lay reader for the English department of District 214 and later held a secretarial-editorial position with a publishing firm.

The Isaacson family lives at 12 N. Kaspar in Arlington Heights. They are members of the First Methodist Church.

FLAKY, APPLE-FILLED COFFEE CAKE

1 package dry yeast
¼ cup warm water (110 to 115 degrees)
2 cups all-purpose flour, sifted
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup cold butter
2 egg yolks
¼ cup cold milk
¼ cup additional butter, softened
Soften yeast in warm water.

Sift flour, sugar and salt into mixing bowl. Cut in cold butter with knives or a pastry blender as you would for pie crust.

Beat egg yolks and milk lightly with a fork. Add to flour mixture. Stir in softened yeast, and beat dough until well-mixed.

Turn out on floured board or pastry cloth and knead gently for several minutes, adding more flour if necessary but keeping dough as soft as possible.

When dough is smooth, roll it out into a 12 by 18-inch rectangle and spread softened butter over two-thirds of the dough. Fold over one-third of the dough; then fold the other third over this, so that the butter is enclosed. Wrap dough in waxed paper and place in the refrigerator for one hour.

In the meantime, prepare the following apple filling:

2 cups coarsely chopped apples
6 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
Pinch of nutmeg
½ cup water
4 teaspoons cornstarch

Combine cornstarch and water. Add remaining ingredients and cook over low heat until thick and glazed in appearance, about 4 to 5 minutes. One teaspoon lemon juice may be added if apples are not tart. Let filling cool.

At the end of the hour, remove dough from refrigerator. Cut into two pieces. Roll each piece into an 8 by 14-inch rectangle. Spread center of each piece with one-half the apple filling; fold over sides to meet in the middle and enclose the filling. Seal ends together. (Each cake will measure approximately 4 by 14-inches at this point.)

Lift up carefully and place cakes on a lightly-greased baking sheet. Let rest in the refrigerator again for 30 minutes.

Bake at 400 degrees about 15 to 18 minutes, or until golden brown.

Prepare the following icing:

1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon milk
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Mix ingredients together and drizzle over coffee cakes while they are slightly warm. Yield: 2 slim, strip coffee cakes.

STUFFING FOR TURKEY

12 cups (3 quarts) bread cut in tiny cubes or coarse crumbs
1 cup finely chopped onion
½ cup finely chopped celery, including a few leaves

1 cup butter
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly-ground pepper
1 tablespoon dried sage
2 teaspoons poultry seasoning

1 egg, beaten lightly with a fork
About ½ cup broth

Use homemade-style bread or bakery bread, crusts and all. About 1½ one-pound loaves will be sufficient.

Cook onion and celery in melted butter until tender and beginning to turn golden. Do not brown.

In large mixing bowl, combine bread cubes with seasonings. Add beaten egg and mix well. Pour the butter-onion mixture over the bread and mix well.

If the dressing needs more moisture, use broth made by cooking turkey neck in water with a few celery leaves and a little onion. However, this is a rich, crumbly stuffing and should not be too moist.

Pack lightly into the bird. Any extra stuffing may be baked in a casserole, dotted with about one tablespoon butter. Cover and place in oven the last 30 minutes of the turkey's roasting time.

This makes enough stuffing for a 12-pound bird. Double recipe for a 25-pound turkey.

PUMPKIN PIE

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup cold lard

About 4 tablespoons ice water
Sift flour and salt into mixing bowl. Cut in lard with a pastry blender until mixture resembles very coarse meal. Gradually add the ice water, one tablespoon at a time, blending it in with a fork.

When dough can be gathered into a large ball, sufficient water has been added.

Divide dough into two portions and roll out each on a floured board to fit 9-inch pie pans.

Pumpkin Filling:
4 eggs, lightly-beaten
1 No. 2½ can pumpkin (about 3 cups)

1½ cups brown sugar, packed in cup
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cup milk
1/3 cup cream

Hello Hostess

Win the Pup-ularity Poll

by MARY KAY MARSH

There are some days when we feel about as creative as a paint-by-number set. The entertaining ideas we think of sound just too, too — too complicated, too expensive or just too utterly dreary, dearie. If an idea does look promising, you can bet we'll discover that we've already told you all about it.

So what do we do then? Well, what do you do when you have a problem? Of course: you phone a friend. As our Senior (high school) Citizen always says, "What's a friend for, if you can't impose on her?"

Anyway, that's where we got today's idea for a Pet Birthday Party. The friend who gave it says it's the best kid's party she ever had and made a much bigger hit than others that were far more work.

The reason for the party was the first birthday for her daughter's puppy, Choo Choo. Invitations were strictly impromptu, phoned to neighborhood children the morning of the party.

IF YOU HAVE a normal, red-blooded American child, you know that a birthday party isn't a birthday party unless he can take a birthday present. Security is that gift-wrapped box under his arm — anything you can tie a ribbon on. Well, with such short notice, this party was a real challenge for the mothers of America. And we're happy to report that the mothers of America — at least in our little part of it — rose magnificently to the occasion.

A few dashed off to the pet shop to pick up canine toys and bones and treats. Those with pets of their own gift-wrapped a can of dog food or whatever. One ingenious non-dog owner sandwiched a couple of bones carved from that night's steaks between a couple of frozen hamburger patties. It is, she explained carefully, the thought that counts. And the most desperate mother of all wrote out an impressive looking formal invitation, requesting the pleasure of Choo Choo's company. At her house the next time his owners wanted to get out of town for a weekend.

WELL, THE KIDS all arrived bearing gifts. But, unfortunately, there was no guest of honor to receive them. Choo-Choo, intimidated by all the uproar, had very wisely decided to make himself scarce. So the first (and only) planned entertainment was a Choo Choo Hunt. This wasn't finders' keepers, but the discoverer did get to sit beside the pup.

Places were marked at the party table with cardboard "dog tags." Each guest received one on a ribbon to tie around his neck or wrist. Refreshments were standard party fare. Hot dogs, of course. Plus a couple of dessert favorites, given special names for the occasion. Give up? Pup-sicles and pup-cakes. And since the American youngster regards the Loot Bag as his inalienable right, the hostess lettered "Doggy Bag" on paper sacks and gave each child an extra pup-cake to take home. We hope each gave his to his mother.

She deserved it.

OLDIE GOLDIE: While we're extolling the simple life, we might as well mention an old-fashioned idea that's good as gold today: the bridal shower, at which each guest writes and embroiders her name on a gift "cup towel," as we called tea towels in the rural South.

You can adapt this idea to a carriage robe for a new baby, an apron for a neighbor who's moving away or a pillow for an off-to-school teen. Though we understand today's Teens and Twenties prefer to have the guests just write their names, then the hostess machine-embroiders later.

AN ADD-A-FRIEND tablecloth delighted one little girl at her last birthday party. All her guests autographed the cloth (a sheet) in crayon. Now she wants to use the same cloth and the same idea every year, until there's no more room for signatures.

Turkey Roasting Information

Improvements in scientific raising each year bring greater perfection to the turkey. Even the largest are marketed at not more than eight months, ensuring delicate meat that cooks quickly to superb tenderness and flavor.

They are easy as a breeze to prepare, too. Just follow these few easy tips. You'll find you serve turkey over and over instead of just at Thanksgiving.

Buying Turkey

Buy turkeys when they are on special and store in freezer. Allow at least one pound per person, more if you expect to serve it for two meals.

Thaw by One of These Methods

1. Place turkey in original wrap on a tray in refrigerator and allow three to four days to thaw. This keeps juice loss to minimum.

2. Leave bird in original wrap and place under cold running water. Allow six to 12 hours to thaw.

3. Thaw bird in original wrap in closed paper bag at room temperature. Allow 12 hours for 8-10 pound birds; 16 hours for 20-25 pound birds. (U.S.D.A. recommendation.)

Roasting Preparation

First thing, rinse neck and giblets, place in saucepan with seasonings and water. Let simmer two hours or longer. Use broth in stuffing and gravy; add giblets, chopped, to gravy.

Next, rinse turkey quickly in cool water and pat dry. You needn't bother to stuff if you prefer to bake stuffing separately. Instead, rub inside with salt and place several slices of onion, stalk of celery with leaves and sprig of parsley in cavity. Fold neck skin under back and fasten with skewers. Tie drumstick to tail. Twist wing tips onto back if desired.

Stuffing (baked separately)

Bake it in a foil-lined casserole for last hour of roasting. Baste with few spoonfuls of drippings from turkey. For easy preparation use packaged herb seasoned stuffing; follow package directions. Add extra touches of oysters, chestnuts or browned sausage meat. This ensures deliciously light, digestible, thoroughly cooked stuffing.

Roasting

Line shallow roasting pan with aluminum foil and place turkey on rack in pan. Brush all over with soft butter or margarine. Roast in 325-degree oven according to time table below. If you do stuff your bird, add weight of dressing to bird's weight to get ready-to-cook weight.

When turkey is lightly brown, cover with "tent" of foil. To make tent, tear off sheet of heavy aluminum wrap five to 10 inches longer than bird. Crease through center and place over bird. Hold in place by crimping it lightly at breast and over drumsticks. This keeps turkey moist without basting and prevents overbrowning. Snip string holding drumsticks during last hour of roasting so heat penetrates inside of thighs.

Ready-to-cook weight	Oven temperature	Meat thermometer temperature	Total Cooking time (Hours — approximately)

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

Thanksgiving dinner means turkey and turkey means dressing. So, if you're searching for an excellent stuffing for the turkey next week, I suggest this chestnut dressing.

In the days of rural America when most everyone on the farm had a woodlot with chestnut trees, the principal ingredient was much more available than today. Still, canned chestnuts are on the market and excellent in quality.

This recipe first was suggested to me by Mrs. Levi Murphy of Farmer City, Illinois.

The basic proportions make about 1½ quarts and you'll need to double the ingredients to stuff a 12-pound turkey.

Mix 1 can (11-ounce) of whole chestnuts which have been drained and broken coarsely with 1 quart (about 20) biscottes. The biscottes (French) are toasted pieces of bread and regular toast may be substituted.

CUBE AND FRY 6 slices of bacon until crisp. Add bacon and drippings along with 1 small chopped onion, ½ cup chopped celery, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 teaspoons poultry seasoning, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ cup chicken broth and ½ cup dry white wine. Work with the hands or a wooden spoon until well mixed.

Pack moisture loosely into the cavity and fasten with skewers. If you want a more moist dressing, you can double the quantity of chicken broth and wine. Roast turkey in your favorite manner.

For Thanksgiving dessert, nothing quite matches a good pie. Down in Southern Illinois there's a place known as Burton's cafe on Route 37 near Benton and people literally come from miles around to sample the results of Ruth Burton's pie baking skills. Most popular is this "White Pie."

TO 1 TABLESPOON cornstarch add cake flour to make ½ cup. Add ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk. Cook over medium heat until thickened. Allow to cool thoroughly.

Beat 2 egg whites until stiff, add ¼ cup sugar and fold into the pie mixture. Pour into a baked pie crust (9-inch). Top with ½ pint whipped cream sweetened with sugar and a dash of vanilla extract. Cover whipped cream with slivered almonds or pecan pieces.

Refrigerate until time to serve. Makes 6 to 8 generous pieces. Calories galore but delicious, and Thanksgiving comes but once a year.

Kelleghan and Sommerschield Win

William Sommerschield of Elmhurst and Thomas C. Kelleghan of West Chicago are the unofficial winners of yesterday's extremely close election of state Constitutional Convention delegates in the 39th senatorial district.

Kelleghan was the top vote-getter with an unofficial 13,521 votes to the second place Sommerschield with 12,863.

The announced team of Kelleghan and Stanley Kula, both conservative Republican attorneys, failed to pull through in the finish with Kula tallying a close third place vote of 12,398.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson of Elmhurst was the low vote getter of the day and ran behind all during the election night tally. She finished with 12,163 unofficially.

ONLY ABOUT 650 votes separated the winning candidates; Kelleghan and Sommerschield, who will become the 39th district convention delegates to review the antiquated state constitution.

The last two precincts to report last night at about 9:30 p.m. were from York Township. Sommerschield rallied about 500 votes to definitely put on the road to Springfield. Sommerschield and Kula ran close all night with as little as 100 votes separating the two Republicans.

Sommerschield, 27, tagged the most liberal of the four run-off candidates, ran second most of the night with Kelleghan in the lead.

A total 50,065 ballots were used in yesterday's vote. This was considered a good voter turnout with the total number of registered voters set at 107,222.

The 40th district was also holding election of Con-Con delegates. Election central was the Wheaton courthouse.

THE 39TH DISTRICT includes the DuPage County townships of Addison, Bloomingdale, Naperville, Wayne, Winfield and York. The 40th district takes the rest of the DuPage townships of Milton, Lisle and Downers Grove.

Kelleghan, 41, is attorney and a member of the DuPage County public defender's office. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame law school.

Sommerschield is a time buyer for the advertising firm of Leo Burnett of Chicago. He has been a legislative assistant in both houses of the Illinois General Assembly and a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The Con-Con vote appeared to be neither a landslide victory for the conservative or liberal fronts. Sommerschield's fine showing probably was also a moral victory for the young, liberal movement from which he drew part of his backing.

Mrs. Larson was considered a non-partisan candidate and had the League of Women Voters working for her while Sommerschield depended on friends and endorsements from news media.

KELLEGHAN AND KULA were undoubtedly supported and worked for by the hardcore Republicans including many committeemen Kula's defeat was not a party defeat, but rather a defeat of his campaign since he was forced to finalize some of his views to form a team with Kelleghan and get formal township support.

There were no voting trends in Bloomingdale Township evident last night, however, Addison Township went for Mrs. Larson and Sommerschield. The heavy Addison Township vote for Sommerschield is counted as one factor toward Kula's defeat there.

ELECTION RETURNS poured in as members of the Wheaton North varsity football team helped the DuPage County clerk's office handle ballots last night at election central. Wheaton. Two high school age sons of Jay Benedict, chief deputy county clerk, rounded up the boys who act as paid volunteers. Yesterday's election of two Constitutional Convention delegates from the 39th District was close.

Losers See Defeat In Different Ways

The two 39th District candidates who lost their bid for a seat at the Constitutional Convention in December had distinctly different reactions to yesterday's election results.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson was attending a board meeting of Salt Creek School Dist. 48 when she received the results. She calmly expressed disappointment at news of her last-place finish.

"Well, I'm pleased Sommerschield won," she said.

MRS. LARSON HAD campaigned as an independent candidate, but she shared with Sommerschield liberal views supporting streamlined government and more equitable taxes.

Mrs. Larson said she hoped to continue working for her political goals, perhaps by regaining an active part in the League of Women Voters.

"I have no specific plans to help influence the convention," she said. "I thought I'd wait until I saw the election results."

KULA SEEMED ANGRY when interviewed at his home following the election.

"I guess the people would prefer I continue to practice law instead of attending the Constitutional Convention," Kula said.

When asked why he lost while his virtual running mate, Thomas Kelleghan, gained the most votes, Kula was unwilling to answer. He and Kelleghan were both strong party favorites, advocates of conservative government.

"I haven't the foggiest idea why I lost, and I think it's ridiculous to ask me before I've had a chance to analyze the results, precinct by precinct."

Kula said he would continue his political activities.

"I WORKED ON THE issues long before the convention started, and I intend to continue."

"But it's ridiculous to plan how to help in Springfield since I lost. If the delegates want any help from me, it's their job to contact me, not me contacting them."

A Kula supporter who had joined the

Kula household in watching election results expressed his own disappointment.

"I think the people will be sorry they didn't get a man of this caliber to bring some common sense to this fiasco," he said. "The people have spoken, and they got what they deserve."

Amazed at Closeness of Race

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Understandably tired and happy, Thomas C. Kelleghan, top vote-getter in the election for delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention from the 39th Dist. was "pleased with the voter turnout and amazed at the closeness of the race."

In a victory statement released late last night Kelleghan said:

"I am elated at being elected delegate to the Constitutional Convention, but I consider my election a victory for the point of view of those who supported me."

"I look forward to the challenge of helping to write a new constitution for the state of Illinois and to working with William Sommerschield in Springfield."

"In particular I am grateful to all who worked so hard for my election, especially to my close advisers."

"FINALLY WITHOUT the patience and understanding of my wife the campaign could not have been a success."

Commenting on the loss of Stanley A. Kula who made a third-place finish behind William A. Sommerschield, Kelleghan said "I guess he just wasn't strong enough."

Kula, who received 12,398 votes to Sommerschield's 12,863 was running as part of a team with Kelleghan during the final weeks of the campaign.

With the election of Sommerschield, who has opposed him on many issues, Kelleghan said "There will be two points of view at the convention. I do not foresee any problems. We understand each other."

Kelleghan said he anticipates and encourages letters from the voters of the district. He has set up a mailing address,

Con-Con, P.O. Box 25, Lombard, Ill. 60418.

He added he will begin working on his proposed advisory council "immediately" and promised there would be publicity on it soon.

KELLEGHAN TOLD THE Register earlier he hoped to pattern the advisory council after one formed by State Rep. Lewis V. Morgan, R-38th Dist.

The council utilized by Morgan, consisted of representatives from professional and civic groups who reviewed all the legislation introduced during the general assembly and advised him on it, setting priorities.

Kelleghan remarked about information distributed to all the candidates by the Constitutional Study Commission, which is now doing groundwork for facilities and staff for the delegates. He said much of the material on constitutional revision was "radical suggestions with which I disagree."

Explains: Got Most Votes

by GARY ZACNY

William Sommerschield, victorious 39th district candidate for the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a sound explanation for his success in the election last night.

"I think the explanation, pure and simple, is that I had a lot of citizens and committeemen who worked hard on my behalf. And I got the most votes."

Sommerschield's victory was a mild upset, since he ran against a pair of strongly supported Republican party men, Thomas Kelleghan and Stanley Kula. Sommerschield felt he was able to edge Kula because of the intense canvass conducted by his supporters Saturday.

"I think this did it, as I think was the case in the primary," Sommerschield said. "There were hundreds of people working, in the rain, going door-to-door, leaving literature. And this made all the difference."

SOMMERSCHIELD SAID he expected no friction between himself and Kelleghan, the other elected delegate. Despite the conflict of his liberal views with Kelleghan's conservative leanings, Sommerschield felt certain they could achieve a working relationship.

Sommerschield promised to work hard to uphold the interests of his supporters and to maintain good communication between Springfield and the electorate of the 39th District. He issued the following statement to cement those goals:

"I want to thank everyone who assisted in achieving this victory. It is really a victory for the many citizens who worked for months in my behalf, both in the primary and in today's election."

"I PLAN TO WORK hard with my fellow delegates in the coming months to help write a new constitution for the next 100 years. I will try honestly and thoroughly to represent all the residents of this district, keeping in close communication with them as the vital issues come up in Springfield."

"As delegates to this convention, we have an awesome responsibility for meeting the needs of the future of Illinois. I will dedicate my efforts to that task and with the continued support and interest of the political leaders, committeemen, newspapers and hundreds of hard working residents of DuPage County, we will write a new constitution which everyone can be proud of and which can be adopted by the voters."

Nottke To Oppose Knuepfer in Primary

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Itasca Mayor Wilbert H. Nottke formally announced late last night he would oppose State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th Dist., in the March 17 Republican primary election.

At the close of the municipality's village board meeting, Nottke told trustees that reports he might run were true, and "I'm officially in the race."

He is circulating petitions, "lining up support, and it looks a lot better than I thought it would."

FIRST INDICATIONS that Nottke would challenge Knuepfer, a two-term veteran, came last Friday when the mayor confirmed his interest in an exclusive interview with the Register.

The announcement followed a village board meeting at which a group of residents objecting to a special assessment for a storm sewer in the vicinity of Washington and Walnut streets were heard.

Nearly 120 residents have opposed the measure for more than a year, and expressed frustration when it was learned the village's special assessment of the $220,000 project will be upheld in court, probably next week.

THE VILLAGE board's position is that they may or may not pursue the project further, because the original assessment would have to be dropped and another filed.

Discussion ranged from bitter charges of "a shady deal" to an appeal for an end to name-calling and a declaration that a matter of individual rights was involved.

Residents in the area indicated they may appeal the local court decision.

The board approved a variation in zoning request by the Union Oil Co., for installation of a gas station at Maple and Line streets.

The action came after an impassioned plea by Trustee Roy Petherbridge to deny the request on grounds the station would be an eyesore, lead to dangerous precedent in the business district, and that it was wrong to use a zoning approval to force another service station out of business.

HE WAS SPEAKING of a Standard Oil Co. station which all agreed is an eyesore and which would be next to the new Union Oil facility.

Nottke, speaking for the majority of the board, contended that the new station would be a service to residents in helping to end undesirable business district structures, be valuable for residents because of locale opposite the railroad station, and helpful to commuters because of more parking space available.

The parking space results from a land trade tied to the offer, in which the village gave Union Oil 1,950 square feet in exchange for more than 22,000 square feet of land.

Wright Asks for DiOrio's Resignation

Morton Wright, Fenton High School Dist. 100 board of education member, asked for the resignation last night of Board Pres. James DiOrio.

"At the last meeting, you said you would tender your resignation as soon as there was a full board present," he told DiOrio, "and there is a full board here tonight (Tuesday)."

DiOrio responded: "I feel I am not going to resign because I have not yet seen a change in this board. As long as you remain a board member,

Mr. Wright, so should I. I will not tender my resignation."

"STILL I WILL remain as president as long as this board does not ask me to resign," DiOrio said.

Last June during a dispute over school administrative salaries, DiOrio resigned orally, saying: "I feel I can no longer work with this board."

It was pointed out at the following board meeting during which DiOrio was absent, that his resignation was not official until submitted in writing and approved by the board of education.

Last night's request by Wright came during a presentation by Carl York, industrial arts department chairman, who told the board:

"If truth is our end, and we are not self-seeking, bias, newspaper-selling people, the truth about the program at Fenton must be told."

York was asking for cooperation from the board to reinstate the curtailments at Fenton. He added that he felt the board was not communicating well with either teachers or the public.

GUITAR-PLAYING Assistant Pastor Robert Kretzschmar of the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle has exciting ideas for modernizing the worship services for young people. Besides introducing folk music to services, he hopes to add modern drama and art forms to invigorate worship.

'Spirit-Filled' Services Planned

by GARY ZACNY

"I'm going to make an effort to do what 'spirit-filled' young people want," Robert Kretzschmar, assistant pastor at Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle, has initiated a program which will incorporate folk music, "happenings," and perhaps the art and music of the psychedelic subculture to make Lutheran worship services more appealing and relevant to young people.

Kretzschmar attended Concordia seminary in St. Louis and was ordained Sept. 7. Trinity Lutheran is his first church.

"Problems sometimes exist in translating the Christian message to the modern idiom," said Kretzschmar. "Young people want a worship service which uses elements of their everyday life. They want a liturgy which comes from the young themselves."

"This desire is in the mainstream of Lutheran tradition. One primary object of the Reformation was to decrease the complete responsibility of the clergy for worship services. Every man became his own priest."

"I play the guitar and include folk music in some services to encourage sharing between people instead of just a pastor telling them what to do."

Kretzschmar plays the guitar, and he began his modernization of worship services by holding a "hootenanny" during one of the classes for young people. Last week he played his folk guitar at a morning communion.

"It seems to me that young people want a service where they can celebrate in a free and spontaneous way. Celebration is the key to it. Later we may work in some of the psychedelic innovations which go along with the idea of Christian celebration, the hope for eternity, the message of Christ."

Another method of invigorating young people's worship may be the introduction of "happenings," or modern dramatic forms to worship service.

"The whole idea of the program is to find the means in which people can best express themselves. We might organize workshops to use modern techniques in acting and writing to create programs for worship. It would be a part of the liturgy, an increased sharing."

Kretzschmar described a meeting he attended in St. Louis recently as a good example of this approach. The meeting was a combination funeral and birthday party for each person present. Solemn music and orations over a symbolic coffin were followed with a birthday celebration, thus dramatizing the Christian view of death as a rebirth into eternal life.

"Of course, this sort of presentation would not fit into the regular liturgy; it's not formal enough. But it has a place."

"I should point out that all these programs are in the experimental stage. If I found that modern music or art forms were not contributing to worship, I would call a halt."

"Young people especially respond to this sort of thing. For some it is a worship experience, for others it's entertaining, for some it's only an interesting idea. I think we can touch, usefully, on various levels."

Kretzschmar said his innovations would probably not be presented to the whole congregation. The push for contemporary additions to worship services will be confined to the young people.

"We want to have all types of services available," he said.

Guitar playing, folk songs, modern drama and psychedelic art have all ready found their way into many churches. The innovations do not alter the message of the religion, they simply add the smack of the times. The idea goes back even farther than Kretzschmar suggested, for the Bible comprehends and encourages it with a single appeal: "make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

Fencel Asks Height Variation

by SYD JAMIESON

A packed village hall heard Richard Fencel, Brookwood developer request a variation in height limitation for his proposed planned multifamily development which would provide more park area over the initial plan approved under a recent preannexation agreement.

The public hearing conducted Monday night by the Wood Dale Zoning Board of Appeals, found plenty of questions from the public in attendance, but apparently none which could be interpreted by zoning board chairman Ludwig Hinkhouse as major opposition to the requested variation.

The zoning board will refer Fencel's request to the Wood Dale planning commission, volunteer fire protection district and other advisory bodies for recommendations prior to making its report to the village council.

THE BASIC CHANGE sought under the approved planned development concept for the $40 million project in the Addison-Brookwood country club area, is to provide easier traffic flow to the luxury residential units along with more green belt and provisions units along with more green belt and provisions for enclosed parking under the apartment buildings.

According to Fencel, by designing a dual roadway off Addison Road to service the residential complex and elimination of some 300 outside parking areas, anticipated problems in traffic patterns initially proposed can be achieved.

He said by providing these features, the proposed variation in height of the buildings and change from the "y-shaped" high rise units to one of rectangular design, will offer an additional two to three acres of green belt with less ground area for the new buildings.

"WE FEEL THAT after considerable study with our land planners and architects, we are improving something over that originally proposed," Fencel said.

What Fencel has proposed to the zoning board is a reduction in the square footage of the initial high rise units from 26,000 square feet to 16,000 to 17,000 square feet. The total number of apartment units for the 12-story buildings has also been reduced from 819 to 617 with the rectangular design.

But in providing more green belt area Fencel has still not exceeded the maximum number of apartment units approved under the initial planned development.

Although most of the initial y-shaped high rise buildings have been eliminated under the latest proposal, one building is under construction east of the golf course bordering Wood Dale Road.

HE ALSO INDICATED that there would be less three bedroom units over that originally approved under the preannexation agreement with the village.

In effect, Fencel is adding 10 more buildings to a total of 27 as against the initial 17, yet maintaining less area per building, but adding more park area and elimination of outside parking spaces in favor of enclosed parking facilities for residents.

The additional green belt would be located within the western sector of the golf course. There will still be outside parking for guests, Fencel said.

Other proposed changes centered in the northern portion of the development south of Forest Preserve Drive where parking facilities would be provided in conjunction with a swimming pool.

Fencel also told zoning board members and those in attendance, that a sewage treatment plant is under construction on the southern boundary of the development between Addison and Wood Dale roads.

"WITHIN THE NEXT 10 years, the village will be able to tap on an additional 10,000 to 15,000 residential units apart from Brookwood," Fencel claimed.

There would be other benefits if the proposed variation is approved Fencel said.

He indicated the assessed valuation of the development would increase with the new design proposals as a result of the additional buildings.

Nearly $1 million has already been committed by Fencel under terms of the preannexation agreement. Included in this amount was $100,000 deposited in a trustee account by the village for recreational use to be directed under a mutual contract with the Wood Dale Park District for construction of a community-wide swimming pool.

Sidelight: Fire Truck

One sidelight emerged from Monday's public hearing conducted by the Wood Dale zoning board of appeals on Richard Fencel's request for a height variation for his Brookwood planned residential development.

The question centered around a commitment for purchase of special fire equipment under terms of the approved pre-annexation agreement.

In what some residents and fire chief Jack Haynes referred to as an apparent "jack of communication," was a $125,000 guarantee by Fencel for purchase of a snorkel unit and future site of a new fire station.

BUT ACCORDING to Stephen Milato, Fencel's attorney, a $125,000 note had been deposited with the village according to commitment made under a supplemental annexation agreement.

Where the breakdown in communication undoubtedly lies is the anticipated follow-up by Haynes in providing the particular specifications so Fencel can write a purchase order. But Haynes has been waiting on the village to inform him to go ahead in providing the specs.

"We are willing to cooperate," Milato replied to Haynes following a question by Wayne Waltrip of 180 Oakwood, citing terms of the agreement made with the village.

HAYNES CLAIMED he had heard nothing since the mutual pact with Fencel and the village had been consummated, but declared "my next stop is the village hall although we (fire protection district) have had no difficulties with the council."

Haynes was also informed that a "hard surface" perimeter road will be provided around the apartment units for ready access by fire equipment.

Bargaining Agent in Plans

by RICHARD BAITON

The Addison Elementary Board of Education Dist. 4 will hire a professional negotiator, probably this week, to start bargaining with the Addison Teachers Association (ATA) who will also seek a professional bargainer.

The school board will seek someone from a professional firm which specializes in representing management on all levels, such as industry and business, Board Pres. Charles Willett, said.

The ATA answered the board's decision Monday night by finally deciding to seek their own negotiation expert.

The annual dues of the organization were raised this year from $3 to $20 per member with the expressed purpose of using the additional money for hiring a negotiator the Register learned Monday.

A PUBLIC STATEMENT of position was given Monday to the "public" by the board of education. Those present, besides some board members, were four members of the ATA and the Register.

Board Sec. Robert Deobler read the statement and made the movement contained in it. It read:

"With reference to the negotiation committee meeting of Nov. 3, 1969, board members of the committee were informed by Mrs. (Jean) Wakeman, president of the Addison Teachers Association, that the ATA in August, 1969, voted to terminate the current professional negotiations agreement with an effective date of Feb. 1, 1970.

"The board of education reluctantly acknowledges this termination of the professional negotiations agreement, therefore, I move that the board of education of Dist. 4 employ a professional negotiator to bargain on our behalf with the ATA for a new agreement encompassing wages, hours and working conditions."

THE STATEMENT was worked out in closed executive session and voted on later in an open meeting Monday. It was accepted unanimously by the school board.

When the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Wakeman criticized Deobler for not mentioning she had repeatedly told the board the termination date was flexible and could be easily extended as it has already been done twice this fall.

Deobler shrugged his shoulders and commented the negotiations were rough on the board, too. He added since the ATA had a professional negotiator at the October meeting, the board felt the talks were getting so complicated that it also needed professional representation.

MRS. WAKEMAN told the Register later the board had demanded a man from the Illinois Education Association (IEA) who had been advising the ATA, to leave school property last month. When the school board and the ATA met last month, the board refused to talk until the IEA man left the building, she added, even after we argued for two hours against it.

The ATA proposed an improved professional negotiations agreement in September. Meetings between the board and the ATA found it necessary to also review the teacher grievance procedures due to alleged time-consuming hindrances.

ATA also decided to ask for binding negotiations and several other conditions to streamline negotiations between teachers, teachers' groups and the administration.

"ATA ISN'T SEEKING a pay increase as such," Mrs. Wakeman said. "All we basically desire is improved negotiation procedures, better communications to allow us to get back to friendly relations with the administration. This thing has taken a bad turn and shouldn't have had to come to this point, namely both parties seeking outside professionals to discuss what affects this district."

The teacher's association represents 184 of the estimated 240 personnel in the district. The eligible personnel includes school administration and other supervisors who wouldn't be likely to join an association.

Formal talks between the school board and ATA will probably begin when both sides carry out the intentions of hiring professional negotiators.

Both sides have expressed regret at having to seek this course of action. Yet, both sides may benefit by professional representation since labor-management negotiations seldom remain totally calm.

Kelleghan and Sommerschield Win

William Sommerschield of Elmhurst and Thomas C. Kelleghan of West Chicago are the unofficial winners of yesterday's extremely close election of state Constitutional Convention delegates in the 39th senatorial district.

Kelleghan was the top vote-getter with an unofficial 13,521 votes to the second place Sommerschield with 12,863.

The announced team of Kelleghan and Stanley Kula, both conservative Republican attorneys, failed to pull through in the finish with Kula tallying a close third place vote of 12,395.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson of Elmhurst was the low vote getter of the day and ran behind all during the election night tally. She finished with 12,183 unofficially.

ONLY ABOUT 650 votes separated the winning candidates; Kelleghan and Sommerschield, who will become the 39th district convention delegates to review the antiquated state constitution.

The last two precincts to report last night at about 9:30 p.m. were from York Township. Sommerschield rallied about 500 votes to definitely put on the road to Springfield. Sommerschield and Kula ran close all night with as little as 100 votes separating the two Republicans.

Sommerschield, 27, tagged the most liberal of the four run-off candidates, ran second most of the night with Kelleghan in the lead.

A total 50,965 ballots were used in yesterday's vote. This was considered a good voter turnout with the total number of registered voters set at 107,222.

The 40th district was also holding election of Con-Con delegates. Election central was the Wheaton courthouse.

THE 39TH DISTRICT includes the DuPage County townships of Addison, Bloomington, Naperville, Wayne, Winfield and

York. The 40th district takes the rest of the DuPage townships of Milton, Lisle and Downers Grove.

Kelleghan, 41, is attorney and a member of the DuPage County public defender's office. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame law school.

Sommerschield is a time buyer for the advertising firm of Leo Burnett of Chicago. He has been a legislative assistant in both houses of the Illinois General Assembly and a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The Con-Con vote appeared to be neither a landslide victory for the conservative or liberal fronts. Sommerschield's fine showing probably was also a moral victory for the young, liberal movement from which he drew part of his backing.

Mrs. Larson was considered a non-partisan candidate and had the League of Women Voters working for her while Sommerschield depended on friends and endorsements from news media.

KELLEGHAN AND KULA were undoubtedly supported and worked for by the hardcore Republicans including many committeemen. Kula's defeat was not a party defeat, but rather a defeat of his campaign since he was forced to finalize some of his views to form a team with Kelleghan and get formal township support.

There were no voting trends in Bloomington Township evident last night, however. Addison Township went for Mrs. Larson and Sommerschield. The heavy Addison Township vote for Sommerschield is counted as one factor toward Kula's defeat there.

ELECTION RETURNS poured in as members of the Wheaton North varsity football team helped the DuPage County clerk's office handle ballots last night at election central, Wheaton. Two high school age sons of Jay Benedict, chief deputy county clerk, rounded up the boys who act as paid volunteers. Yesterday's election of two Constitutional Convention delegates from the 39th District was close.

Losers See Defeat In Different Ways

The two 39th District candidates who lost their bid for a seat at the Constitutional Convention in December had distinctly different reactions to yesterday's election results.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson was attending a board meeting of Salt Creek School Dist. 48 when she received the results. She calmly expressed disappointment at news of her last-place finish.

"Well, I'm pleased Sommerschield won," she said.

MRS. LARSON HAD campaigned as an independent candidate, but she shared with Sommerschield liberal views supporting streamlined government and more equitable taxes.

Mrs. Larson said she hoped to continue working for her political goals, perhaps by regaining an active part in the League of Women Voters.

"I have no specific plans to help influence the convention," she said. "I thought I'd wait until I saw the election results."

KULA SEEMED ANGRY when interviewed at his home following the election.

"I guess the people would prefer I continue to practice law instead of attending the Constitutional Convention," Kula said.

When asked why he lost while his virtual running mate, Thomas Kelleghan, gained the most votes, Kula was unwilling to answer. He and Kelleghan were both strong party favorites, advocates of conservative government.

"I haven't the foggiest idea why I lost, and I think it's ridiculous to ask me before I've had a chance to analyze the results, precinct by precinct."

Kula said he would continue his political activities.

"I WORKED ON THE issues long before the convention started, and I intend to continue."

"But it's ridiculous to plan how to help in Springfield since I lost. If the delegates want any help from me, it's their job to contact me, not me contacting them."

A Kula supporter who had joined the

Amazed at Closeness of Race

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Understandably tired and happy, Thomas C. Kelleghan, top vote-getter in the election for delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention from the 39th Dist. was "pleased with the voter turnout and amazed at the closeness of the race."

In a victory statement released late last night Kelleghan said:

"I am elated at being elected delegate to the Constitutional Convention, but I consider my election a victory for the point of view of those who supported me."

"I look forward to the challenge of helping to write a new constitution for the state of Illinois and to working with William Sommerschield in Springfield."

"In particular I am grateful to all who worked so hard for my election, especially to my close advisers."

"FINALLY WITHOUT the patience and understanding of my wife the campaign could not have been a success."

Commenting on the loss of Stanley A. Kula who made a third-place finish behind William A. Sommerschield, Kelleghan said "I guess he just wasn't strong enough."

Kula, who received 12,395 votes to Sommerschield's 12,863 was running as part of a team with Kelleghan during the final weeks of the campaign.

With the election of Sommerschield, who has opposed him on many issues, Kelleghan said "There will be two points of view at the convention. I do not foresee any problems. We understand each other."

Kelleghan said he anticipates and encourages letters from the voters of the district. He has set up a mailing address, merschield's 12,863 was running as part of a team with Kelleghan during the final weeks of the campaign.

He added he will begin working on his proposed advisory council "immediately" and promised there would be publicity on it soon.

KELLEGHAN TOLD THE Register earlier he hoped to pattern the advisory council after one formed by State Rep. Lewis V. Morgan, R-39th Dist.

The council utilized by Morgan, consisted of representatives from professional

Explains: Got Most Votes

by GARY ZACNY

William Sommerschield, victorious 39th district candidate for the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a sound explanation for his success in the election last night.

"I think the explanation, pure and simple, is that I had a lot of citizens and committeemen who worked hard on my behalf. And I got the most votes."

Sommerschield's victory was a mild upset, since he ran against a pair of strongly supported Republican party men, Thomas Kelleghan and Stanley Kula. Sommerschield felt he was able to edge Kula because of the intense canvass conducted by his supporters Saturday.

"I think this did it, as I think was the case in the primary," Sommerschield said. "There were hundreds of people working, in the rain, going door-to-door, leaving literature. And this made all the difference."

SOMMERSCHIELD SAID he expected no friction between himself and Kelleghan, the other elected delegate. Despite the conflict of his liberal views with Kelleghan's conservative leanings, Sommerschield felt certain they could achieve a working relationship.

Sommerschield promised to work hard to uphold the interests of his supporters and to maintain good communication between Springfield and the electorate of the 39th District. He issued the following statement to cement those goals:

"I want to thank everyone who assisted in achieving this victory. It is really a victory for the many citizens who worked for months in my behalf, both in the primary and in today's election."

"I PLAN TO WORK hard with my fellow delegates in the coming months to help write a new constitution for the next 100 years. I will try honestly and thoroughly to represent all the residents of this district, keeping in close communication with them as the vital issues come up in Springfield."

"As delegates to this convention, we have an awesome responsibility for meeting the needs of the future of Illinois. I will dedicate my efforts to that task and with the continued support and interest of the political leaders, committeemen, newspapers and hundreds of hard working residents of DuPage County, we will write a new constitution which everyone can be proud of and which can be adopted by the voters."

Nottke To Oppose Knuepfer in Primary

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Itasca Mayor Wilbert H. Nottke formally announced late last night he would oppose State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th Dist., in the March 17 Republican primary election.

At the close of the municipality's village board meeting, Nottke told trustees that reports he might run were true, and "I'm officially in the race."

He is circulating petitions, "lining up support, and it looks a lot better than I thought it would."

FIRST INDICATIONS that Nottke would challenge Knuepfer, a two-term veteran, came last Friday when the mayor confirmed his interest in an exclusive interview with the Register.

The announcement followed a village board meeting at which a group of residents objecting to a special assessment for a storm sewer in the vicinity of Washington and Walnut streets were heard.

Nearly 120 residents have opposed the measure for more than a year, and expressed frustration when it was learned the village's special assessment of the $220,000 project will be upheld in court, probably next week.

THE VILLAGE board's position is that they may or may not pursue the project further, because the original assessment would have to be dropped and another filed.

Discussion ranged from bitter charges of "a shady deal" to an appeal for an end to name-calling and a declaration that a matter of individual rights was involved.

Residents in the area indicated they may appeal the local court decision.

The board approved a variation in zoning request by the Union Oil Co., for installation of a gas station at Maple and Line streets.

The action came after an impassioned plea by Trustee Roy Petherbridge to deny the request on grounds the station would be an eyesore, lead to dangerous precedent in the business district, and that it was wrong to use a zoning approval to force another service station out of business.

HE WAS SPEAKING of a Standard Oil Co. station which all agreed is an eyesore and which would be next to the new Union Oil facility.

Nottke, speaking for the majority of the board, contended that the new station would be a service to residents in helping to end undesirable business district structures, be valuable for residents because of locale opposite the railroad station, and

Wright Asks for DiOrio's Resignation

Morton Wright, Fenton High School Dist. 100 board of education member, asked for the resignation last night of Board Pres. James DiOrio.

"At the last meeting, you said you would tender your resignation as soon as there was a full board present," he told DiOrio, "and there is a full board here tonight (Tuesday)."

DiOrio responded:

"I feel I am not going to resign because I have not yet seen a change in this board. As long as you remain a board member, helpful to commuters because of more parking space available.

The parking space results from a land trade tied to the offer, in which the village gave Union Oil 1,950 square feet in exchange for more than 22,000 square feet of land.

Mr. Wright, so should I. I will not tender my resignation."

"STILL I WILL remain as president as long as this board does not ask me to resign," DiOrio said.

Last June during a dispute over school administrative salaries, DiOrio resigned orally, saying:

"I feel I can no longer work with this board."

It was pointed out at the following board meeting during which DiOrio was absent, that his resignation was not official until submitted in writing and approved by the board of education.

Last night's request by Wright came during a presentation by Carl York, industrial arts department chairman, who told the board:

"If truth is our end, and we are not self-seeking, bias, newspaper-selling people, the truth about the program at Fenton must be told."

York was asking for cooperation from the board to reinstate the curtailments at Fenton. He added that he felt the board was not communicating well with either teachers or the public.

GUITAR-PLAYING Assistant Pastor Robert Kretschmar of the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle is introducing folk music to services. He hopes to add modern drama and art forms to invigorate worship.

'Spirit-Filled' Services Planned

by GARY ZACNY

"I'm going to make an effort to do what 'spirit-filled' young people want," Robert Kretschmar, assistant pastor at Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle, has initiated a program which will incorporate folk music, "happenings," and perhaps the art and music of the psychedelic subculture to make Lutheran worship services more appealing and relevant to young people.

Kretschmar attended Concordia seminary in St. Louis and was ordained Sept. 7. Trinity Lutheran is his first church.

"Problems sometimes exist in translating the Christian message to the modern idiom," said Kretschmar. "Young people want a worship service which uses elements of their everyday life. They want a liturgy which comes from the young themselves."

"This desire is in the mainstream of Lutheran tradition. One primary object of the Reformation was to decrease the complete responsibility of the clergy for worship services. Every man became his own priest."

"I play the guitar and include folk music in some services to encourage sharing between people instead of just a pastor telling them what to do."

Kretschmar plays the guitar, and he began his modernization of worship services by holding a "hootenanny" during one of the classes for young people. Last week he played his folk guitar at a morning communion.

"It seems to me that young people want a service where they can celebrate in a free and spontaneous way. Celebration is the key to it. Later we may work in some of the psychedelic innovations which go along with the idea of Christian celebration, the hope for eternity, the message of Christ."

Another method of invigorating young people's worship may be the introduction of "happenings" or modern dramatic forms to worship service.

"The whole idea of the program is to find the means in which people can best express themselves. We might organize workshops to use modern techniques in acting and writing to create programs for worship. It would be a part of the liturgy, an increased sharing."

Kretschmar described a meeting he attended in St. Louis recently as a good example of this approach. The meeting was a combination funeral and birthday party for each person present. Solemn music and orations over a symbolic coffin were followed with a birthday celebration, thus dramatizing the Christian view of death as a rebirth into eternal life.

"Of course, this sort of presentation would not fit into the regular liturgy; it's not formal enough. But it has a place."

"I should point out that all these programs are in the experimental stage. If I found that modern music or art forms were not contributing to worship, I would call a halt."

"Young people especially respond to this sort of thing. For some it is a worship experience, for others it's entertaining, for some it's only an interesting idea. I think we can touch, usefully, on various levels."

Kretschmar said his innovations would probably not be presented to the whole congregation. The push for contemporary additions to worship services will be confined to the young people.

"We want to have all types of services available," he said.

Guitar playing, folk songs, modern drama and psychedelic art have all ready found their way into many churches. The innovations do not alter the message of the religion, they simply add the smack of the times. The idea goes back even farther than Kretschmar suggested, for the Bible comprehends and encourages it with a single appeal: "make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

Fencel Asks Height Variation

by SYD JAMIESON

A packed village hall heard Richard Fencel, Brookwood developer request a variation in height limitation for his proposed planned multifamily development which would provide more park area over the initial plan approved under a recent preannexation agreement.

The public hearing conducted Monday night by the Wood Dale Zoning Board of Appeals, found plenty of questions from the public in attendance, but apparently none which could be interpreted by zoning board chairman Ludwig Hinkhouse as major opposition to the requested variation.

The zoning board will refer Fencel's request to the Wood Dale planning commission, volunteer fire protection district and other advisory bodies for recommendations prior to making its report to the village council.

THE BASIC CHANGE sought under the approved planned development concept for the $40 million project in the Addison-Brookwood country club area, is to provide easier traffic flow to the luxury residential units along with more green belt and provisions units along with more green belt and provisions for enclosed parking under the apartment buildings.

According to Fencel, by designing a dual roadway off Addison Road to service the residential complex and elimination of some 300 outside parking areas, anticipated problems in traffic patterns initially proposed can be achieved.

He said by providing these features, the proposed variation in height of the buildings and change from the "y-shaped" high rise units to one of rectangular design, will offer an additional two to three acres of green belt with less ground area for the new buildings.

"WE FEEL THAT after considerable study with our land planners and architects, we are improving something over that originally proposed," Fencel said.

What Fencel has proposed to the zoning board is a reduction in the square footage of the initial high rise units from 26,000 square feet to 16,000 to 17,000 square feet. The total number of apartment units for the 12-story buildings has also been reduced from 618 to 617 with the rectangular design.

But in providing more green belt area Fencel has still not exceeded the maximum number of apartment units approved under the initial planned development.

Although most of the initial y-shaped high rise buildings have been eliminated under the latest proposal, one building is under construction east of the golf course bordering Wood Dale Road.

HE ALSO INDICATED that there would be less three bedroom units over that originally approved under the preannexation agreement with the village.

In effect, Fencel is adding 10 more buildings to a total of 27 as against the initial 17, yet maintaining less area per building, but adding more park area and elimination of outside parking spaces in favor of enclosed parking facilities for residents.

The additional green belt would be located within the western sector of the golf course. There will still be outside parking for guests, Fencel said.

Other proposed changes centered in the northern portion of the development south of Forest Preserve Drive where parking facilities would be provided in conjunction with a swimming pool.

Fencel also told zoning board members and those in attendance, that a sewage treatment plant is under construction on the southern boundary of the development between Addison and Wood Dale roads.

"WITHIN THE NEXT 10 years, the village will be able to tap on an additional 10,000 to 15,000 residential units apart from Brookwood," Fencel claimed.

There would be other benefits if the proposed variation is approved Fencel said.

He indicated the assessed valuation of the development would increase with the new design proposals as a result of the additional buildings.

Nearly $1 million has already been committed by Fencel under terms of the preannexation agreement. Included in this amount was $120,000 deposited in a trustee account by the village for recreational use to be directed under a mutual contract with the Wood Dale Park District for construction of a community-wide swimming pool.

Sidelight: Fire Truck

One sidelight emerged from Monday's public hearing conducted by the Wood Dale zoning board of appeals on Richard Fencel's request for a height variation for his Brookwood planned residential development.

The question centered around a commitment for purchase of special fire equipment under terms of the approved pre-annexation agreement.

In what some residents and fire chief Jack Haynes referred to as an apparent "lack of communication," was a $125,000 guarantee by Fencel for purchase of a snorkel unit and future site of a new fire station.

BUT ACCORDING to Stephen Milato, Fencel's attorney, a $125,000 note had been deposited with the village according to commitment made under a supplemental annexation agreement.

Where the breakdown in communication undoubtedly lies is the anticipated follow-up by Haynes in providing the particular specifications so Fencel can write a purchase order. But Haynes has been waiting on the village to inform him to go ahead in providing the specs.

"We are willing to cooperate," Milato replied to Haynes following a question by Wayne Waltrip of 180 Oakwood, citing terms of the agreement made with the village.

HAYNES CLAIMED he had heard nothing since the mutual pact with Fencel and the village had been consummated, but declared "my next stop is the village hall although we (fire protection district) have had no difficulties with the council."

Haynes was also informed that a "hard surface" perimeter road will be provided around the apartment units for ready access by fire equipment.

Bargaining Agent in Plans

by RICHARD BARTON

The Addison Elementary Board of Education Dist. 4 will hire a professional negotiator, probably this week, to start bargaining with the Addison Teachers Association (ATA) who will also seek a professional bargainer.

The school board will seek someone from a professional firm which specializes in representing management on all levels, such as industry and business, Board Pres. Charles Willett, said.

The ATA answered the board's decision Monday night by finally deciding to seek their own negotiation expert.

The annual dues of the organization were raised this year from $3 to $20 per member with the expressed purpose of using the additional money for hiring a negotiator the Register learned Monday.

A PUBLIC STATEMENT of position was given Monday to the "public" by the board of education. Those present, besides some board members, were four members of the ATA and the Register.

Board Sec. Robert Deobler read the statement and made the movement contained in it. It read:

"With reference to the negotiation committee meeting of Nov. 3, 1969, board members of the committee were informed by Mrs. (Jean) Wakeman, president of the Addison Teachers Association, that the ATA in August, 1969, voted to terminate the current professional negotiations agreement with an effective date of Feb. 1, 1970.

"The board of education reluctantly acknowledges this termination of the professional negotiations agreement, therefore, I move that the board of education of Dist. 4 employ a professional negotiator to bargain on our behalf with the ATA for a new agreement encompassing wages, hours and working conditions."

THE STATEMENT was worked out in closed executive session and voted on later in an open meeting Monday. It was accepted unanimously by the school board.

When the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Wakeman criticized Deobler for not mentioning she had repeatedly told the board the termination date was flexible and could be easily extended as it has already been done twice this fall.

Deobler shrugged his shoulders and commented the negotiations were rough on the board, too. He added since the ATA had a professional negotiator at the October meeting, the board felt the talks were getting so complicated that it also needed professional representation.

MRS. WAKEMAN told the Register later the board had demanded a man from the Illinois Education Association (IEA) who had been advising the ATA, to leave school property last month. When the school board and the ATA met last month, the board refused to talk until the IEA man left the building, she added, even after we argued for two hours against it.

The ATA proposed an improved professional negotiations agreement in September. Meetings between the board and the ATA found it necessary to also review the teacher grievance procedures due to alleged time-consuming hindrances.

ATA also decided to ask for binding negotiations and several other conditions to streamline negotiations between teachers, teachers' groups and the administration.

"ATA ISN'T SEEKING a pay increase as such," Mrs. Wakeman said. "All we basically desire is improved negotiation procedures, better communications to allow us to get back to friendly relations with the administration. This thing has taken a bad turn and shouldn't have had to come to this point, namely both parties seeking outside professionals to discuss what affects this district."

The teacher's association represents 184 of the estimated 240 personnel in the district. The eligible personnel includes school administration and other supervisors who wouldn't be likely to join an association.

Formal talks between the school board and ATA will probably begin when both sides carry out the intentions of hiring professional negotiators.

Both sides have expressed regret at having to seek this course of action. Yet, both sides may benefit by professional representation since labor-management negotiations seldom remain totally calm.

Kelleghan and Sommerschield Win

William Sommerschield of Elmhurst and Thomas C. Kelleghan of West Chicago are the unofficial winners of yesterday's extremely close election of state Constitutional Convention delegates in the 39th senatorial district.

Kelleghan was the top vote-getter with an unofficial 13,521 votes to the second place Sommerschield with 12,863.

The announced team of Kelleghan and Stanley Kula, both conservative Republican attorneys, failed to pull through in the finish with Kula tallying a close third place vote of 12,398.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson of Elmhurst was the low vote getter of the day and ran behind all during the election night tally. She finished with 12,183 unofficially.

ONLY ABOUT 650 votes separated the winning candidates: Kelleghan and Sommerschield, who will become the 39th district convention delegates to review the antiquated state constitution.

The last two precincts to report last night at about 9:30 p.m. were from York Township. Sommerschield rallied about 500 votes to definitely put on the road to Springfield. Sommerschield and Kula ran close all night with as little as 100 votes separating the two Republicans.

Sommerschield, 27, tagged the most liberal of the four run-off candidates, ran second most of the night with Kelleghan in the lead.

A total 50,965 ballots were used in yesterday's vote. This was considered a good voter turnout with the total number of registered voters set at 107,322.

The 40th district was also holding election of Con-Con delegates. Election central was the Wheaton courthouse.

THE 39TH DISTRICT includes the DuPage County townships of Addison, Bloomingdale, Naperville, Wayne, Winfield and

York. The 40th district takes the rest of the DuPage townships of Milton, Lisle and Downers Grove.

Kelleghan, 41, is attorney and a member of the DuPage County public defender's office. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame law school.

Sommerschield is a time buyer for the advertising firm of Leo Burnett of Chicago. He has been a legislative assistant in both houses of the Illinois General Assembly and a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The Con-Con vote appeared to be neither a landslide victory for the conservative or liberal fronts. Sommerschield's fine showing probably was also a moral victory for the young, liberal movement from which he drew part of his backing.

Mrs. Larson was considered a non-partisan candidate and had the League of Women Voters working for her while Sommerschield depended on friends and endorsements from news media.

KELLEGHAN AND KULA were undoubtedly supported and worked for by the hardcore Republicans including many committeemen. Kula's defeat was not a party defeat, but rather a defeat of his campaign since he was forced to finalize some of his views to form a team with Kelleghan and get formal township support.

There were no voting trends in Bloomingdale Township evident last night, however, Addison Township went for Mrs. Larson and Sommerschield. The heavy Addison Township vote for Sommerschield is counted as one factor toward Kula's defeat there.

ELECTION RETURNS poured in as members of the Wheaton North varsity football team helped the DuPage County clerk's office handle ballots last night at election central, Wheaton. Two high school age sons of Jay Benedict, chief deputy county clerk, rounded up the boys who act as paid volunteers. Yesterday's election of two Constitutional Convention delegates from the 39th District was close.

Losers See Defeat In Different Ways

The two 39th District candidates who lost their bid for a seat at the Constitutional Convention in December had distinctly different reactions to yesterday's election results.

Mrs. Margaret "Toni" Larson was attending a board meeting of Salt Creek School Dist. 48 when she received the results. She calmly expressed disappointment at news of her last-place finish.

"Well, I'm pleased Sommerschield won," she said.

MRS. LARSON HAD campaigned as an independent candidate, but she shared with Sommerschield liberal views supporting streamlined government and more equitable taxes.

Mrs. Larson said she hoped to continue working for her political goals, perhaps by regaining an active part in the League of Women Voters.

"I have no specific plans to help influence the convention," she said. "I thought I'd wait until I saw the election results."

KULA SEEMED ANGRY when interviewed at his home following the election.

"I guess the people would prefer I continue to practice law instead of attending the Constitutional Convention," Kula said.

When asked why he lost while his virtual running mate, Thomas Kelleghan, gained the most votes, Kula was unwilling to answer. He and Kelleghan were both strong party favorites, advocates of conservative government.

"I haven't the foggiest idea why I lost, and I think it's ridiculous to ask me before I've had a chance to analyze the results, precinct by precinct."

Kula said he would continue his political activities.

"I WORKED ON THE issues long before the convention started, and I intend to continue."

"But it's ridiculous to plan how to help in Springfield since I lost. If the delegates want any help from me, it's their job to contact me, not me contacting them."

A Kula supporter who had joined the

Kula household in watching election results expressed his own disappointment.

"I think the people will be sorry they didn't get a man of this caliber to bring some common sense to this fiasco," he said. "The people have spoken, and they got what they deserve."

Amazed at Closeness of Race

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Understandably tired and happy, Thomas C. Kelleghan, top vote-getter in the election for delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention from the 39th Dist. was "pleased with the voter turnout and amazed at the closeness of the race."

In a victory statement released late last night Kelleghan said:

"I am elated at being elected delegate to the Constitutional Convention, but I consider my election a victory for the point of view of those who supported me."

"I look forward to the challenge of helping to write a new constitution for the state of Illinois and to working with William Sommerschield in Springfield."

"In particular I am grateful to all who worked so hard for my election, especially to my close advisers."

"FINALLY WITHOUT the patience and understanding of my wife the campaign could not have been a success."

Commenting on the loss of Stanley A. Kula who made a third-place finish behind William A. Sommerschield, Kelleghan said "I guess he just wasn't strong enough."

Kula, who received 12,398 votes to Sommerschield's 12,863 was running as part of a team with Kelleghan during the final weeks of the campaign.

With the election of Sommerschield, who has opposed him on many issues, Kelleghan said "There will be two points of view at the convention. I do not foresee any problems. We understand each other."

Kelleghan said he anticipates and encourages letters from the voters of the district. He has set up a mailing address,

Con-Con, P.O. Box 25, Lombard, Ill. 60418.

He added he will begin working on his proposed advisory council "immediately" and promised there would be publicity on it soon.

KELLEGHAN TOLD THE Register earlier he hoped to pattern the advisory council after one formed by State Rep. Lewis V. Morgan, R-38th Dist.

The council utilized by Morgan, consisted of representatives from professional and civic groups who reviewed all the legislation introduced during the general assembly and advised him on it, setting priorities.

Kelleghan remarked about information distributed to all the candidates by the Constitutional Study Commission, which is now doing groundwork for facilities and staff for the delegates. He said much of the material on constitutional revision was "radical suggestions with which I disagree."

Explains: Got Most Votes

by GARY ZACNY

William Sommerschield, victorious 39th district candidate for the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a sound explanation for his success in the election last night.

"I think the explanation, pure and simple, is that I had a lot of citizens and committeemen who worked hard on my behalf. And I got the most votes."

Sommerschield's victory was a mild upset, since he ran against a pair of strongly supported Republican party men, Thomas Kelleghan and Stanley Kula. Sommerschield felt he was able to edge Kula because of the intense canvass conducted by his supporters Saturday.

"I think this did it, as I think was the case in the primary," Sommerschield said. "There were hundreds of people working, in the rain, going door-to-door, leaving literature. And this made all the difference."

SOMMERSCHIELD SAID he expected no friction between himself and Kelleghan, the other elected delegate. Despite the conflict of his liberal views with Kelleghan's conservative leanings, Sommerschield felt certain they could achieve a working relationship.

Sommerschield promised to work hard to uphold the interests of his supporters and to maintain good communication between Springfield and the electorate of the 39th District. He issued the following statement to cement those goals:

"I want to thank everyone who assisted in achieving this victory. It is really a victory for the many citizens who worked for months in my behalf, both in the primary and in today's election."

"I PLAN TO WORK hard with my fellow delegates in the coming months to help write a new constitution for the next 100 years. I will try honestly and thoroughly to represent all the residents of this district, keeping in close communication with them as the vital issues come up in Springfield."

"As delegates to this convention, we have an awesome responsibility for meeting the needs of the future of Illinois. I will dedicate my efforts to that task and with the continued support and interest of the political leaders, committeemen, newspapers and hundreds of hard working residents of DuPage County, we will write a new constitution which everyone can be proud of and which can be adopted by the voters."

and which would be next to the new Union Oil facility.

Notke, speaking for the majority of the board, contended that the new station would be a service to residents in helping to end undesirable business district structures, be valuable for residents because of locale opposite the railroad station, and helpful to commuters because of more parking space available.

The parking space results from a land trade tied to the offer, in which the village gave Union Oil 1,950 square feet in exchange for more than 22,000 square feet of land.

Wright Asks for DiOrio's Resignation

Morton Wright, Fenton High School Dist. 100 board of education member, asked for the resignation last night of Board Pres. James DiOrio.

"At the last meeting, you said you would tender your resignation as soon as there was a full board present," he told DiOrio, "and there is a full board here tonight (Tuesday)."

DiOrio responded:

"I feel I am not going to resign because I have not yet seen a change in this board. As long as you remain a board member,

Mr. Wright, so should I. I will not tender my resignation."

"STILL I WILL remain as president as long as this board does not ask me to resign," DiOrio said.

Last June during a dispute over school administrative salaries, DiOrio resigned orally, saying:

"I feel I can no longer work with this board."

It was pointed out at the following board meeting during which DiOrio was absent, that his resignation was not official until submitted in writing and approved by the board of education.

Last night's request by Wright came during a presentation by Carl York, industrial arts department chairman, who told the board:

"If truth is our end, and we are not self-seeking, bias, newspaper-selling people, the truth about the program at Fenton must be told."

York was asking for cooperation from the board to reinstate the curtailments at Fenton. He added that he felt the board was not communicating well with either teachers or the public.

Nottke To Oppose Knuepfer in Primary

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Itasca Mayor Wilbert H. Nottke formally announced late last night he would oppose State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th Dist., in the March 17 Republican primary election.

At the close of the municipality's village board meeting, Nottke told trustees that reports he might run were true, and "I'm officially in the race."

He is circulating petitions, "lining up support, and it looks a lot better than I thought it would."

FIRST INDICATIONS that Nottke would challenge Knuepfer, a two-term veteran, came last Friday when the mayor confirmed his interest in an exclusive interview with the Register.

The announcement followed a village board meeting at which a group of residents objecting to a special assessment for a storm sewer in the vicinity of Washington and Walnut streets were heard.

Nearly 120 residents have opposed the measure for more than a year, and expressed frustration when it was learned the village's special assessment of the $220,000 project will be upheld in court, probably next week.

THE VILLAGE board's position is that they may or may not pursue the project further, because the original assessment would have to be dropped and another filed.

Discussion ranged from bitter charges of "a shady deal" to an appeal for an end to name-calling and a declaration that a matter of individual rights was involved.

Residents in the area indicated they may appeal the local court decision.

The board approved a variation in zoning request by the Union Oil Co., for installation of a gas station at Maple and Line streets.

The action came after an impassioned plea by Trustee Roy Petherbridge to deny the request on grounds the station would be an eyesore, lead to dangerous precedent in the business district, and that it was wrong to use a zoning approval to force another service station out of business.

HE WAS SPEAKING of a Standard Oil Co. station which all agreed is an eyesore

GUITAR-PLAYING Assistant Pastor Robert Kretzschmar of the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle has exciting ideas for modernizing the worship services for young people. Besides introducing folk music to services, he hopes to add modern drama and art forms to invigorate worship.

Bargaining Agent in Plans

by RICHARD BARTON

The Addison Elementary Board of Education Dist. 4 will hire a professional negotiator, probably this week, to start bargaining with the Addison Teachers Association (ATA) who will also seek a professional bargainer.

The school board will seek someone from a professional firm which specializes in representing management on all levels, such as industry and business, Board Pres Charles Willett, said.

The ATA answered the board's decision Monday night by finally deciding to seek their own negotiation expert.

The annual dues of the organization were raised this year from $3 to $20 per member with the expressed purpose of using the additional money for hiring a negotiator the Register learned Monday.

A PUBLIC STATEMENT of position was given Monday to the "public" by the board of education. Those present, besides some board members, were four members of the ATA and the Register.

Board Sec. Robert Deobler read the statement and made the movement contained in it. It read:

"With reference to the negotiation committee meeting of Nov. 3, 1969, board members of the committee were informed by Mrs. (Jean) Wakeman, president of the Addison Teachers Association, that the ATA in August, 1969, voted to terminate the current professional negotiations agreement with an effective date of Feb. 1, 1970.

"The board of education reluctantly acknowledges this termination of the professional negotiations agreement, therefore, I move that the board of education of Dist. 4 employ a professional negotiator to bargain on our behalf with the ATA for a new agreement encompassing wages, hours and working conditions."

THE STATEMENT was worked out in closed executive session and voted on later in an open meeting Monday. It was accepted unanimously by the school board.

When the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Wakeman criticized Deobler for not mentioning she had repeatedly told the board the termination date was flexible and could be easily extended as it has already been done twice this fall.

Deobler shrugged his shoulders and

'Spirit-Filled' Services Planned

by GARY ZACNY

"I'm going to make an effort to do what 'spirit-filled' young people want."

Robert Kretzschmar, assistant pastor at Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle, has initiated a program which will incorporate folk music, "happenings," and perhaps the art and music of the psychedelic subculture to make Lutheran worship services more appealing and relevant to young people.

Kretzschmar attended Concordia Seminary in St. Louis and was ordained Sept. 7. Trinity Lutheran is his first church.

"Problems sometimes exist in translating the Christian message to the modern idiom," said Kretzschmar. "Young people want a worship service which uses elements of their everyday life. They want a liturgy which comes from the young themselves.

"This desire is in the mainstream of Lutheran tradition. One primary object of the Reformation was to decrease the complete responsibility of the clergy for worship services. Every man became his own priest.

"I play the guitar and include folk music in some services to encourage sharing between people instead of just a pastor telling them what to do."

Kretzschmar plays the guitar, and he began his modernization of worship services by holding a "hootenanny" during one of the classes for young people. Last week he played his folk guitar at a morning communion.

"It seems to me that young people want a service where they can celebrate in a free and spontaneous way. Celebration is the key to it. Later we may work in some of the psychedelic innovations which go along with the idea of Christian celebration, the hope for eternity, the message of Christ."

Another method of invigorating young people's worship may be the introduction of "happenings" or modern dramatic forms to worship service.

"The whole idea of the program is to find the means in which people can best express themselves. We might organize workshops to use modern techniques in acting and writing to create programs for worship. It would be a part of the liturgy, an increased sharing."

Kretzschmar described a meeting he attended in St. Louis recently as a good example of this approach. The meeting was a combination funeral and birthday party for each person present. Solemn music and orations over a symbolic coffin were followed with a birthday celebration, thus dramatizing the Christian view of death as a rebirth into eternal life.

"Of course, this sort of presentation would not fit into the regular liturgy; it's not formal enough. But it has a place.

"I should point out that all these programs are in the experimental stage. If I found that modern music or art forms were not contributing to worship, I would call a halt.

"Young people especially respond to this sort of thing. For some it is a worship experience, for others it's entertaining, for some it's only an interesting idea. I think we can touch, usefully, on various levels."

Kretzschmar said his innovations would probably not be presented to the whole congregation. The push for contemporary additions to worship services will be confined to the young people.

"We want to have all types of services available," he said.

Guitar playing, folk songs, modern drama and psychedelic art have all ready found their way into many churches. The innovations do not alter the message of the religion, they simply add the smack of the times. The idea goes back even farther than Kretzschmar suggested, for the Bible comprehends and encourages it with a single appeal: "make a joyful noise unto the Lord"

Fencil Asks Height Variation

by SYD JAMIESON

A packed village hall heard Richard Fencil, Brookwood developer request a variation in height limitation for his proposed planned multifamily development which would provide more park area over the initial plan approved under a recent preannexation agreement.

The public hearing conducted Monday night by the Wood Dale Zoning Board of Appeals, found plenty of questions from the public in attendance, but apparently none which could be interpreted by zoning board chairman Ludwig Hinkhouse as major opposition to the requested variation.

The zoning board will refer Fencil's request to the Wood Dale planning commission, volunteer fire protection district and other advisory bodies for recommendations prior to making its report to the village council.

THE BASIC CHANGE sought under the approved planned development concept for the $40 million project in the Addison-Brookwood country club area, is to provide easier traffic flow to the luxury residential units along with more green belt and provisions units along with more green belt and provisions for enclosed parking under the apartment buildings.

According to Fencil, by designing a dual roadway off Addison Road to service the residential complex and elimination of some 300 outside parking areas, anticipated problems in traffic patterns initially proposed can be achieved.

He said by providing these features, the proposed variation in height of the buildings and change from the "y-shaped" high rise units to one of rectangular design, will offer an additional two to three acres of green belt with less ground area for the new buildings.

HE ALSO INDICATED that there would be less three bedroom units over that originally approved under the preannexation agreement with the village.

In effect, Fencil is adding 10 more buildings to a total of 27 as against the initial 17, yet maintaining less area per building, but adding more park area and elimination of outside parking spaces in favor of enclosed parking facilities for residents.

The additional green belt would be located within the western sector of the golf course. There will still be outside parking for guests, Fencil said.

Other proposed changes centered in the northern portion of the development south of Forest Preserve Drive where parking facilities would be provided in conjunction with a swimming pool.

Fencil also told zoning board members and those in attendance, that a sewage treatment plant is under construction on the southern boundary of the development between Addison and Wood Dale roads.

Sidelight: Fire Truck

One sidelight emerged from Monday's public hearing conducted by the Wood Dale zoning board of appeals on Richard Fencil's request for a height variation for his Brookwood planned residential development.

The question centered around a commitment for purchase of special fire equipment under terms of the approved preannexation agreement.

In what some residents and fire chief Jack Haynes referred to as an apparent "lack of communication," was a $125,000 guarantee by Fencil for purchase of a snorkel unit and future site of a new fire station.

BUT ACCORDING to Stephen Milato, Fencil's attorney, a $125,000 note had been deposited with the village according to commitment made under a supplemental annexation agreement.

Where the breakdown in communication undoubtedly lies is the anticipated follow-up by Haynes in providing the particular specifications so Fencil can write a purchase order. But Haynes has been waiting on the village to inform him to go ahead in providing the specs.

"WE FEEL THAT after considerable study with our land planners and architects, we are improving something over that originally proposed," Fencil said.

What Fencil has proposed to the zoning board is a reduction in the square footage of the initial high rise units from 26,000 square feet to 16,000 to 17,000 square feet. The total number of apartment units for the 12-story buildings has also been reduced from 818 to 617 with the rectangular design.

There would be other benefits if the proposed variation is approved Fencil said.

He indicated the assessed valuation of the development would increase with the new design proposals as a result of the additional buildings.

Nearly $1 million has already been committed by Fencil under terms of the preannexation agreement. Included in this amount was $120,000 deposited in a trustee account by the village for recreational use to be directed under a mutual contract with the Wood Dale Park District for construction of a community-wide swimming pool.

commented the negotiations were rough on the board, too. He added since the ATA had a professional negotiator at the October meeting, the board felt the talks were getting so complicated that it also needed professional representation.

MRS. WAKEMAN told the Register later the board had demanded a man from the Illinois Education Association (IEA) who had been advising the ATA, to leave school property last month. When the school board and the ATA met last month, the board refused to talk until the IEA man left the building, she added, even after we argued for two hours against it.

The ATA proposed an improved professional negotiations agreement in September. Meetings between the board and the ATA found it necessary to also review the teacher grievance procedures due to alleged time-consuming hindrances.

ATA also decided to ask for binding negotiations and several other conditions to streamline negotiations between teachers, teachers' groups and the administration.

"ATA ISN'T SEEKING a pay increase as such," Mrs. Wakeman said. "All we basically desire is improved negotiation procedures, better communication to allow us to get back to friendly relations with the administration. This thing has taken a bad turn and shouldn't have had to come to this point, namely both parties seeking outside professionals to discuss what affects this district."

The teacher's association represents 184 of the estimated 240 personnel in the district. The eligible personnel includes school administration and other supervisors who wouldn't be likely to join an association.

Formal talks between the school board and ATA will probably begin when both sides carry out the intentions of hiring professional negotiators.

Both sides have expressed regret at having to seek this course of action. Yet, both sides may benefit by professional representation since labor-management negotiations seldom remain totally calm.

Man Charged with Auto Theft

Addison police arrested a Chicago man on charges of loitering and vagrancy Sunday night in an Addison drug store and later learned he was driving a car reported stolen earlier that day.

Daniel Saunders, 28, was turned over to Chicago detectives on a charge of stealing a car belonging to another Chicago man.

The owner of a local drug store called police at about 5 p.m. and said there was a man wandering around the store with six cartons of cigarettes. Police went to the scene and observed the man for about an hour.

SAUNDERS WAS ARRESTED after he allegedly asked a store customer for a nickel.

It was later learned he had reportedly been driving a stolen 1966 Buick. A warrant for his arrest on other charges was also out, reports said.

Saunders was wanted by Chicago police for reportedly jumping bond after he was released on charges of theft.

The car owner came to pick up his car from Addison police Sunday.

IN A SEPARATE incident, a car was stolen Thursday from Arlene Bay of 103 Villa Ave., Addison, while it was parked in the apartment complex parking lot. The car belonged to Herbert Fisher of Chicago, but Miss Bay was reportedly using the vehicle.

The 1966 light green Chevrolet was reportedly locked, but the key was left under the floor mat, according to police.

In a different sort of a theft, a thief with a sweet tooth stole about 12 dozen Sweet rolls from in front of the White Hen Pantry store at 1 N. Michigan, Addison. The theft occurred between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. Sunday.

Welfare Unit Meeting Set

Bonaparte School, 130 W. Army Trail Road, Addison will host the general meeting of the Community Welfare Association for Retarded Children today at 8 p.m.

The school is located in the second floor of the Addison municipal building. It is one of five school centers operated by the association. The others are pre-school centers and are located in Elmhurst, Wheaton, West Chicago and Bellwood.

THE ASSOCIATION, a participating member of the Bensenville Community Chest, operates a Friday evening recreation program, an eight-week summer day camp and a one-week residential camp. All are directed toward the education and recreation of retarded children and adults.

Walter Jones, director of agency relations of the Suburban Community Chest Council, will speak Wednesday on where funds come from and how they are used.

Mrs. Sylvia Vojta, acting director of Bonaparte School, will share in the speaking duties and conduct a tour of the school. Theodore Friedman, staff psychologist; and Mrs. Linda Greenfield, staff speech therapist, will also be present to answer questions.

Vehicle Stickers Are Now On Sale

Purchase of 1970 vehicle stickers by Wood Dale motorists at $7.50 per automobile, went on sale Saturday, Geraldine Jacobs, village clerk said.

Motorists may purchase the annual decals at the Wood Dale Village Hall Mondays through Fridays between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

A $2.50 penalty will be applied after Jan. 15, Mrs. Jacobs said.

Kelleghan and Sommerschield Win

William Sommerschield of Elmhurst and Thomas C. Kelleghan of West Chicago are the unofficial winners of yesterday's extremely close election of state Constitutional Convention delegates in the 39th senatorial district.

Kelleghan was the top vote-getter with an unofficial 13,521 votes to the second place Sommerschield with 12,863.

The announced team of Kelleghan and Stanley Kula, both conservative Republican attorneys, failed to pull through in the finish with Kula tallying a close third place vote of 12,398.

Mrs. Margaret "Tom" Larson of Elmhurst was the low vote getter of the day and ran behind all during the election night tally. She finished with 12,183 unofficially.

ONLY ABOUT 650 votes separated the winning candidates, Kelleghan and Sommerschield, who will become the 39th district convention delegates to review the antiquated state constitution.

The last two precincts to report last night at about 9:30 p.m. were from York Township. Sommerschield rallied about 500 votes to definitely put on the road to Springfield Sommerschield and Kula ran close all night with as little as 100 votes separating the two Republicans.

Sommerschield, 27, tagged the most liberal of the four run-off candidates, ran second most of the night with Kelleghan in the lead.

A total 50,965 ballots were used in yesterday's vote. This was considered a good voter turnout with the total number of registered voters set at 107,222.

The 40th district was also holding election of Con-Con delegates. Election central was the Wheaton courthouse.

THE 39TH DISTRICT includes the DuPage County townships of Addison, Bloomington, Naperville, Wayne, Winfield and York. The 40th district takes the rest of the DuPage townships of Milton, Lisle and Downers Grove.

Kelleghan, 41, is attorney and a member of the DuPage County public defender's office. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame law school.

Sommerschield is a time buyer for the advertising firm of Leo Burnett of Chicago. He has been a legislative assistant in both houses of the Illinois General Assembly and a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The Con-Con vote appeared to be neither a landslide victory for the conservative or liberal fronts. Sommerschield's fine showing probably was also a moral victory for the young, liberal movement from which he drew part of his backing.

Mrs. Larson was considered a non-partisan candidate and had the League of Women Voters working for her while Sommerschield depended on friends and endorsements from news media.

KELLEGHAN AND KULA were undoubtedly supported and worked for by the hardcore Republicans including many committeemen. Kula's defeat was not a party defeat, but rather a defeat of his campaign since he was forced to finalize some of his views to form a team with Kelleghan and get formal township support.

There were no voting trends in Bloomington Township evident last night, however, Addison Township went for Mrs. Larson and Sommerschield. The heavy Addison Township vote for Sommerschield is counted as one factor toward Kula's defeat there.

Kula household in watching election results expressed his own disappointment. "I think the people will be sorry they didn't get a man of this caliber to bring some common sense to this fiasco," he said. "The people have spoken, and they got what they deserve."

ELECTION RETURNS poured in as members of the Wheaton North varsity football team helped the DuPage County clerk's office handle ballots last night at election central, Wheaton. Two high school age sons of Jay Benedict, chief deputy county clerk, rounded up the boys who act as paid volunteers. Yesterday's election of two Constitutional Convention delegates from the 39th District was close.

Losers See Defeat In Different Ways

The two 39th District candidates who lost their bid for a seat at the Constitutional Convention in December had distinctly different reactions to yesterday's election results.

Mrs. Margaret "Tom" Larson was attending a board meeting of Salt Creek School Dist. 48 when she received the results. She calmly expressed disappointment at news of her last-place finish.

"Well, I'm pleased Sommerschield won," she said.

MRS. LARSON HAD campaigned as an independent candidate, but she shared with Sommerschield liberal views supporting streamlined government and more equitable taxes.

Mrs. Larson said she hoped to continue working for her political goals, perhaps by regaining an active part in the League of Women Voters.

"I have no specific plans to help influence the convention," she said. "I thought I'd wait until I saw the election results."

KULA SEEMED ANGRY when interviewed at his home following the election.

"I guess the people would prefer I continue to practice law instead of attending the Constitutional Convention," Kula said.

When asked why he lost while his virtual running mate, Thomas Kelleghan, gained the most votes, Kula was unwilling to answer. He and Kelleghan were both strong party favorites, advocates of conservative government.

"I haven't the foggiest idea why I lost, and I think it's ridiculous to ask me before I've had a chance to analyze the results, precinct by precinct."

Kula said he would continue his political activities.

"I WORKED ON THE issues long before the convention started, and I intend to continue."

"But it's ridiculous to plan how to help in Springfield since I lost. If the delegates want any help from me, it's their job to contact me, not me contacting them."

A Kula supporter who had joined the

Kula household in watching election results expressed his own disappointment.

"I think the people will be sorry they didn't get a man of this caliber to bring some common sense to this fiasco," he said. "The people have spoken, and they got what they deserve."

Amazed at Closeness of Race

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Understandably tired and happy, Thomas C. Kelleghan, top vote-getter in the election for delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention from the 39th Dist was "pleased with the voter turnout and amazed at the closeness of the race."

In a victory statement released late last night Kelleghan said

"I am elated at being elected delegate to the Constitutional Convention, but I consider my election a victory for the point of view of those who supported me."

"I look forward to the challenge of helping to write a new constitution for the state of Illinois and to working with William Sommerschield in Springfield."

"In particular I am grateful to all who worked so hard for my election, especially to my close advisers."

"FINALLY WITHOUT the patience and understanding of my wife the campaign could not have been a success."

Commenting on the loss of Stanley A. Kula who made a third-place finish behind William A. Sommerschield, Kelleghan said "I guess he just wasn't strong enough."

Kula, who received 12,398 votes to Sommerschield's 12,863 was running as part of a team with Kelleghan during the final weeks of the campaign.

With the election of Sommerschield, who has opposed him on many issues, Kelleghan said "There will be two points of view at the convention. I do not foresee any problems. We understand each other."

Kelleghan said he anticipates and encourages letters from the voters of the district. He has set up a mailing address,

Con-Con, P.O. Box 25, Lombard, Ill. 60418.

He added he will begin working on his proposed advisory council "immediately" and promised there would be publicity on it soon.

KELLEGHAN TOLD THE Register earlier he hoped to pattern the advisory council after one formed by State Rep. Lewis V. Morgan, R-38th Dist.

The council utilized by Morgan, consisted of representatives from professional and civic groups who reviewed all the legislation introduced during the general assembly and advised him on it, setting priorities.

Kelleghan remarked about information distributed to all the candidates by the Constitutional Study Commission, which is now doing groundwork for facilities and staff for the delegates. He said much of the material on constitutional revision was "radical suggestions with which I disagree."

Explains: Got Most Votes

by GARY ZACNY

William Sommerschield, victorious 39th district candidate for the Illinois Constitutional Convention, had a sound explanation for his success in the election last night.

"I think the explanation, pure and simple, is that I had a lot of citizens and committeemen who worked hard on my behalf. And I got the most votes."

Sommerschield's victory was a mild upset, since he ran against a pair of strongly supported Republican party men, Thomas Kelleghan and Stanley Kula. Sommerschield felt he was able to edge Kula because of the intense canvass conducted by his supporters Saturday.

"I think this did it, as I think was the case in the primary," Sommerschield said. "There were hundreds of people working, in the rain, going door-to-door, leaving literature. And this made all the difference."

SOMMERSCIELD SAID he expected no friction between himself and Kelleghan, the other elected delegate. Despite the conflict of his liberal views with Kelleghan's conservative leanings, Sommerschield felt certain they could achieve a working relationship.

Sommerschield promised to work hard to uphold the interests of his supporters and to maintain good communication between Springfield and the electorate of the 39th District. He issued the following statement to cement those goals.

"I want to thank everyone who assisted in achieving this victory. It is really a victory for the many citizens who worked for months in my behalf, both in the primary and in today's election."

"I PLAN TO WORK hard with my fellow delegates in the coming months to help write a new constitution for the next 100 years. I will try honestly and thoroughly to represent all the residents of this district, keeping in close communication with them as the vital issues come up in Springfield."

"As delegates to this convention, we have an awesome responsibility for meeting the needs of the future of Illinois. I will dedicate my efforts to that task and with the continued support and interest of the political leaders, committeemen, newspapers and hundreds of hard working residents of DuPage County, we will write a new constitution which everyone can be proud of and which can be adopted by the voters."

Nottke To Oppose Knuepfer in Primary

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Itasca Mayor Wilbert H. Nottke formally announced late last night he would oppose State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th Dist., in the March 17 Republican primary election.

At the close of the municipality's village board meeting, Nottke told trustees that reports he might run were true, and "I'm officially in the race."

He is circulating petitions, "lining up support, and it looks a lot better than I thought it would."

FIRST INDICATIONS that Nottke would challenge Knuepfer, a two-term veteran, came last Friday when the mayor confirmed his interest in an exclusive interview with the Register.

The announcement followed a village board meeting at which a group of residents objecting to a special assessment for a storm sewer in the vicinity of Washington and Walnut streets were heard.

Nearly 120 residents have opposed the measure for more than a year, and expressed frustration when it was learned the village's special assessment of the $220,000 project will be upheld in court, probably next week.

THE VILLAGE board's position is that they may or may not pursue the project further, because the original assessment would have to be dropped and another filed.

Discussion ranged from bitter charges of "a shady deal" to an appeal for an end to name-calling and a declaration that a matter of individual rights was involved.

Residents in the area indicated they may appeal the local court decision.

The board approved a variation in zoning request by the Union Oil Co., for installation of a gas station at Maple and Line streets.

The action came after an impassioned plea by Trustee Roy Petherbridge to deny the request on grounds the station would be an eyesore, lead to dangerous precedent in the business district, and that it was wrong to use a zoning approval to force another service station out of business.

HE WAS SPEAKING of a Standard Oil Co. station which all agreed is an eyesore and which would be next to the new Union Oil facility.

Nottke, speaking for the majority of the board, contended that the new station would be a service to residents in helping to end undesirable business district structures, be valuable for residents because of locale opposite the railroad station, and helpful to commuters because of more parking space available.

The parking space results from a land trade tied to the offer, in which the village gave Union Oil 1,950 square feet in exchange for more than 22,000 square feet of land.

Wright Asks for DiOrto's Resignation

Morton Wright, Fenton High School Dist. 100 board of education member, asked for the resignation last night of Board Pres. James DiOrto.

"At the last meeting, you said you would tender your resignation as soon as there was a full board present," he told DiOrto, "and there is a full board here tonight (Tuesday)."

DiOrto responded:

"I feel I am not going to resign because I have not yet seen a change in this board. As long as you remain a board member,

Mr. Wright, so should I. I will not tender my resignation."

"STILL I WILL remain as president as long as this board does not ask me to resign," DiOrto said.

Last June during a dispute over school administrative salaries, DiOrto resigned orally, saying:

"I feel I can no longer work with this board."

It was pointed out at the following board meeting during which DiOrto was absent, that his resignation was not official until submitted in writing and approved by the board of education.

Last night's request by Wright came during a presentation by Carl York, industrial arts department chairman, who told the board:

"If truth is our end, and we are not self-seeking, bias, newspaper-selling people, the truth about the program at Fenton must be told."

York was asking for cooperation from the board to reinstate the curtailments at Fenton. He added that he felt the board was not communicating well with either teachers or the public.

GUITAR-PLAYING Assistant Pastor Robert Kretzschmar of the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle has exciting ideas for modernizing the worship services for young people. Besides introducing folk music to services, he hopes to add modern drama and art forms to invigorate worship.

'Spirit-Filled' Services Planned

by GARY ZACNY

"I'm going to make an effort to do what 'spirit-filled' young people want," Robert Kretzschmar, assistant pastor at Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Roselle, has initiated a program which will incorporate folk music, "happenings," and perhaps the art and music of the psychedelic subculture to make Lutheran worship services more appealing and relevant to young people.

Kretzschmar attended Concordia seminary in St. Louis and was ordained Sept. 7. Trinity Lutheran is his first church.

"Problems sometimes exist in translating the Christian message to the modern idiom," said Kretzschmar. "Young people want a worship service which uses elements of their everyday life. They want a liturgy which comes from the young themselves."

"This desire is in the mainstream of Lutheran tradition. One primary object of the Reformation was to decrease the complete responsibility of the clergy for worship services. Every man became his own priest."

"I play the guitar and include folk music in some services to encourage sharing between people instead of just a pastor telling them what to do."

Kretzschmar plays the guitar, and he began his modernization of worship services by holding a "hootenanny" during one of the classes for young people. Last week he played his folk guitar at a morning communion.

"It seems to me that young people want a service where they can celebrate in a free and spontaneous way. Celebration is the key to it. Later we may work in some of the psychedelic innovations which go along with the idea of Christian celebration, the hope for eternity, the message of Christ."

Another method of invigorating young people's worship may be the introduction of "happenings" or modern dramatic forms to worship service.

"The whole idea of the program is to find the means in which people can best express themselves. We might organize workshops to use modern techniques in acting and writing to create programs for worship. It would be a part of the liturgy, an increased sharing."

Kretzschmar described a meeting he attended in St. Louis recently as a good example of this approach. The meeting was a combination funeral and birthday party for each person present. Solemn music and orations over a symbolic coffin were followed with a birthday celebration, thus dramatizing the Christian view of death as a rebirth into eternal life.

"Of course, this sort of presentation would not fit into the regular liturgy; it's not formal enough. But it has a place."

"I should point out that all these programs are in the experimental stage. If I found that modern music or art forms were not contributing to worship, I would call a halt."

"Young people especially respond to this sort of thing. For some it is a worship experience, for others it's entertaining, for some it's only an interesting idea. I think we can touch, usefully, on various levels."

Kretzschmar said his innovations would probably not be presented to the whole congregation. The push for contemporary additions to worship services will be confined to the young people.

"We want to have all types of services available," he said.

Guitar playing, folk songs, modern drama and psychedelic art have all ready found their way into many churches. The innovations do not alter the message of the religion, they simply add the smacks of the times. The idea goes back even farther than Kretzschmar suggested, for the Bible comprehends and encourages it with a single appeal: "make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

Fencel Asks Height Variation

by SYD JAMIESON

A packed village hall heard Richard Fencel, Brookwood developer request a variation in height limitation for his proposed planned multifamily development which would provide more park area over the initial plan approved under a recent preannexation agreement.

The public hearing conducted Monday night by the Wood Dale Zoning Board of Appeals, found plenty of questions from the public in attendance, but apparently none which could be interpreted by zoning board chairman Ludwig Hunkhous as major opposition to the requested variation.

The zoning board will refer Fencel's request to the Wood Dale planning commission, volunteer fire protection district and other advisory bodies for recommendations prior to making its report to the village council.

THE BASIC CHANGE sought under the approved planned development concept for the $40 million project in the Addison-Brookwood country club area, is to provide easier traffic flow to the luxury residential units along with more green belt and provisions units along with more green belt and provisions for enclosed parking under the apartment buildings.

According to Fencel, by designing a dual roadway off Addison Road to service the residential complex and elimination of some 300 outside parking areas, anticipated problems in traffic patterns initially proposed can be achieved.

He said by providing these features, the proposed variation in height of the buildings and change from the "y-shaped" high rise units to one of rectangular design, will offer an additional two to three acres of green belt with less ground area for the new buildings.

"WE FEEL THAT after considerable study with our land planners and architects, we are improving something over that originally proposed," Fencel said.

What Fencel has proposed to the zoning board is a reduction in the square footage of the initial high rise units from 28,000 square feet to 16,000 to 17,000 square feet. The total number of apartment units for the 12-story buildings has also been reduced from 819 to 617 with the rectangular design.

In providing more green belt area Fencel has still not exceeded the maximum number of apartment units approved under the initial planned development.

Although most of the initial y-shaped high rise buildings have been eliminated under the latest proposal, one building is under construction east of the golf course bordering Wood Dale Road.

HE ALSO INDICATED that there would be less three bedroom units over that originally approved under the preannexation agreement with the village.

In effect, Fencel is adding 10 more buildings to a total of 27 as against the initial 17, yet maintaining less area per building, but adding more park area and elimination of outside parking spaces in favor of enclosed parking facilities for residents.

The additional green belt would be located within the western sector of the golf course. There will still be outside parking for guests, Fencel said.

Other proposed changes centered in the northern portion of the development south of Forest Preserve Drive where parking facilities would be provided in conjunction with a swimming pool.

Fencel also told zoning board members and those in attendance, that a sewage treatment plant is under construction on the southern boundary of the development between Addison and Wood Dale roads.

"WITHIN THE NEXT 10 years, the village will be able to tap on an additional 10,000 to 15,000 residential units apart from Brookwood," Fencel claimed.

There would be other benefits if the proposed variation is approved Fencel said.

He indicated the assessed valuation of the new design proposals as a result of the additional buildings.

Nearly $1 million has already been committed by Fencel under terms of the preannexation agreement. Included in this amount was $120,000 deposited in a trustee account by the village for recreational use to be directed under a mutual contract with the Wood Dale Park District for construction of a community-wide swimming pool.

Sidelight: Fire Truck

One sidelight emerged from Monday's public hearing conducted by the Wood Dale zoning board of appeals on Richard Fencel's request for a height variation for his Brookwood planned residential development.

The question centered around a commitment for purchase of special fire equipment under terms of the approved pre-annexation agreement.

In what some residents and fire chief Jack Haynes referred to as an apparent "lack of communication," was a $125,000 guarantee by Fencel for purchase of a snorkel unit and future site of a new fire station.

BUT ACCORDING to Stephen Milato, Fencel's attorney, a $125,000 note had been deposited with the village according to commitment made under a supplemental annexation agreement.

Where the breakdown in communication undoubtedly lies is the anticipated follow-up by Haynes in providing the particular specifications so Fencel can write a purchase order. But Haynes has been waiting on the village to inform him to go ahead in providing the specs.

"We are willing to cooperate," Milato replied to Haynes following a question by Wayne Waltrip of 180 Oakwood, citing terms of the agreement made with the village.

HAYNES CLAIMED he had heard nothing since the mutual pact with Fencel and the village had been consummated, but declared "my next stop is the village hall although we (fire protection district) have had no difficulties with the council."

Haynes was also informed that a "hard surface" perimeter road will be provided around the apartment units for ready access by fire equipment.

Bargaining Agent in Plans

by RICHARD BARTON

The Addison Elementary Board of Education Dist. 4 will hire a professional negotiator, probably this week, to start bargaining with the Addison Teachers Association (ATA) who will also seek a professional bargainer.

The school board will seek someone from a professional firm which specializes in representing management on all levels, such as industry and business, Board Pres. Charles Willett, said.

The ATA answered the board's decision Monday night by finally deciding to seek their own negotiation expert.

The annual dues of the organization were raised this year from $3 to $20 per member with the expressed purpose of using the additional money for hiring a negotiator the Register learned Monday.

A PUBLIC STATEMENT of position was given Monday to the "public" by the board of education. Those present, besides some board members, were four members of the ATA and the Register.

Board Sec. Robert Deobler read the statement and made the movement contained in it. It read:

"With reference to the negotiation committee meeting of Nov. 3, 1969, board members of the committee were informed by Mrs. (Jean) Wakeman, president of the Addison Teachers Association, that the ATA in August, 1969, voted to terminate the current professional negotiations agreement with an effective date of Feb. 1, 1970.

"The board of education reluctantly acknowledges this termination of the professional negotiations agreement, therefore, I move that the board of education of Dist. 4 employ a professional negotiator to bargain on our behalf with the ATA for a new agreement encompassing wages, hours and working conditions."

THE STATEMENT was worked out in closed executive session and voted on later in an open meeting Monday. It was accepted unanimously by the school board.

When the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Wakeman criticized Deobler for not mentioning she had repeatedly told the board the termination date was flexible and could be easily extended as it has already been done twice this fall.

Deobler shrugged his shoulders and commented the negotiations were rough on the board, too. He added since the ATA had a professional negotiator at the October meeting, the board felt the talks were getting so complicated that it also needed professional representation.

MRS. WAKEMAN told the Register later the board had demanded a man from the Illinois Education Association (IEA) who had been advising the ATA, to leave school property last month. When the school board and the ATA met last month, the board refused to talk until the IEA man left the building, she added, even after we argued for two hours against it.

The ATA proposed an improved professional negotiations agreement in September. Meetings between the board and the ATA found it necessary to also review the teacher grievance procedures due to alleged time-consuming hindrances.

ATA also decided to ask for blinding negotiations and several other conditions to streamline negotiations between teachers, teachers' groups and the administration.

"ATA ISN'T SEEKING a pay increase as such," Mrs. Wakeman said. "All we basically desire is improved negotiation procedures, better communications to allow us to get back to friendly relations with the administration. This thing has taken a bad turn and shouldn't have had to come to this point, namely both parties seeking outside professionals to discuss what affects this district."

The teacher's association represents 104 of the estimated 240 personnel in the district. The eligible personnel includes school administration and other supervisors who wouldn't be likely to join an association.

Formal talks between the school board and ATA will probably begin when both sides carry out the intentions of hiring professional negotiators.

Both sides have expressed regret at having to seek this course of action. Yet, both sides may benefit by professional representation since labor-management negotiations seldom remain totally calm.

Vehicle Stickers Are Now On Sale

Purchase of 1970 vehicle stickers by Wood Dale motorists at $7.50 per automobile, went on sale Saturday, Geraldine Jacobs, village clerk said.

Motorists may purchase the annual decals at the Wood Dale Village Hall Mondays through Fridays between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

A $2.50 penalty will be applied after Jan. 15, Mrs. Jacobs said.

Man Charged with Auto Theft

Addison police arrested a Chicago man on charges of loitering and vagrancy Sunday night in an Addison drug store and later learned he was driving a car reported stolen earlier that day.

Daniel Saunders, 28, was turned over to Chicago detectives on a charge of stealing a car belonging to another Chicago man.

The owner of a local drug store called police at about 5 p.m. and said there was a man wandering around the store with six cartons of cigarettes. Police went to the scene and observed the man for about an hour.

SAUNDERS WAS ARRESTED after he allegedly asked a store customer for a nickel.

It was later learned he had reportedly been driving a stolen 1966 Buick. A warrant for his arrest on other charges was also out, reports said.

Saunders was wanted by Chicago police for reportedly jumping bond after he was released on charges of theft.

The car owner came to pick up his car from Addison police Sunday.

IN A SEPARATE incident, a car was stolen Thursday from Arlene Bay of 103 Villa Ave., Addison, while it was parked in the apartment complex parking lot. The car belonged to Herbert Fisher of Chicago, but Miss Bay was reportedly using the vehicle.

The 1966 light green Chevrolet was reportedly locked, but the key was left under the floor mat, according to police.

In a different sort of a theft, a thief with a sweet tooth stole about 12 dozen sweet rolls from in front of the White Hen Pantry store at 1 N. Michigan, Addison. The theft occurred between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. Sunday.
